U. S. DELEGATES FOR ECONOMIC PARLEY NAMED

Couzens Accepts as a Member.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 30.—[Special.]—The names of the group of Americans who will strive for this country in the great game of international politics and finance to open in London on June 12 were announced at the White House tonight.

Six delegates and nineteen experts were on the list, which it was stated may be even further enlarged before the actual opening of the world economic conference.

The delegates are:

Cordell Hull, secretary of state, chairman.

Senator James Couzens [Rep., Mich.]

Ralph W. Morrison of Texas, a retired banker.

Mr. Couzens and Mr. Morrison, both of whom have consulted at times with the President during the course of the preliminary conversations he conducted with representatives of the chief foreign powers, notified the President today of their acceptances of the invitations he had extended to them. The other four, whose names had previously been announced, will leave Washington at noon tomorrow.

They will sail from New York on the President Roosevelt at midnight tomorrow, with most of the experts who will assist the delegation. Mr. Couzens and Mr. Morrison are expected to follow shortly.

The Staff of Experts.

The experts, with the titles assigned to them, are the following:

FINANCIAL ADVISER—James P. Warburg, New York banker.

LEGAL ADVISER—Fred K. Nielsen, a state department attaché.

CHIEF TECHNICAL ADVISER—Herbert Feis, also a state department expert.

SECRETARY—James C. Dunn.

Walter J. Cummings of Chicago, assistant secretary of the treasury, will also accompany the delegation, it was learned, and will act as assistant to Chairman Hull.

Two Now at Geneva.

Among the experts Mr. Morgenthau and Mr. Murphy are now at Geneva, representing the United States in an international wheat conference. Mr. Taussig and Prof. Tugwell are members of the Roosevelt "brain trust."

Mr. Delany, a Chicagoan, is rated an expert on wheat production and marketing.

The President was reported to be pleased over the acceptance of Senator Couzens, for he was anxious that one or two Republicans should be present during the parleys at London. The President previously had invited Senators Hiram Johnson [Rad., Cal.] and Robert M. La Follette [Rad., Wis.], both of whom are nominally listed as Republicans, to go to London, but both declined.

Senator Couzens will come somewhat closer than either Johnson or La Follette would to qualifying as a Republican spokesman for the delegation when whatever pacts arrived at at the conference are submitted to congress next winter.

Y. W. C. A. LEADER AT STANFORD 'U' IS FOUND DEAD

Stanford University, Cal., May 30.—[Special.]—Half in and half out of her bath tub, in her home on the Stanford university campus, Mrs. Alene Thorpe Lamson was found dead today. She was executive secretary of the University Y. W. C. A. There was a cut on the back of her head. There was blood on walls and floors. David A. Lamson, her husband, sales manager for the Stanford university press, is held in the Santa Clara county jail. After he conferred with his attorney, former Congressman Arthur M. Free, that lawyer said Mrs. Lamson probably was killed by a fall in the bath tub.

YOUNG AND OLD PACK EXHIBITS AND GAY SPOTS

Total Since Opening Set at 450,000.

More than 130,000 persons poured into the World's Fair grounds yesterday to spend their Memorial day holiday in the magic city of the modern age. The attendance far exceeded the hopes of the officials, who had expected about 80,000 visitors.

The crowds began streaming in as soon as the gates opened in the morning. The turnstiles kept clicking steadily as the day wore on and turned into night, bringing with it the symphony of thousands of colored lights.

More than 50,000 guests came through the entrances late in the afternoon after the Memorial day parade in Michigan avenue. The visitors—men, women and children—went through the gates at the rate of 10,000 an hour until twilight. The electric tabulator in the office of M. M. Tveter, controller of the exposition, was shut off at 9:30 o'clock last night after 98,972 paid admissions had been recorded. The rest of the crowd counted by the officials consisted of holders of prepaid tickets and passes.

Crowds Pack Fair Buildings.

Crowds jammed into the Hall of Science, the Electrical group, Travel and Transport building, Agricultural building, and other Exposition structures. They flocked into the restaurants and cafes. Throngs packed the seats on the side of the north lagoon to watch the nightly display of fireworks.

But since it was a holiday and the children were out of school, the biggest jam of the day was in the Midway. Unrecorded thousands made the streets of the amusement section look like a solid mass from high observation points. Long queues of children waited for their chance to try the rides and other thrill devices and the hundreds of barkers were hardly needed to attract customers into their shows.

Grownups Outnumber Children.

Enchanted island, the children's paradise, constituted a new problem for the Fair officials. There the adults outnumbered the children by 3 to 1, and mothers and fathers were enjoying the miniature railroad and midget automobiles as much if not more than their offspring. Magic mountain, which the children climb and then slide down a long, twisting steel tunnel, was the major attraction. Besides, the tunnel was a bit too small to allow some portly parents to slide down it.

Business at the large concessions in the grounds looked like the good old days before the market crash of '29.

Seven thousand persons flocked into the Pabst Blue Ribbon Casino and its surrounding terraces during the day, according to Graham Smith, general manager.

Because "The Streets of Paris" had reached its capacity of 5,000 persons by nightfall the entrances were closed to the public for a time, according to Andrew Rebori, director. The throngs packed the cabarets and bars, walked down through the painted streets, and filled the scores of shops and Parisian shows.

450,000 Total Since Opening.

After making a revised count last night the Fair officials announced that nearly 450,000 persons have passed through the gates since the grand opening Saturday.

Figures from the Columbian exposition of 1893 were dug up by Fair officials. On the opening day 40 years ago 137,000 persons went into the Fair grounds, while the opening day of A Century of Progress showed an attendance of 180,800. On the second day of the 1893 Fair, 13,000 visitors were received, while last Sunday the attendance was 54,921. The figures for the current Exposition take into account the number of persons admitted on prepaid tickets or passes.

World's Fair officials expect an increased attendance after tomorrow, since the opening of the Fair for three years was advertised throughout the world for June 1. The date was changed to May 27 several weeks ago when it was believed that President Roosevelt could be present for the opening ceremony.

BUS OPERATOR RESISTS BANDITS; SHOT IN ABDOMEN

A. E. Demmer, 25 years old, 1007 North Central avenue, operator of a Chicago and West Town Railway motor bus, was shot in the abdomen last night by one of two bandits when he resisted them on his bus at 38th street and South Ridgeland avenue, Berwyn.

A girl, Miss Ruby McCullaugh, 19 years old, of 4204 Clinton avenue, Stickney, a passenger, was the sole witness of the shooting.

She said the robbers boarded the coach at Ogden and Ridgeland avenues. After riding several blocks they drew guns, she said, and announced to Demmer that "this is a stickup." Demmer, Miss McCullaugh said, tried to strike them with a door handle. One of the gunmen fired and jumped with his companion from the bus. Demmer stopped the bus, then collapsed. He was taken to the Berwyn hospital.

Chicago Killer Is Captive in Culver Holdup

BY JAMES GAVIN.

South Bend, Ind., May 30.—[Special.]—In the St. Joseph county jail here sits a surly prisoner tonight. He was captured yesterday after he and five confederates held up the State Exchange bank of Culver, Ind., 35 miles south of South Bend, and took $16,000.

This prisoner, who gave up without a fight after a group of vigilantes surrounded the gang in the dense thickets near Bass lake, prefers to be known as Joe Davis of Miami, Fla. That's his name, he insists. In reality he is Daniel McGeoghegan, one of the toughest of Chicago hoodlums.

Pal of Midget Fernekes.

Bank robbery is nothing new to McGeoghegan. He was tried in 1926 with Henry [Midget] Fernekes, for the murder of Michael Swiontkowski, treasurer of the Pulaski Building and Loan association, during an $11,000 holdup. Both were sentenced to death, but there was a retrial by order of the state Supreme court and they were acquitted.

Again, last June, McGeoghegan was tried for the $60,000 robbery of the State bank of Clearing, on Dec. 6, 1930. Although bank officials identified him, the jury disagreed. Less than two weeks later another indictment was returned. But the Chicago police have been unable to apprehend him. Now it is Indiana law he must face.

Persists in His Incognito.

Sheriff Charles Keller of Marshall county, in which the Culver bank holdup was conducted, learned today that Joe Davis, whom he had sent here for safekeeping, was McGeoghegan. He came here to visit the prisoner.

"Well, Dan," he said, "Chief of Detectives Schoemaker from Chicago will be here to see you tomorrow."

McGeoghegan, a chastened gangster, with unshaven face, barefooted, and without money to buy cigarets, as the vigilantes took away the $16,000 when they captured him, answered softly:

"The name is Joe Davis and I'm a hitch hiker from Florida. I never heard of Schoemaker."

Three Charges Against Him.

The Chicago detective chief, as a matter of fact, had recognized his picture when it appeared in today's Chicago newspapers. He'd like to have McGeoghegan there for trial, but is satisfied that the charges of kidnaping, bank robbery, and auto banditry placed against him in Plymouth, the county seat of Marshall county, will be enough to put him away. McGeoghegan is to be arraigned in Plymouth tomorrow or Thursday. Kidnaping, under state law, calls for a life term in prison.

One of the six men involved in the robbery, who was first named as T. C. Teske, was shot and fatally wounded. He was identified at Plymouth tonight as a former Chicago policeman, Joseph Switalski. He was discharged from the force seven years ago when it was learned he was dealing in stolen cars as a side line.

Steven Switalski, a Chicago policeman with a good record, a brother of Joseph, made the identification. "I remember," he said, "that I tried to keep him straight. I got him to go on the force. I even bought his uniform. But he wouldn't play the right game, and here he is."

Third Robber from Chicago.

A third member of the gang, Morris Cohen, also has been held in Chicago as a bank robber in the past. The other three, Eddie Murphy, Jack Gray, and John Gorman, have not yet been fully identified.

The bandit band was pursued from Culver by vigilantes after the robbery. Prearranged signals were given and a posse of several hundred citizens formed under the command of Capt. A. A. Obenhauf of the Culver Military academy for the pursuit. The thick woods were searched for several hours before the robbers were brought to bay. Some of the citizens were restrained with difficulty from killing them all on the spot.

Green Rallies Labor Back of Industry Law

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 30.—[Special.]—Organized labor today started a campaign aimed at unionizing all the workers of the United States under the terms of the "industrial recovery act" now before congress.

Even though the bill has not yet become law, and even while many representatives of industry are fighting energetically the labor features of the measure, President William Green of the American Federation of Labor has started his organization on the task of reaping huge benefits to labor from this feature of the Roosevelt program.

A meeting of the executive officers of all national and international unions in the country was called by President Green, to be held in Washington on June 6, for the sole purpose of planning the "unionization of America."

Lines Clearly Drawn.

The very sections of the industrial control bill which Mr. Green extols in his call, and which give him the fulcrum by which he hopes to achieve his stated ends, are those which are the basis for the calling of another group to Washington—not to praise, but to condemn and protest.

Robert L. Lund, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, has telegraphed a call to a thousand members of his association summoning them to Washington for a special meeting next Saturday at which protests against the bill will be voiced and steps taken to protect manufacturers against its terms.

May Fight for Open Shop.

It is possible that the bill will have been passed and signed by President Roosevelt by the time of the manufacturers' meeting, for it has already been approved in the house and is slated for prompt action in the senate. In such a case, it is expected, the manufacturers would decide what steps they could take to prevent the bill from resulting in the abolishment of the open shop, under which the great majority of manufacturers have operated.

Various other industrial interests have been appearing before the senate finance committee, which is conducting public hearings on the measure.

But other industries have embraced the Roosevelt proposal, welcoming an opportunity to relieve themselves of the restrictions of the Sherman anti-trust act, and to enter into trade agreements authorized by the bill, designed to prevent unfair competition and to establish better working and trading conditions.

Schwab for "Partnership."

Charles M. Schwab, speaking in general terms at a meeting of steel manufacturers, approved the Roosevelt invitation to a "partnership" between government and industry. The National Electrical Manufacturers' association, 269 members, who in boom times employed 250,000 workers, recently empowered its board of governors to negotiate a trade agreement, and to seek its approval by President Roosevelt.

In a similar action drug industry leaders have formed the Drug Institute of America, aiming to effect trade pacts outlawing unfair practices now alleged against a part of this industry.

These groups have seen a boon in the legislation sponsored by the President. But other groups of industrialists, according to reports, are scheming to use the new act, if and when it is passed, to snuff out honest competitors—those willing to accept only a moderate profit. The President has declared agreements with such motives behind them will not be approved, and has promised to see that any minority interests are heard before agreements are approved.

Where Opinions May Clash.

The struggle now starting between the union leaders and the manufacturers revolves around the sections of the bill which require that any agreements to be approved must include language to give employes the "right to organize and bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing and shall be free from interference, restraint or coercion of employers of labor, or their agents in the designation of such representatives or in self organizations or in other concerted activities for the purpose of collective bargaining or other mutual aid or protection."

The unions herald such language with glee. Mr. Green, in his call to the union leaders to meet here next Tuesday, said that "labor must share equitably and fully in the benefits which flow" from such rights.

Mr. Green said that the American Federation of Labor will organize a campaign so "that the unorganized

NO WORD FROM WOMEN SECOND GROUP SEIZED

Lansing, Kas., May 30.—[Special.]—Eleven convicts, eight of them killers, led by Wilbur Underhill, the most desperate bandit the southwest has known since the James boys, today escaped from the Lansing state penitentiary, five miles south of Leavenworth.

Seizing Warden Kirk Prather and two guards as shields, one party of 6 convicts held them prisoners until late tonight, when they released them 15 miles southwest of Welch, Okla. The fate of a woman and two girls, taken as hostages during the flight of a second group of five felons, is unknown.

Because of the known killer instinct in Underhill and several of the other fugitives, fear had been felt for the lives of the warden and his guards. This fear had been shared by Prather, he admitted tonight in telephoning his wife of his release.

Whisky Makes Them Talkative.

"The men got hold of a bottle of whisky and it warmed them up," he said. "Except for that we might never have been released alive. After warming up, the convicts—there were six of them—became talkative and told me how they had planned the break and where they got their guns. These six were the real plotters; the other five were invited participants."

The warden said that the convicts frequently threatened him with death as they drove along in commandeered automobiles, and that at times he expected death without further warning.

Posses from Two States Are Out.

Tonight posses from southern Kansas and Oklahoma were searching for the two parties of convicts. The posses were aided by Kansas state militia. Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas and Gov. William Murray of Oklahoma earlier had completed arrangements for full coöperation between the agencies of the two states to run the fugitives down.

The prison break, one of the most daring in the western country, took place while 1,861 prisoners were in the stands, with Warden Prather and other officials, watching a baseball game between American Legion teams from Topeka and Leavenworth. Early in the game Underhill slipped up behind the warden.

Thrusting the pistol against the warden's head, he shouted: "Let's go." On the instant the others in the plot went into action. Four of them drew firearms. One dragged forth a straight-edged razor. Other prison officials were overpowered or terrorized. The story of how it was all done was told a little later by W. E. Museiman, prison director of athletics.

Noose Around Warden's Neck.

"I was in the stands," he said. "One of the men who escaped, Ed Davis, stuck a gun against my ribs. He hissed, 'Quiet, and don't move.' Ed was a life termer and I kept still. The others who had the guns were Bob Brady, a life termer; Harvey Bailey, a bank robber; Underhill, and another I didn't recognize. Frank Sawyer was the man with the razor.

"The warden was only five or six feet from me. Underhill and Bailey put a piece of copper wire with a noose in it around his neck. They rounded up W. D. Powell, the prison storekeeper; Bentley Clark, a twine plant superintendent; L. A. Laws, Charles Sherman, and Fred Ackerson, guards.

"Then they marched us all over to the southwest corner of the walls. Brady brought out the rope ladder. It looked like equipment from the electrical department. At the corner guard tower the convicts let me go."

When the tower entrance was reached the leader of the convicts displayed the warden with the noose around his neck. He pointed his pistol at Prather and spoke to the guard on duty.

Ordered to Drop Gun.

"Drop those keys and that gun," he said. "If you don't your boss is a goner."

Pete Kley, the guard, obeyed. Some of the party, with captives, moved on to post No. 3 near by and were obeyed by another guard. Then they marched up the stairs of the tower and looked out upon the wide stretches of Kansas to freedom.

The entire eleven assembled. They kept the warden and three prisoners prominently displayed. All of the convicts now were armed, for the guards had been stripped of their weapons as they were overpowered. Behind and below the group were the 1,850 inmates. From them came a low roar, the sound of caged men approving and envying those who had the desperation to do what these men were doing.

Other Prisoners Menaced.

But these were all menaced by guard rifles and the roar died down. One guard, from a post down the wall, fired at the escaping group. Underhill promptly, in dumb show, placed his gun against the warden's head and waved to the guard to fire again. He said plainly, with gestures, that the life of Prather would be forfeit if another shot was fired.

Next, swiftly and in silence, the rope ladder was fixed to the walls with grappling hooks. Down swarmed the convicts. Underhill compelled the warden to precede him and kept a tight hold on the copper wire, ready to choke the prison official to death if the guards should open fire.

Almost at the foot of the wall the fugitives found Miss Virginia Woodson, 15 year old daughter of the prison farm superintendent, in a small car. She was roughly jerked from the seat. The convicts, accompanied now only by the warden and Guards Sherman and Laws—the others had been released—piled in. The overflow stood with their weapons on the running boards.

Warden Tells His Story.

Warden Prather said a guard on the prison wall fired a shot while the convicts were outside in a huddle trying to decide what to do.

"The bullet struck Harvey Bailey, a convict, in the leg. Afterward we found his leg was broken just below the knee," the warden said.

"When the Woodson car was seized (Dodge car of W. W. Woodson, prison farm superintendent, taken from prison garage) Bailey had to be helped to the back seat. I didn't see the car taken. Underhill made me stand on the running board. He crawled into the back seat. The two guards and one convict also stood on the running board.

"Jim Clark, life termer from Bourbon county, took the wheel and drove down a road skirting the prison farm.

"'You show us how to keep out of the mud,' Underhill said to me, 'or I'll kill you. Understand?'

"I told him not to fear, that I would direct them to a good road. We drove south on State highway No. 5. Underhill somehow got his revolver tangled up with his clothing or the wire and it was discharged. The shot shattered the back window of our car.

Attendant Not Suspicious.

"I think we crossed the Kaw river about 10 miles southwest of Linwood, Kas., then drove into Eudora, where we bought gasoline at an out-of-the-way filling station. Underhill paid for it. I kept my head down. The attendant wasn't suspicious.

"One of the convicts produced a pint of whisky. Everybody was jubilant over that.

"At Edna, Kas., we bought more gas, Underhill again paying for it. Then we struck south on a dirt road and the bottle was passed to everybody but me and the guards. When the boys began to loosen up and talk, I said, 'Well, you guys certainly pulled a clever job. We suspected two weeks ago that you were smuggling guns but we couldn't find them. We searched all the sisal bales that came in.'

"Bailey, the wounded man, said we hadn't searched the right ones.

"About sundown, just before we neared Welch, Okla., we had a flat tire. Davis parked at the side of the road and all of us got out of the car. Two of the convicts repaired the puncture, grumbling, and Underhill said he hadn't decided what to do with me and the guards, bump us off, or what?

Ally Convicts Laugh.

"As we entered the Saginaw hills, south of Welch, Underhill said, 'Here's where we're going to bump you off; we've been waiting to get to these hills.' Everybody laughed.

"Then he remarked, 'Well, warden, you've been a pretty decent fellow. Don't think I ever met a better warden. You've handled the pen pretty well.'

"We turned from the road into higher and darker hills.

"Suddenly the car stopped and Underhill said, 'Well, here's where you boys get out.'

"The guards stepped down. I crawled out. All of the convicts followed us, even Bailey. I thought they were about to kill us.

"'Got any dough?' Underhill asked.

"I had 65 cents. Sherman said he had 30 cents, Laws 15 or 20 cents.

"All the convicts laughed. Pretty cheap lot, they said. Underhill reached in his pocket. 'Here you are, warden,' he said. 'Take this dollar bill; you may want something to eat and smoke—if you can find a town.'

"We found a town, all right. After the convicts had climbed back into their car—Bailey had to be carried—we trudged on back to Welch, more than ten miles away, all muddy, very tired. The convict car went on into the hills."

FELONS' FLIGHT

SEIZE CAR, KIDNAP WOMEN

A mile or so out on the road to Leavenworth the five convicts of the second group met a car. Its occupants were quickly forced out and part of the group took possession. At Leavenworth Junction this car blew a tire. The resourceful fugitives halted another. In it were M. J. Wood of Kansas City, Kas.; his wife, Alberta, 38 years old; his daughter, Louise, 17, and Miss Cloris Wears, 17, of Higgins, Tex. They were on their way to a cemetery in Leavenworth.

Wood was forced out. The convicts leaped into the car with the women and drove on. The women, so far as it could be established tonight, still were being held prisoners.

Thereafter several persons reported being held up and deprived of their cars. Apparently the convicts would drive one as far as the gasoline supply permitted, then seize and occupy another. Also it appeared that the party had adopted a policy of breaking up into small units. It is believed all were planning to break through to the Oklahoma wilds.

Murderer of Three.

Near Galesburg, not far from the Oklahoma line, Ed Clum, a farmer, was forced by three men to drive to the vicinity of Parsons. Clum was robbed, but the convicts got back into the other car when they found his gasoline supply low.

Next to Underhill, who was serving a life term for the murder of a Wichita policeman, and whose two previous murders in Oklahoma had made him known as the most desperate criminal in the southwest, Bailey had the most spectacular record among the convicts who fled. He was once a pal of Fred [Killer] Burke, now serving a life term in Michigan. Bailey was sentenced to 20 to 100 years for a bank robbery and murder at Fort Scott, Kas. He, as well as Burke, has been suspected of participation in the St. Valentine's day massacre in Chicago.

WOMAN SUES SENATOR LONG; ASKS $250,000

Ex-Governor's Wife Says She Was Insulted.

New Orleans, La., May 30.—[Special.]—United States Senator Huey P. Long was sued for $250,000 damages today in Baton Rouge by Mrs. Anne E. Pleasant, wife of former Governor Ruffin G. Pleasant. She charges Long defamed her character and had her seized and expelled from the capitol during the session of the 1932 legislature.

Mrs. Pleasant charges that on June 15, 1932, Long, "while in the office of Miss Alice Lee Grosjean, supervisor of public accounts, called her [Mrs. Pleasant] a "drunken, cursing woman," ordering R. L. Whitman to seize her and put her out of the statehouse.

Makes Further Charges.

Mrs. Pleasant charges in addition that Whitman held her in custody at the order of the then Gov. Long and that such detention was illegal. She says she was not creating a disturbance or committing any offense whatever against the state's laws at the time. She says she was sitting in the office quietly waiting for an opportunity to make a respectful inquiry of Miss Grosjean relative to nepotism and the questionable use of taxpayers' money "in certain state offices, departments, and institutions."

Mrs. Pleasant further charges that Senator Long caused the circulation of a report that she was carrying a pistol when she visited Miss Grosjean's office. Mrs. Pleasant says she never carried a pistol in her life and would not know how to fire one. Mrs. Pleasant, always an ardent prohibitionist, is reputed never to have taken a drink in her life. For some years she was a teacher in a girls' finishing school.

Long Denies Her Story.

Mrs. Pleasant's suit was entered in the District court of East Baton Rouge and her husband's name heads the list of counsel named as acting for her. Whitman was superintendent of the state bureau of identification.

A Washington dispatch quoted Senator Long as denying that he had Mrs. Pleasant put out of the capitol.

GANDHI IN GRAVE CONDITION FROM 3 WEEKS' FAST

POONA, India, May 30.—(AP)—Doctors said Mahatma Gandhi was still in critical condition today as the result of his three weeks' fast which was broken shortly after noon yesterday.

He will require absolute physical and mental rest, they said.

Gandhi was informed that the famous Siva temple no longer was barred to "untouchables." His fast was intended to direct attention to the restrictions against this lowest class of Hindus.

Mr. Pegler Views the Prospect of Life Without Work—in the American Soviet

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 30.—[Special.]—Life under the American soviet is going to be a very puzzling proposition to most of the comrades when the new deal becomes fully effective, but there is no doubt that the citizens will enjoy themselves as soon as they get the hang of things.

The trouble with the Russian soviet system has been that it has sought to compel the citizens to work, sometimes resorting to enforced labor, whereas under the American plan enforced loafing will be held over the heads of the comrades as a threat to work hogs who endanger the success of the new deal by indulging a selfish passion for toil.

Government loafing camps will be established for this purpose in which offenders will be compelled to loaf at high speed for long terms under the critical eye of expert loafers appointed for this purpose under the patronage system. There are those who contend that there is no reforming a born workman, and that the only good workman is a dead one, but the majority of the commissars still hold to a rather lofty theory that diligent tendencies can be cured under proper conditions.

Instructors in Loafing.

In accordance with this visionary idea the inmates of the camps will be given instruction in the true art of loafing, and there is a hope that the younger element, at least, will produce many cases of complete and permanent reform. There is some opposition to the idea of throwing young offenders, who may have been guilty of trivial work, into the company of confirmed laborers, and it is possible that some plan of segregation will be adopted.

At any rate the personnel of the camps undoubtedly has been selected with an eye to the redemption rather than the punishment of the work hog. Commissar James A. Farley, who personally selected the wardens, deputy wardens, guards, and instructors, has chosen the entire corps from among the commissioners, deputy commissioners, inspectors, and secretaries of the regular Democratic organization of New York City. There is a feeling in the soviet that it would be useless to search further for ideal appointees for these positions, although a number of Washington press agents and old boys with lobbyist jobs have been talking of organizing a protest to demand a fair share of the patronage for their group.

Work will not be entirely abolished just yet. During the first phase of the new deal, white collar types will be encouraged to work, as the soviet will be almost entirely dependent on their income tax payments for revenue to run the soviet and support the other groups in idleness. In fact, enforced labor will be practiced on the white collar comrades, according to a sliding scale. A comrade living in New York state, for instance, will be required to work about two months a year for the government, one month to earn his federal tax and another to earn his state tax.

It is the ultimate plan of the soviet to relieve the pressure on the white collar comrades and open the field of loafing to them by repealing the 18th amendment and substituting liquor revenue for income tax revenue, but there may be some hitch in this program. Such states as Mississippi, Arkansas and Alabama outside of the city of Birmingham, do not pay any income taxes, and it is no particular temptation to them to repeal prohibition so as to reduce the income tax. If a sufficient number of these mooching states which do not pay any income tax refuse to ratify the repeal the white collar comrades will be sentenced to work until they die and to put in longer periods of enforced labor for the government every year as the tax rate goes up. The white collar comrades are always one year in arrears with their tax payments, so it is always necessary to work one more year to pay the tax on last year's income.

Revising Newspapers.

The business community may have some difficulty adjusting itself to a system of regulated competition or rotation of orders under the new deal, but the business men will never know what they can do in this regard until they try. The advertising manager of a newspaper may find it hard at first to tell an advertiser "We cannot accept your ad, as we have already booked our legal quota for the week, and you will have to take your business over to the Daily Eagle." Still, it will have to be done or the commissars will send around for the advertising manager and do something severe to him. The news editor probably will find it just as hard to adjust himself to a scheme which forbids him to publish the story of a great disaster on the ground that he already had his share of news.

But it can be done. Your correspondent recalls a time when he was working for the United Press and called up the editor of a German paper with a flash on a story of cosmic importance.

"Never mind telling me," the German editor said. "We got already tonight enough news."

SAM HUNT GOES TO TRIAL TODAY ON GUN CHARGE

Sam Hunt, Capone follower known as the golf bag gunman, is scheduled to go on trial before a jury in the Municipal court today on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon.

He was arrested several weeks ago on suspicion. At the time, the police asserted, he tried to throw away a revolver. Hunt furnished nominal bond for his release. The bond was raised to $10,000 later. Edward Shanock, who was seized with Hunt, faces charges of disorderly conduct and is also expected to submit his case to a jury today.

Four notorious hoodlums already have been tried and convicted on gun carrying charges. They have received the maximum sentence of one year in the Bridewell and a $300 fine.

PECORA ORDERED TO TELL PLANS IN MORGAN QUIZ

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 30.—[Special.]—The Pecora inquiry into J. P. Morgan & Co. will resume again tomorrow morning with the official sanction of President Roosevelt who has said it must be pushed to the limit.

Ferdinand Pecora, counsel to the senate committee of inquiry, returned to the capital from New York this afternoon to learn that earlier in the day the committee had agreed to the demand of Senator Glass [Dem., Va.] that the members be told in advance where they are headed. It was the Virginia senator who last week broke into the hearings with vehement protests at the tactics being pursued.

Seward and Whitney Called.

Tomorrow's session will continue the inquiry into the Morgan firm's interest in the United corporation, eastern utilities holding company, with George H. Seward, president of the corporation, and George Whitney, Morgan partner and director of the corporation, scheduled to take the stand.

Another list of "close friends" is promised, these being persons to whom Morgan & Co. gave the opportunity to purchase United corporation shares at prices below the market.

The Morgan case is expected to be concluded this week. Following it at an interval of a few days will be an inquiry into Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and then into Dillon, Read & Co. and the Chase Securities company. Plans are being made to follow up with an investigation into investment trusts and then once more into stock exchange practices.

To date, the inquiry has consumed some $120,000 of senate funds.

Long Assails Douglas.

Once more, the investigation had its repercussion on the floor of congress when Senator Huey Long [Rad., La.], replied to rumors that Budget Director Lewis W. Douglas would take the place of Secretary of the Treasury Woodin by charging that Mr. Douglas, too, had Morgan connections. The Douglas family fortune in Arizona, he said, was invested in the Phelps, Dodge corporation which he characterized as under Morgan control.

"If we are going to the house of Morgan to get another secretary of the treasury," he shouted, "then we'd better keep the man we've got."

Senator Henry F. Ashurst [Dem., Ariz.] arose to defend Mr. Douglas.

Senator Long assailed the Arizona senator with scripture.

"All I'm doing," he said, "is to remind the senate that 'where your treasure is there will your heart be also.'"

DISCLOSE POLICE BROKE 11 LAWS IN JAILING GIRL

Violations Are Discovered After Investigation.

An investigation, carried out over a period of ten days, has disclosed that the police violated at least eleven ordinances, statutes, or constitutional provisions in their treatment of Miss Lilyan Zagel, 18 years old, 1357 North Rockwell street.

Miss Zagel was taken into custody on the evening of May 19 after an automobile she was driving struck and slightly injured a 4 year old boy. She went to the boy's home immediately after the accident, reported to his mother what had happened, gave her name and the license number of the car.

What Happened to Her.

Yet after she was arrested the following things happened to her:

She was denied bail. She was placed in a cell with an insane woman and forced to stay there. She was held imprisoned for 24 hours. She was refused food unless she purchased it herself. She was conveyed in a patrol wagon from the West North avenue station to the Racine avenue station without a matron as chaperon. She was subjected to coarse and insolent language.

THE TRIBUNE laid the facts before one of its own attorneys and asked him what right the police had to do these things.

"No right whatever," replied the lawyer.

The attorney then was asked these questions:

What laws did the police violate? What sections of the constitution were violated, what state laws, city ordinances, rules of court and of the police department were broken by the police in subjecting Miss Zagel to this treatment?

Lists 11 Law Violations.

These were the attorney's answers:

1. Arresting the girl without a warrant.
2. Holding her at the West North avenue police station when there was no warrant against her.
3. Refusing to book her; that is, to place a formal charge against her so that she might be admitted to bail.
4. Holding her in a squad room without a matron being present.
5. Taking her in a police patrol to the Racine avenue station without a matron to accompany her.
6. Holding her at the Racine avenue station without warrant or booking.
7. Refusing to book her when repeatedly requested to do so.
8. Placing her in a cell with an insane woman.
9. Refusing to take her out of the cell when repeatedly requested to do so.
10. Giving her no food from 7 o'clock at night until 10 o'clock next morning.
11. Giving her food only when she paid for it.

Citations from the Laws.

Following are citations showing the law violations committed by the police:

The constitution of the United States, amendment 5, says: "No person . . . shall be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law."

The constitution of Illinois, article 2, section 2: "No person shall be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law."

Illinois Revised Statutes, Smith-Hurd, chapter 38, section 657: "An arrest may be made by an officer . . . without a warrant . . . when a criminal offense has in fact been committed and he has reasonable ground for believing that the person to be arrested has committed it."

The police, investigation showed, did not have reasonable grounds for believing that Miss Zagel had committed a criminal offense.

Illinois Revised Statutes, Smith-Hurd, chapter 38, section 660: "When an arrest is made without a warrant . . . the person arrested shall, without unnecessary delay, be taken before the nearest magistrate in the county . . ."

Judge John F. O'Connell of the Municipal court was holding night court on the evening [May 19] of the arrest of Miss Zagel, in room 1128, city hall. Other judges held court the next morning but Miss Zagel was not booked until the evening of May 20.

Food Three Times a Day.

Illinois statutes, Smith-Hurd, chapter 75, section 16, provide that prisoners shall be given food three times a day and as much clean water as may be necessary for drink and personal cleanliness.

The revised Chicago code, section 316, says: "The matrons assigned to any detention home shall have charge of all female prisoners at such detention home, and under the direction of the commanding officer in immediate command of the precinct in which any such detention home is located, may assign to separate cells or dormitories such female prisoners as are first offenders and those whom they believe worthy of separation from those who are frequent offenders or disturbers."

Miss Zagel was locked up at the Racine avenue police station with Mrs. Josephine Zawicki, who raved and screamed all night long in fear that some one was going to kill her. Miss Zagel pleaded to be removed to another cell but this was not done. Mrs. Zawicki was removed the next day to the Psychopathic hospital and last Thursday was committed to the Dunning asylum.

The Question of Bail.

Rule 32 of the Chicago Municipal court provides that "when a person is arrested for . . . causing personal injury such person shall immediately be taken to the nearest police station and the usual bond with surety required."

Under the Illinois revised statutes, chapter 37, section 406, any captain, lieutenant, or sergeant of police is empowered to accept bail "before or after complaint or information is filed."

Illinois revised statutes, Smith-Hurd, chapter 38, section 609: "All persons shall be bailable before conviction except for capital offenses where the proof is evident or the presumption great."

Police Regulations Cited.

Excerpts from the rules and regulations of the Chicago police department follow:

"Lieutenants shall at all times have a full knowledge of all arrests made. They are responsible for all persons held, whether they are booked or not. They shall be responsible for the safekeeping, care, and comfort of prisoners in custody.

"Female prisoners conveyed from stations to courts or other places shall be accompanied by matrons or policewomen. . . ."

"Matrons must invariably extend every possible kindness to prisoners in their charge.

"Police officers are required to . . . refrain from insolent language.

"The right to arrest without warrant does not exist, except in cases where the offense has been freshly committed and the offender is in flight, or there is reasonable danger of escape unless arrested at once.

"In all cases of arrests with or without warrants the offender shall be brought before a judge of the Municipal court as expeditiously as possible, as an officer becomes a trespasser if he delays longer than the necessity of the case compels."

History of the Case.

Briefly, the facts found in the investigation of Miss Zagel's case were these:

On May 19 at 5:15 p. m. Miss Zagel and Miss Hilda Freeman, 17 years old, 1345 North Lawndale avenue, left Miss Zagel's home in an automobile owned by Miss Zagel's father. A half block away, in front of 1310 North Rockwell street, the car struck Hyman Muslin, 4 years old, who lives a 2621 Evergreen avenue, a few doors from Rockwell street.

They boy's mother ran out and carried him into their home. Miss Zagel and Miss Freeman went along and remained in the Muslin home for an hour, they said, and then went home. They said Miss Zagel gave her name, address and automobile license number to the Muslins. The Muslin boy's mother and father said the girls came into their home and remained for a while. They made no complaint about not getting Miss Zagel's name.

Girl Is Taken to Station.

The boy was taken to a nearby hospital. An hour later three policemen, Walter Green, Patrick Griffin and Eugene Piggott, went to Miss Zagel's home and told her she must go with them to the West North avenue police station to make a statement. Lieut. John Hardy was in charge of the station.

The statement was taken. Miss Zagel's father and mother were there. Relatives of the Muslin boy were there. Late in the evening Miss Zagel was sent to the Racine avenue station where there is a woman's detention home.

Miss Sarah Kroll was the matron in charge. She said she had put Mrs. Zawacki in a cell and the woman's condition disturbed her so she called a doctor but the doctor said he was busy and unless the woman was violent it wasn't necessary for him to come.

Miss Kroll said she was leaving at 10:45 o'clock when Miss Zagel arrived and that Mrs. Margaret Jones, the matron who succeeded her on duty, had charge of putting Miss Zagel in a cell. Mrs. Florence Johnson, who came on duty next morning, said she put Miss Zagel in another cell when the girl said she had not slept all night because of the demented woman with her.

Father Appeals to Judge.

Miss Zagel's father tried in many ways to get his daughter released and finally appealed to Judge Thomas Green in the traffic court. Judge Green called the West North avenue police station and demanded that the girl be booked. At 5 o'clock that night [Saturday, May 20] Miss Zagel was released on bail, a charge of reckless driving having been placed against her. Judge Green dismissed this charge the following Monday morning for want of prosecution.

It was found that the Muslin boy's injuries were slight, a bruised nose and a discolored eye. He was kept in the hospital for a week.

Capt. Frank Matchett of the West North avenue station made a report to Police Commissioner Allman saying the police acted in good faith, having had reason to believe the Muslin boy would die. The police claimed that Miss Zagel had refused to give her name to any one and had tried to flee from the scene of the accident—a half block from her home. Commissioner Allman ordered a further investigation.

THE TRIBUNE sought to learn if it is customary for the police to hold motorists involved in accidents where death or injury occurs. It was found that no set rule is in force, commanding officers using their own judgment. It was then that an attorney for THE TRIBUNE was asked to give the legal opinions stated above, in the interest of motorists as well as pedestrians and the general public.

DRIVE BEGUN TO GET OUT REPEAL VOTE IN COOK COUNTY TOWNS

A drive to get out the repeal vote in the country towns of Cook county next Monday, June 5, when delegates are to be elected to the Illinois convention July 10 to ratify the 21st amendment repealing national prohibition, was launched yesterday by the Republican organization. William Busse of Mount Prospect, county commissioner and manager of the country town end of the campaign, addressed precinct workers and voters in an open letter.

Mr. Busse laid emphasis on the point that at next Monday's polls the voters will get what they have been clamoring for since prohibition went into effect, namely, an opportunity to vote upon retention or repeal.

VISITING TAXI OWNERS LIKE CHICAGO RATES

Fares Are Lower in Other Cities.

The convention song of the National Association of Taxicab Owners, assembled yesterday at the Hotel Sherman for their annual meeting, might have been written as a little ditty entitled: "O, How We'd Like to Have Those Juicy Chicago Rates."

Questioning of a number of members revealed the taxicab industry in a doleful state throughout the Union. Not a single owner would admit that he was making money. Chicago, with the highest rates in the country, was pointed to as a paradise for taxicab companies.

There was no talk, however, of any taxicab companies going out of business. The owners were asked why they persisted in operating a business which, according to their assertions, was ruinous. They replied with comment about "service to the public."

Rates Low in Baltimore.

W. W. Cloud, president of the association and head of a cab company in Baltimore, declared that competition there had reduced rates to 25 cents for the first three and one-half miles and 5 cents a half mile thereafter.

These rates furnish a contrast to Chicago's rates of 25 cents for the first quarter mile and 10 cents for each half mile thereafter, Mr. Cloud admitted.

"If the competition is so keen, it appears as if there were some money in the business even at your Baltimore rates," an interviewer remarked.

"Well, the cut rate companies are using drivers who can't afford not to take a job even if for only a few dollars a week," Mr. Cloud replied.

All the taxicab company heads shied away from discussing the agitation in Chicago for a reduction in rates, especially during the World's Fair, when visitors will experience the high rates charged here by the two companies which have a virtual monopoly of the taxicab business in the city.

Blame the Competition.

"Unfair competition" seemed to be the favorite phrase of the conventioners. Harry C. Davis of Washington, D. C., said that the rates of 20 cents per zone in the capital, a ride of 8 miles for 20 cents being possible under that system, was causing the taxicab companies in Washington bitter anguish.

"Now if we had the Chicago rates!" remarked Mr. Davis with a sigh in which he was joined by Mr. Cloud and M. R. Marston, general counsel for a cab company in Philadelphia. The rates in Philadelphia are 15 cents when the cab flag is pulled and 5 cents a fifth mile thereafter, Mr. Marston explained.

"We need a scientific rate such as Chicago has," said Mr. Marston. "Under your rates when a man rides a mile you've got him for 45 cents. It is the finest system in the world."

Nevada Elects 600 Repeal Delegates and Only 1 Dry

Reno, Nev., May 30.—(AP)—Additional returns from Saturday's primary election indicated only a single delegate out of the more than 600 selected had been pledged to vote for retention of the eighteenth amendment. The delegate is George Fawcett, elected from the tiny district of Lund to attend the county convention in White Pine county next June. Fawcett is a leader in the Latter Day Saints church.

$1,338 TAKEN IN 2 GOLD COAST HOTEL HOLDUPS

Robberies Laid to Same Bandit Gang.

Two gold coast hotels, the Ambassador West, 1300 North State street, and the Pearson hotel, 190 East Pearson street, were held up yesterday afternoon, supposedly by the same gang of bandits. The robbers got a total loot of $1,338.

At 2:30 o'clock, while the Memorial day parade was going on in Michigan avenue, with police concentrated along the line of march, the gunmen drove up to the Pearson hotel, just outside the police zone. Three of the robbers entered the lobby. They forced James C. Taylor, the cashier, and Miss Betty Rockwell, telephone operator, to stand to one side, and also shoved aside A. G. Jones, uncle of Palmer Jones, manager of the hotel. Then they cleaned out the cash drawer, getting $288.

About two hours later five bandits appeared in front of the Ambassador West hotel. Four of them entered the lobby and the ringleader, menacing Ralph Parker, 2151 Orchard street, the clerk, took possession of the cash box. This netted him $1,050.

The Ambassador hotel robbery was reported immediately. That of the Pearson was not reported until night, Manager Jones explaining he had been busy gathering data on it. Police are convinced the same robbers were on both crimes.

SHOUSE EXPECTS REPEAL VOTE BY 37 STATES IN '33

Washington, May 30.—[Special.]—The belief that at least thirty-seven states or one more than necessary for ratification, will have voted upon the question of repealing the eighteenth amendment before the end of 1933 was expressed today by Jouett Shouse, president of the association against the prohibition amendment.

"We are encouraged," he said, "to believe that there is an overwhelming and urgent popular demand that the processes of repeal should be completed during 1933. The economic situation of the country requires it. We do not concede the loss of a single state in which an opportunity is afforded for an expression of the popular will."

Mr. Shouse pointed to the fact that eight states already have voted for repeal and that twenty-three others have set elections for 1933, or a total of thirty-one. Six other states, he said, were definitely expected to set elections for the current year, bringing the total to thirty-seven and there appeared to be a chance of 1933 elections in at least three more.

LEGISLATURE TO ATTACK COUNTY TAX PROBLEMS

Horner Reveals Plan of New Sales Levy.

Important legislative developments concerning the sales tax and the efforts to clear up Cook county's muddled tax collection and public debt situation were disclosed last evening as Gov. Horner left for Springfield, where the legislature will reconvene today.

Gov. Horner has rechristened the sales tax. It is now an "occupational tax upon retail merchants." The pending bill, now on second reading in the senate, which at a 2 per cent rate will yield $38,000,000 a year, the governor estimated, seeks to overcome the unconstitutional provisions of the old bill by including gasoline and farm products sold on the farm at retail in the taxable category.

Bill to Be Amended.

The bill is to be amended this week, Gov. Horner said, to provide that collections for the first eight months after the bill becomes effective shall go wholly to the state emergency relief commission to be used for relief of the idle wherever the funds are needed. Thereafter the sales tax collections will be distributed to counties on a basis of population, with the provision that the funds shall be used for reduction of general property taxes. The pending bill, as was the case with the one declared unconstitutional, becomes inoperative after July 1, 1935.

Bills for the proposed $40,000,000 issue of school bonds to retire outstanding school tax warrants, and for the consolidation of the board of tax appeals with the office of the county assessor in hearings on tax complaints are also to be introduced this week.

Mayor Kelly, who conferred over the week-end with Gov. Horner on these bills, said that it was proposed that $10,000,000 of the school bonds run for a ten year term, and the remainder of the issue for twenty years. He added that the city administration did not contemplate asking at this time for a similar bond issue for retirement of city tax warrants.

Difference of Positions.

The position of the city, he pointed out, is considerably different from that of the school board because of the reserve funds held by the city. These permit it to invest its aggregate of funds in tax warants, and to hold them there until they are redeemed by taxes. The school board, lacking such a reserve, must sell its warrants to the public and must find immediate means of redeeming them to preserve its credit.

Regarding the assessment offices, Mayor Kelly said that it is contemplated to retain the same personnel, Assessor J. L. Jacobs and Members Fred W. Brummel and George F. Nixon of the board of appeals, until they are replaced by popular election next year. The new organization of their offices, however, should promote harmony which has been lacking in the past in their dealing with assessment questions, the mayor believes.

VOLIVA, HIT BY A RECEIVERSHIP, PLANS COMEBACK

Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer of Zion City, whose Zion Institutions and Properties, Inc., were placed in receivership in the Federal court on Monday and who personally was named in a bankruptcy action at the same time, predicted yesterday that he would stage a comeback.

"In 1907 when I came to Zion the city's assets were only 83 cents," said the overseer. "In 1927 its assessed valuation was 10 million dollars and in 1932 six million. That shows what I have done. I'll do the same again as soon as there's an upturn."

Voliva said that Zion had been hit by the depression like other cities and organizations. He asserted that more money was owed him than he owed. The receivership action showed that the assets of the Zion corporation amounted to $2,000,000 against liabilities of $800,000. The assets are largely frozen, however.

STATE OR COUNTY SEEN 'SUNK' BY CANAL PROJECT

Cost of Sewage Plant Put at $127,000,000.

The latest estimate of the cost of completing the sanitary district sewage disposal project, which the U. S. Supreme court has ruled must be financed by the state of Illinois if the district is unable to find funds, is $127,000,000. The average annual cost of amortizing a public bond issue of that amount, over a period of twenty years, is estimated at $12,500,000.

With the governments of Cook county already running in the red as a result of exaggerated estimates of the amounts they may realize from taxes, the addition of this amortization payment would increase their estimated deficit for operations during the present year by 16.8 per cent. The figures follow:

|---|---|
| Cook county governments plan to spend | $263,335,000 |
| Less 1933 tax collections and other revenue | 189,029,000 |
| Leaving an indicated deficit of | $ 74,306,000 |
| Proposed sanitary bond interest and amortization | $ 12,500,000 |
| Total estimated 1933 deficit if cost is borne in Cook county | $ 86,806,000 |

Plight of the State.

If, on the other hand, the state of Illinois is to bear the $127,000,000 cost of the sanitary work, it appears that the state would be pushed into the same financial bog in which Cook county now struggles. The general tax revenue income and disbursements for the state are:

| Estimated revenue. | Estimated 1933 disbursements. | Deficit Dec. 31, 1933. |
|---|---|---|
| $23,009,000 | $38,309,000 | $15,300,000 |

Other estimated revenue from motor fuel and other excises and the disbursements of the state from these funds in 1933 are:

|---|---|---|
| $85,344,000 | $66,125,000 | $19,219,000 |

These two tables show that the estimated total balance of state funds at the end of the year will be $3,919,000. Subtracting the $12,500,000 for sanitary district bond amortization and interest, the state's deficit [if the state bears the cost of the sanitary work] will be $8,581,000.

Basis of Estimates.

Joseph J. Rice, state director of finance, based the estimate of resources on the balances on hand Jan. 1 last [the tax supported funds already showed a deficit], plus tax collections at 85 per cent downstate and at 40 per cent of the 1931 levy in Cook county. To date Cook county collections are only 38 per cent.

CORN SEEDING FAR BEHIND, MIDWEST REPORTS REVEAL

Illinois Planting Less than Half of Normal.

Predictions, made in mid-May, that the planting of the corn crop in the middle west would be extremely late were borne out by reports from several states yesterday.

Not more than two-thirds of the normal acreage in Iowa has been planted and less than half the normal acreage in Illinois and Indiana. In the latter states large areas are still too wet to be cultivated and seeded.

One of the natural results of the inability to plant the corn in time to guarantee maturity before frost has been the turning of many farmers to other crops. Soy bean acreage in the corn belt is said now to be limited only by the amount of beans available for planting. There has been a great increase in the price of beans and also in the price of quickly maturing varieties of seed corn.

Records of the Chicago weather bureau yesterday showed that in thirty days of May a total of 5.03 inches of rain had fallen and that there was precipitation on twenty-two of the days. The normal precipitation for May is 3.54 inches.

The average daily departure from normal temperatures in May was 2.6 degrees. The highest point was 86 on the 23d and the lowest 40 on the 3d.

Today, according to the official forecast, is to be fair and moderately cool.

HOLD UP EVANSTON GARAGE.

MINNEAPOLIS State at Jackson CHICAGO ST. PAUL

4 ESTATES GAIN 34 MILLION BY RISE IN STOCKS

Boom Saves 2 from Tax Confiscation.

The recent stock exchange boom has increased the value of market holdings in the estates of four prominent Chicagoans by an aggregate amount in excess of 34 million dollars. In two cases at least the increase in quoted values saved the estate from being virtually wiped out by state and federal inheritance taxes.

The increases were calculated from a comparison of the stock values at quotations as of the close of the exchanges on Monday evening, and the values of the same stocks at quotations at the time the various inventories were filed with Mitchell C. Robin, clerk of the Probate court. The calculations do not take into consideration any changes which executors may have made in the holdings since filing of the property lists.

Fortunes Almost Wiped Out.

The estates are those of Julius Rosenwald, who died on Jan. 6, 1932: William Wrigley Jr., who died on Jan. 26, 1932; Richard T. Crane Jr., who died on Nov. 7, 1931; and Joseph Leiter, who died on April 12, 1932. The continued slump in stock values after the death sof Mr. Rosenwald and Mr. Crane, combined with specific bequests made in their wills and the necessity of paying federal and state taxes on values as of the days of their deaths, at one time had almost wiped out their fortunes.

The largest gain was recorded by Mr. Rosenwald's estate. Consisting largely of 789,238 shares of Sears, Roebuck & Co. stock, this estate has not only regained all the losses suffered since Mr. Rosenwald's death, but it actually now is more valuable than it was at that time.

The stock was quoted at 30 when he died. It had declined to 10¼ on June 24, 1932, when the inventory was filed. On Monday the stock closed at 30½. The inventory lists an even score of utility and other class AA stocks, which were unencumbered. These, along with a block of the Sears, Roebuck & Co. stock, were valued at $15,823,725 on the day of Mr. Rosenwald's death. When the inventory was filed they had shrunk in values to $7,054,647. On Monday they were worth $17,924,784.

Stocks Regain Value.

The inventory also listed stocks which included a large block of the Sears holdings, posted as collateral on loans, loaned outright or posted to guarantee the stock accounts of Sears, Roebuck & Co. employés. These stocks were worth $13,592,907 on the day of his death. They dwindled to $5,275,000 in value when the inventory was filed. Monday they were recorded at $14,615,347.

Thus the gross gain of the stocks held in Mr. Rosenwald's estate since last June 24 amounts to $20,309,815. Life insurance, real estate, cash, and personal belongings which went to make up the rest of the estate naturally are not affected.

Under the terms of Mr. Rosenwald's will his heirs were directed to turn over to the Rosenwald family fund for the continuation of his charities, a sum of 11 million dollars within two years. This amount, plus an accumulation of almost $700,000 in state and federal taxes, would have left the heirs practically nothing of a fortune which amounted to more than 145 million dollars at the peak of the 1929 market, if payment had been forced last September.

Fortunately the market rise enables the heirs to pay the taxes and the continued rise has restored the estate.

Crane Estate Affected.

Of the 19 million dollar fortune of Richard T. Crane Jr., president of the Crane company, only $250,000 of the assets were held in one form or another outside of investments in listed securities. From the day of his death until April 18, 1932, when the inventory of the estate was filed, the market holdings diminished until they were worth only five million five hundred thousand dollars.

Under the terms of Mr. Crane's will he left nearly two million dollars to some 6,030 employés of his company. If the bequests and state and federal taxes amounting to $3,086,000 assessed against a 19 million dollar estate had been paid soon after the inventory filing, Mr. Crane's widow and his two children would have received less than $500,000.

On Nov. 7, 1931, Mr. Crane's 986,141 shares of Crane company common, and 4,936 of the same company's preferred stock were valued according to quotations at $18,250,000. By the following April 18, when the inventory was filed the stock was quoted at $5,000,000. Six other first class securities, largely bank stocks in the estate had shrunk from $500,000 to less than $250,000.

Monday's quotations placed the value of the Crane company stock at a trifle more than $10,000,000, the preferred being worth $253,736 and the common worth $9,861,410. There was a small advance in prices of the other stocks, all the holdings being quoted as worth $10,315,414. The gain since April, 1932, in Crane company stock alone amounted to $5,130,605. The gross gain was only $25,000 more.

Wrigley Stock Values Rise.

When the inventory of the estate of Mr. Wrigley was filed with the probate court clerk on Dec. 31, 1932, his Illinois holdings were listed at $30,000,000. Of these some $16,866,119 were in listed securities. The largest item in the estate was his block of 456,462 shares in the chewing gum company bearing his name. They were valued at $15,976,170. On Monday afternoon this block of stock had increased in value to $22,823,100. Another group of securities which had been quoted at $889,949 when the inventory was filed, were valued at $1,380,000 at Monday's market prices.

Leiter Shares Recover.

The personal fortune of Joseph Leiter, sportsman and financier, amounted to no more than $1,000,000 at the time of his death. Most of the wealth he controlled during his lifetime was left in trust by his father, Levi Leiter. The trust provides that the $30,000,000 estate of Levi Leiter shall be distributed ultimately to his grandchildren.

Joseph Leiter's holdings consisted of 42,692 shares of the Zeigler Coal and Coke Company, and a group of three securities of small value. While the coal company shares are not listed on the stock exchanges their bid and asked value has more than doubled since the inventory which listed them was filed on Dec. 11, 1932.

At that time the shares were bringing a price of $11. Now their price ranges between $23 bid and $25 asked. On this basis the coal shares are valued by attorneys at approximately $1,000,000. Assets which include real estate in Virginia, Maryland, and Louisiana constitute another $500,000 in assets which have not been enhanced in value by the boom.

SUPERHIGHWAY PLAN FAVORED IN FOX VALLEY

Towns Ask Project Be Put on Relief Program.

BY HAL FOUST.

The demand to place a west side elevated highway on President Roosevelt's $3,300,000,000 federal unemployment relief program comes not alone from Chicago. Lester J. Norris, president of the Fox Valley federation, yesterday added his name to those of Chicago civic and industrial leaders who are advocating the proposal. His federation speaks for the cities along the Fox river, forty miles west of the loop, cities including Elgin, St. Charles, Geneva, and Aurora.

"A modern traffic artery through Chicago's west side," said Mr. Norris, "would not be a local improvement. It would be an improvement of value to all of northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin. Men in Peoria and in Rockford have been especially enthusiastic in their attitudes toward this Chicago project.

Cites Importance of Highways.

"Motor highways today are more important than railroads for short distance transportation. Pavements are a vital factor in the future economic life of urban and rural residents alike. The pavements most important to residents of northern Illinois are those routes which link this territory with Chicago. The weak link in those routes today is the slow and dangerous street connections on the west side.

"The government, since its origin, has been spending millions every year for water transportation. In recent years, air service also has received a federal subsidy. President Roosevelt has shown a degree of appreciation for the new importance of highway transportation in allotting $400,000,000 for road work in his $3,300,000,000 program for federal construction.

"There is no place that the government could spend money that would benefit more taxpayers than to construct a west side elevated highway. In addition to creating jobs for thousands of men, it would save motorists millions annually in the loss from the delays and hazards of surface street travel into Chicago."

Huge Saving Is Seen.

A scientific and thorough survey under the direction of the council traffic committee found that $17,500,000 worth of elevated highway would save $2,395,000 a year in delay loss at a rate of 1.25 cents per vehicle per minute. This does not include the saving in gasoline, lubricants, tires, and maintenance, nor does it include the saving of lives and limbs.

To get the elevated project on the Roosevelt construction program it will be necessary for the state, the county and the city of Chicago to agree promptly upon a specific routing and design. The preliminary studies have covered years. Proponents of the project say that Gov. Horner, President Whealan of the Cook county board, and Mayor Kelly must act at once if the proposal is to succeed.

NEW PUBLIC PROJECTS EXPECTED TO INCLUDE RAILWAY VIADUCTS

The construction of viaducts to replace dangerous grade crossings of railroad tracks which have cost four lives on Cook county highways in the last few days probably will constitute one of the immediate projects upon which will be spent a part of Illinois' share of President Roosevelt's 3 billion 300 million dollar public works fund.

This was indicated yesterday by Harry A. Wheeler, chairman of Gov. Horner's committee which has been directed to examine and approve public projects for inclusion in the Illinois construction program. A new list of approved projects, with detailed data as to their cost and their utility, soon will be submitted to the governor.

"Construction of railroad viaducts is one of the most practical of the suggestions placed before the committee," said Mr. Wheeler yesterday. "Without doubt it is a necessity which has been neglected for lack of state funds. Recently, I understand, grade crossing deaths have been increasing along a line in proportion to the advance in automobile speeds."

The Illinois highway commission was authorized a year ago by the state legislature to make a survey of grade crossings in the state. Within the metropolitan area, including Cook and five surrounding counties, 37 dangerous grade crossings were marked for elimination.

2 Brothers Drowned in River Near Peoria

Peoria, Ill., May 30.—[Special.]—Robert Cottingham, 13, and his brother, Victor, 10, were drowned in the flooded waters of the Illinois river here while fishing. Heroic attempts of three men to save the young lads failed.

POLICE QUESTION M'ELROYS MORE OVER KIDNAPING

Kansas City, Mo., May 30.—(AP)—Police and government operatives today turned to Miss Mary McElroy for additional information upon which to base their search for the men who collected $30,000 for her safe return Sunday.

The daughter of City Manager H. F. McElroy also looked at several pictures from the rogues' gallery without identifying any as her abductors.

Chief of Detectives T. J. Higgins and federal agents sought more details of the house in which she was held captive.

Miss McElroy and her brother, Henry F. Jr., were questioned behind closed doors. The search for the house was concentrated in the vicinity of the Milburn Country club, where she was released.

Higgins said he had telegraphed police in another city to arrest a man in connection with the case.

Miss McElroy was forced by two men to leave her bath at her home Saturday morning, dress and accompany them. She was released late Sunday afternoon.

FATAL GUN FIRE SCATTERS CAFE CARD PLAYERS

New York, May 30.—[Special.]—One youth was killed and several others wounded by gunmen tonight. Four thugs broke up a card game with a volley of gunfire in an east side café. The gunmen scattered after firing about 12 shots at the players.

When police in radio cars reached the scene they found Charles [Buster] Dominico, 22, lying on the sidewalk in front of the café. He was dead.

Steve Palizzolo, proprietor of the café, told the police he had left the place a few minutes before the shooting to get change. He and the victims denied that they knew any reason for the attack.

WOMAN DROWNS, 4 SAVED IN FOX LAKE ACCIDENT

Mrs. Margaret Bowerman, 40 years old, 3549 North McVicker avenue, was drowned yesterday afternoon when a boat in which she was riding overturned in Mineola Bay, Fox Lake. Four other occupants of the boat, three of them women, clung to the craft until they were rescued.

At an inquest held by the Lake county coroner, Dr. John L. Taylor, testimony showed that the craft, a rowboat with an outboard motor, was some 600 feet out in the lake when the engine stopped. The women became alarmed, moved about in the boat and caused it to capsize.

Those rescued were Herman Babe, 2955 New England avenue; his wife, Mrs. Marian Hines, who lives in the 2700 block on New England avenue, and Mrs. Emma O'Hara, residing on Blackhawk street near Halsted street. The Babes had invited the three women to spend the holiday at their cottage on Petite lake, near Antioch, and had taken them out for a ride in the boat.

Alexander Korecek, 6237 22d street, Berwyn, and William Yermacek, 1502 South 61st avenue, Cicero, saw the plight of the boat's passengers and went to the rescue. They also recovered the body of Mrs. Bowerman, and unsuccessful efforts at resuscitation were made.

Ronny Russell, 5 years old, son of Roy Russell, 8205 South Ada street, was drowned yesterday when he fell into the Illinois river in Starved Rock state park, near Ottawa, Ill. His body was recovered later at the dam, about 40 rods from Starved Rock. The boy was picnicking with members of his family when he fell into the river.

ILLINOIS PEOPLE FIND THEIR OWN SHRINE AT FAIR

Filled with Treasures of State's History.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

Bright children—and aren't we all?—can learn more and learn it more joyfully by spending half an hour in the Illinois building at the World's Fair than can be learned in half a day over schoolbooks.

This little palace is shrine for the regimental flags under which father marched in the world war, memorial to Abraham Lincoln, theater, and schoolhouse.

Those gold-laden, solemn flags in the glittering rotunda! Take a good look, for you will never see them again except by traveling two hundred miles to Springfield, where for fifteen years they have been kept under lock and key in glass cases in the Hall of Flags of the Centennial building.

"Move those flags to the Fair? Certainly not!" exclaimed Adjt. Gen. Black when the transfer was proposed.

Herrick Hammond Wins.

But Herrick Hammond, architect of Illinois Host house, had his way, as he usually does. He made spacious promises. He devised cellophane cases in which the flags are shielded from dust and damp. He said they would be constantly guarded.

Adjt. Gen. Black surrendered.

So the flags are here. They represent thirty-seven Illinois regiments and utter an incomparably significant, thrilling and triumphant welcome to visitors from the one hundred and two Illinois counties from which those regiments were recruited.

Three of the counties are of an area of more than a thousand square miles each, and each of six more of them is nearly that.

Illinois is more than a commonwealth. It is a realm of nearly eight million people, of more than fifty-six thousand square miles, and of one hundred and fifteen years of state history.

Lorado Taft's Gem.

Now stand at the south doorway of the lounge of Illinois summertime parlor for the people and look down a 200 foot vista of stained glass windows, golden inscriptions, deep little dioramas that seem like delicate water colors, historic flags, bronze tablets and mural paintings.

A copy in some white composition of Lorado Taft's "Lincoln the Advocate" rewards your gaze.

It is beautifully placed against a black background. Hidden flood lights subtly illumine it. The daring effect, but not a bizarre effect, makes people gasp—that gleaming white against dead black, and the streams of golden light. There it stands serenely to teach you that our Lincoln was a great—and honest—lawyer as well as a great statesman. Mr. Taft's intention is far more strikingly brought out by this adroit placing and lighting than it is in the statue's bronze version in Urbana. He says so himself.

The Blessing of "Little Phil."

Push on. Above yonder wide doorway hangs a little portrait fraught with annals of literature and painting. Thomas Buchanan Read, American poet who wrote "Sheridan's Ride," painted it from sittings Mr. Lincoln gave him in 1863. It is valued at fifty thousand dollars and is a generous loan for the period of the Fair by C. H. Kunning, New Bremen, O.

Just under your eyes a document beautifully ties up with the poet's arresting portrait of Lincoln. It lies enfolded amid a mass of originals and facsimiles in a glass case to the right of the wide doorway. In it President Lincoln congratulates Gen. Sheridan on one of the victories over Jubal A. Early that were to culminate in Sheridan's ride from Winchester and in Read's poem that did more to immortalize Sheridan than his victories did.

Lincoln writes happily, impulsively to "Little Phil," saying, "Have just heard of your great victory. God bless you all, officers and men. Strongly inclined to come up and see you."

You will like Read's portrait. He painted as he wrote—feelingly. Such illustrious men as Robert Browning, Tennyson, Thackeray, Bryant, and Longfellow gave him sittings.

A Temple of Treasures.

For such treasures and many more of equal interest the dainty little Illinois Host house is the receptacle—Leonard Volk's death mask of Lincoln and his cast of the hands that guided the destinies of an anxious people, Lincoln letters from Gov. Horner's and Oliver Barrett's collections, Lincoln's house slippers, his watch chain, one of his law books, daguerreotypes of him, and a reproduction of the living room of his home at Eighth and Jackson streets, Springfield.

All is animated—Mrs. Bond Lowe, Chicago, moving about and explaining, in a black and green gown copied from one of 1858 in the Chicago Historical society's collection; Benjamin Stoneberger, in black stock and swallow tail coat, helping her; J. F. Cornelius, art connoisseur, who organized this Lincoln exhibition, looking in to see 300 people a minute—yes, eighteen thousand an hour—passing through it yesterday afternoon, and O. E. Tronness, custodian, keeping a watchful eye for the inevitable souvenir thief.

Novel but Not Weird.

I called Mr. Hammond's building "little." Beneath the ramparts of the nearby stadium it looks tiny from outside, but within it is spacious, for it covers 13,500 square feet.

Visitors are charmed by it. Already they are saying, "This, at least, must be saved after the Fair. It would be a shame to tear it down." Like all State Architect Hammond's work, it combines stalwartness with grace, and it is in the novel modernistic strain without lapsing into grotesquerie.

The lounge on the left of the entrance is, as to its furnishings and general effects, the triumph of Mrs. Leni Stout, Springfield. It is in soft tones of brown. All is reticent and delicate, yet cozy. Its opulent stained windows, depicting scenes in Illinois history from Father Marquette to Amelia Earhart, are from Thomas O'Shaughnessy's studio.

In Maj. Hammond's triumph—the lofty flag-hung rotunda in tones of blue culminating in a lantern of orange, blue and silver—the majestic mural, "The Welcome of Illinois," is by Charles Hollaway, who many years ago did the "Symphony of Life" mural on the proscenium arch of the Auditorium. He has not lost his touch.

The Sage's Sayings.

The whole building is vocal with Lincoln, for lettered in gold on its interior walls are Springfield farewell, Gettysburg address, Second Inaugural, and that pithy anti-communist utterance by Lincoln which contains the line "Let not him who is houseless pull down the house of another, but let him labor diligently and build one for himself."

"Welcome house," as Gov. Horner calls it, comprises a central tower, touched with gold and spired with silver, and two pavilions, and its modernistic architecture has an underlying Greek theme in the columns and an Egyptian suggestion in the conventionalized treatment of the guardian eagles over the entrance. The outer walls are set with bas-relievos depicting artificers, inventors, and men of the professions by Leon Hermant, and with the names of 24 explorers, statesmen, soldiers, martyrs, inventors and social reformers illustrious in the history of Illinois—all very inspiriting and instructive.

It is home.

traffic arrangements were put to their first real test and——

Well, folks, as fellow boosters of the World's Fair, shall we face the facts and offer suggestions for improvement? All right. The traffic arrangements, under preparation for two years, were put to a test and found wanting.

At 8:30 o'clock last night the outer drive was virtually choked with automobiles from 31st street to 23d street. A solid mass of motor cars crawled north in low gear, a few feet at a time. From 18th street to Roosevelt road, there was a similar blockade. Radiators were boiling. But drivers were fairly good natured and there weren't many fenders dented.

Idling Drivers Partly to Blame.

Part of the blockade was due to motorists idling by the Fair grounds to see the brilliant lighting effects. After last night's experience, many of them won't repeat the drive unless they're going to the exposition.

Judge Thomas Green of the Traffic court has suggested that motorcycle police try to keep motorists from loafing on busy pavements. A spur to the laggards might relieve congestion. Traffic engineers also advise marking the lanes with paint so as to increase the capacity of the pavement.

A contributory cause of the outer drive congestion was the Chicago surface lines gangs laying track for an extension of the Cermak road street car lines over the 23d street viaduct and thence north, just east of the Illinois Central tracks, to a loop at the 18th street entrance to the exposition. This work is being carried on 24 hours a day with three shifts of men.

Michigan Avenue Jammed.

Michigan avenue, from Chicago avenue to Roosevelt road, was as jammed at 10 o'clock last night as it ever was in a morning or late afternoon rush hour. The projected progressive timing system for the stop and go lights, advocated for the last three years, would have helped but the engineers are now reluctant to install the new system because the installation would interfere with Fair traffic.

South of Washington street, Michigan avenue was blockaded by the buses shuttling between the loop and the Fair. These had to swing into the middle of the boulevard to get around taxicabs cruising at the curb. Any one but a taxicab driver would know what to do to correct this situation.

Maj. E. S. J. Irvine, head of the World's Fair transportation division, had expected congestion such as last night's, but he didn't expect it would be experienced until late in June after the schools were closed, the vacation season was at its height, and the big conventions were in session in Chicago. He has suggested that automobile owners leave their cars at home and use the street cars, buses, the Illinoic Central, or the elevated.

Bottleneck Jams Relieved.

While the cars were jammed on the immediate approaches to the Exposition, traffic was moving smoothly at the entrances to the city that have been the scenes of blockades on the evening of Memorial day in other years. This to a large extent was because folks stayed at home to attend the Fair instead of driving to inland lakes or country resorts for the holiday.

Some credit must also be given to the county highway police for their assistance to traffic at busy intersections. At Waukegan road and Dempster street, a famous bottleneck, Policeman John Ward kept cars moving. At Dempster street and Rand road, Policeman Glenn Heathcote waved traffic through stop signs to save delays. At River road and Northwest highway, a Des Plaines policeman with star No. 1 was keeping the cars unsnarled.

However, there were some bad places. The state's ill designed grade separation at North avenue and Mannheim road was puzzling drivers and there was a tangle of illegal maneuvers because the left turn as directed by signs is almost physically impossible.

A Policeman Needed.

At Lake street and Mannheim road, with stop signs for traffic in all four directions, there were delays that a policeman could have eliminated. At 7:25 p. m. a county highway policeman with star 1298 was sitting on a bench at a soft drink stand on the northeast corner, letting motorists get through the intersection the best they could.

At Roosevelt and Mannheim roads another notorious bottle neck, there was no policeman on duty at 7:35 p. m.

THE TRIBUNE roadster headed back for the loop in Roosevelt road and, out of curiosity, followed one of the official World's Fair route markers, part of the system of markers intended to guide visitors over the more desirable pavements to the Exposition grounds.

Instead of leaving Roosevelt road for one of the boulevards, as most drivers do who are familiar with highway conditions, the markers continued east. In Cicero Roosevelt road is so rough that a spring might be broken at 15 miles an hour. At Kedzie avenue illegal diagonal parking blocked all the street except the car tracks.

Bear Cub Escapes Cage at Fair; Caught in Tree

NEW YORK TROOPS FIGHT SOCIALISTS AT WAR MEMORIAL

New York, May 30.—[Special.]—A group of young Socialists was mobbed today in Mitchell square by a contingent of National Guardsmen and Veterans of Foreign Wars. The soldiers and veterans believed there had been an insult to the American flag. Two men required hospital treatment and several others were bruised.

The riot served as a prelude to the annual Memorial day observance at the war monument in the square. More than 2,000 persons saw the fight.

According to the veterans one of the Socialists tried to pull the flag from a colorbearer; another dragged a wreath from the monument. According to the Socialists they had just been standing there holding their placards.

MUSSOLINI FIRES ITALY'S ENVOY TO FAIR FROM PARTY

He was charged with negligence for failure to impede the recently revealed wholesale embezzlement of funds of the Luce institute, the government agency for controlling the production and distribution of motion pictures in Italy. The embezzlement occurred when he was president of the institute.

The baron was not implicated, but eight other officials of the institute were sentenced to confinement. Following his return from Chicago, the baron was relieved of the presidency. He is a former member of the grand council of fascism, former undersecretary of public works and was once a delegate to the league of nations assembly. At present he is a deputy in parliament.

The government charged directors of the Luce institute with embezzling millions of lire over a period of seven years.

THOUSANDS SEE CITY'S MEMORIAL DAY PROCESSION

Smiling G. A. R. Veterans Head Parade.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Preceded only by escorts of officials, mounted police, bands, and the Black Horse troop, rode the members of the Grand Army of the Republic at the head of the parade. At their head was Capt. William G. Wright, national commander of the G. A. R., who was grand marshal of the parade. Wearing the familiar black campaign hat with gold cord, Capt. Wright sat in an official car and chatted with a younger war veteran.

Old Veterans Happy.

Fifty-five members of the G. A. R. rode in the parade. Most of them wore their soft felt broad brimmed hats, many wore aged blue uniforms, and in most of their coat lapels were white carnations. They were a cheerful group of warriors, for the most part.

Whereas a few years ago it was the members of the G. A. R. who walked with faltering steps in Decoration day parades, many Spanish war veterans now marched hesitantly.

The parade units formed at Chestnut street and marched south to Roosevelt road. After the Black Horse troop rode Gov. Henry Horner, Mayor Edward J. Kelly, and State's Attorney Courtney in an open car. With Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, Rear Admiral Wat T. Cluverius, and other officials, they later reviewed the remainder of the parade from a reviewing stand opposite the Stevens hotel.

The Morgan Park Military academy band and marching cadets followed, wearing white and gray uniforms, after which the Woodlawn post, American Legion, band came. As escort to Capt. Wright were mounted police headed by Commissioner James P. Allman. An R. O. T. C. kiltie band and cadets of the Northwestern Military academy preceded the remaining G. A. R. men riding in cars.

Applause for Old Veterans.

Applause went up among the men and women and children lining the boulevard as the aged men peered out for the annual tribute, the memory of which sustains them during the year.

Woman marched next, women in white, bearing huge flags, women in gayly colored capes and caps carrying large drums, women in high heeled slippers, most of them members of auxiliaries to the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars. One gray haired woman who moved with difficulty was heard to mutter, "You can't keep up with those girls."

The Spanish War veterans, carrying their large banners of pale blue fringed with gold, came next, followed by Veterans of Foreign Wars. The latter included men of various campaigns. Khaki uniforms mingled with faded sailor suits not originally meant for bulging hips.

Boys' Band Makes Tunes.

Next came the Chicago Boys' club band, little fellows who blew horns with fervor and beat drums with frantic zeal. More women marched, and then a burst of applause greeted the neat blue and white uniforms and the sprightly music of the Board of Trade post, American Legion. Following came automobiles bearing disabled veterans from veterans' bureau hospitals.

The yellow pants and copper helmets, brave attire of the Bell post, American Legion, band, caught the glint of a sun which had emerged from billowy white clouds soon after the parade started. Next came the Northwest Park District band, made up of boys and girls flaunting blue and red capes.

American Legion drum and bugle corps and bands followed each other in a bright succession of color and sound. The Medill-Tribune kiltie band, playing reedy instruments in a brave manner; the Logan Square post drum and bugle corps, their drums gleaming in new red paint; the Northtown post, dressed in blue uniforms with gold braid, and the yellow and bright blue uniforms of the Melin-Romer post were spectacular.

Others were the Polish Legion of American Veterans, the Belgian-American War veterans, the French War veterans, and the Italian War veterans. One of the bands most loudly applauded was the Chicago Police post American Legion band, wearing their police uniforms.

Pay Tribute to Cermak.

In the morning a Memorial day ceremony was held at the tomb of the late Anton J. Cermak in the Bohemian National cemetery, Gov. Horner, Mayor Kelly, and State's Attorney Courtney attending. Capt. Frank H. Roberts, representative of President Roosevelt at A Century of Progress, laid on the tomb a simple wreath which he said had been sent by President Roosevelt for that purpose.

As part of the ceremony the bust of the late mayor, executed by the sculptor, Anton Vojech, was unveiled in the center of the cemetery.

More than 3,000 persons attended open air religious services at the Edward Hines Jr. Memorial hospital in Maywood in the morning. The Paulist choir, St. Mary's church, sang and a drum and bugle corps of the Chicago Police post, American Legion, provided military music.

Services at Fair.

Memorial services were held late in the afternoon in the court of the World's Fair Hall of Science. More than 5,000 persons listened to the singing by 500 choristers and a concert by the band of the Woodlawn American Legion post.

Making its first appearance, the American Legion "33 Chorus" of 250 voices from Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin, sang world war songs under the direction of Samuel Burkholder. Civil war songs were led by Frank Bennett. Among the groups under his direction were the Polish singers, Federal Glee club, Lawson Y. M. C. A. Glee club, German Singverein, Woodlawn Post Glee club, St. Henry's Catholic choir, and Kathryn Bennett ensemble. The program was arranged by Miss Anne Faulkner Oberndorfer, representing the Chicago Friends of Music, and R. C. Hurd, pageantry director of A Century of Progress.

CONFEDERATE VET JOINS CARBONDALE MEMORIAL SERVICE

Carbondale, Ill., May 30.—[Special.]—For the first time since the civil war the blue and gray sat together here as honored guests at a memorial service held at the spot where Gen. John A. Logan in 1866, then a resident of Carbondale, first suggested Memorial day be set aside.

A single confederate veteran, Eldridge Shelton, 95, was among the Union army veterans as they looked upon the services conducted under the auspices of the American Legion, which had invited Shelton to be an honored guest with those of the Union.

They heard eulogies to the dead of five wars buried in Woodlawn cemetery where trees today permitted only small rays of sunlight to filter. A minister said the closing words of a benediction, "We should join the hands of the gray and the blue now or soon it will be too late."

ROBOT LECTURES LIKE GENTLEMAN; INSIDES EXPOSED

Mechanical Man of Fair Teaches Physiology.

In a darkened exhibition room in the Hall of Science at the World's Fair a robot lectures every afternoon and evening on the mysteries of the most complex of all machines—the human body. They call this robot the "marvelous mechanical man," and the audience which crowds his lecture room every hour agrees that he is now misnamed.

This is no chattering doll on a ventriloquist's knee nor one of those stiff jointed, iron jawed monsters such as the popular science journals used to feature a few years ago. He is a handsome figure, ten feet tall, standing squarely in his No. 16 shoes, with the serious, intellectual face of a scientist, properly clad in soft gray flannels and a blue coat, thrown back from his broad shoulders to expose his shirt front.

A Most Amazing Robot.

He opens his discourse by explaining how the chemicals of the soil, assimilated in the form of food, are transformed by the digestive system into blood to energize the body. The robot speaking:

"Now, ladies and gentlemen, I shall swallow. You see the mouthful of food passing down the esophagus. The food is forced down by the contractions of the esophagus. Now you see the swallow entering the top door of my stomach. Watch my stomach contract to churn up the food."

The audience is amazed. For at the robot's first words, his shirt front has become transparent, exposing within him the heart, stomach, liver, pancreas, and other vital organs, all in natural color. Notwithstanding this exposure, the illusion of the robot's reality is preserved; his diction is as smooth as a radio announcer's, his lips move in perfect consonance with his words, and the movements of his head and arms are free and natural.

He makes a casual gesture towards the wall and at his word a shelf of carbohydrate foods is lit up. The sight of food has made him hungry, the robot explains, and caused his mouth to water. He cranes his head and points to a spot which lights up on his neck, showing the seat of the gland controlling the flow of saliva.

The robot points out that the top door of his stomach does not open readily if he is fidgety or excited. He demonstrates the action of gastric juices, telling his listeners that when the stomach contraction becomes too great, he grows nauseated. The audience almost expects him to show a wry face, but he doesn't.

Teachers Are Interested.

The lecture lasts twenty-one minutes. Some of the public school teachers and teaching nuns in the audience wait to hear it again, saying they have learned more physiology in a few moments from the robot than they could in weeks of ordinary classroom study.

"From the bottom of my mechanical heart I thank you all for your attention, and I wish you all good afternoon," the robot concludes.

The lights go up and the lecture room is cleared. One of the robot's class, more curious than the others, ventures behind the curtain to back stage. There he sees the maze of wires and motors which animate the robot, the phonograph record which provides his voice and a couple of the staff of German scientists, who made the robot.

The Germans are not inclined to talk about their handiwork. The robot, they seem to think, can speak for himself and his performance speaks for their skill.

The Queen of the World's Fair and her court of honor found time yesterday to tour two university campuses, learn how a planetarium works and attend a dinner in their honor. They even took an hour off to visit A Century of Progress grounds for lunch.

Miss Lillian Anderson of Racine, Wis., who won the title of queen in the contest conducted by THE TRIBUNE and THE TRIBUNE'S 15 associated newspapers, and her 50 attendants, first visited the Adler Planetarium, where Prof. Philip Fox, director, gave a lecture. Miss Anderson, by twisting a dial, made the stars appear in the canvas heavens of the lecture room. The group hurried over to the Fair grounds for lunch at the Pabst Blue Ribbon casino, where they were applauded enthusiastically.

Then came the tour of the University of Chicago campus, and a flying trip up the north shore to meet President Walter Dill Scott at Northwestern university. Last night they were guests of the Stevens hotel at a dinner.

The Program for Today.

The program for the queen and her court today begins with a trip to the Chicago Art institute, where they will be greeted by Director Robert B. Harshe.

After lunch the girls will be taken for a tour of north shore parks ending with visits to Fort Sheridan where they will be received by Brig. Gen. F. C. Bolles, and at the Great Lakes Training station, where they will review 500 blue jackets. Rear Admiral Wat T. Cluverius will be host.

The cellophane ball at 7 o'clock tonight at the Drake hotel in honor of the Queen and her court will be one of the most brilliant affairs in their visit here. The Gold Coast room has been transformed with dazzling decorations of cellophane. Clyde McCoy and his orchestra, heard each night over W-G-N, will provide the music for the dancing and W-G-N radio stars will perform. The public has been invited.

To Be Guests of Racine.

Mayor W. J. Swaboda of Racine issued an official invitation yesterday to Miss Anderson and her court to be the guests of Racine next Saturday at a civic reception in their honor. Plans have been made for the Queen and her party to leave Chicago at 11:30 a. m. Saturday. Upon their arrival they will board the five TRIBUNE floats in which they rode in the parade opening A Century of Progress, and will be escorted through the main streets by bands and civic delegations.

A public banquet will follow, Mayor Swaboda said. An invitation has been extended Gov. A. G. Schmedeman of Wisconsin to ride in the parade.

After the banquet and reception the Queen and her court will leave Racine at 4 p. m. to return to Chicago.

CROWD THRILLED BY WORLD'S FAIR NIGHT OF WAR

Army Stages Show at Soldiers' Field.

The first of twelve nightly performances of the annual United States army tournament was given last night before an enthusiastic crowd at Soldiers' field as part of A Century of Progress Exposition. The show will be repeated nightly up to and including June 10.

Picked troops from Fort Sheridan, Ill., Fort Brady, Mich., and Jefferson Barracks, Mo., participated in twelve events, depicting all aspects of military combat, including infantry and cavalry attacks, field artillery, aerial attacks, and anti-aircraft defense, Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commander of the Sixth corps army area, and Rufus C. Dawes, president of the World's Fair, were guests of honor.

Air Fleet in Maneuvers.

The tournament opened with a demonstration of aerial fighting formations and maneuvers by twelve pilots of the 17th squadron of the first pursuit group of the army air corps, permanently stationed at Selfridge field. The pilots zoomed down over Soldiers' field in bombing formation, the whine of the motors of their Curtiss fighting planes awing the crowd.

As the planes swooped down in the dusk, the several thousand troops in the show marched out for the grand entry. The 14th cavalry opened the performance with a series of intricate drills and maneuvers, featuring saber attacks, and other movements. The drill terminated with a wild charge of the shouting cavalrymen.

Next on the program was a demonstration by battery of eight 75 millimeter guns, horsedrawn in dashing maneuvers at full gallop. There followed a jumping competition by mounted officers over an Olympic course.

Crack Battalion Drills.

One of the most applauded events of the evening was a drill in the manual of arms by a composite battalion of infantry from regular army units of the 2d infantry, Fort Brady, and the 6th infantry, Jefferson Barracks. These troops, described as the best trained in the whole army, demonstrated machine precision in battalion parade and silent drill.

A polo match between two teams of officers of the Sixth corps area gave the crowd a thrill. It was followed by mounted gymnastics, wall scaling, and an anti-aircraft demonstration.

Norwegian Training Ship in Montreal; Chicago Bound

MONTREAL, May 30.—(AP)—With 1,000 spectators waiting to greet her, the three masted Sorlandet, Norwegian training ship, was towed into Montreal today en-route to Chicago. Her starboard rail was lined with cadets. Capt. Helge Brunscik and the veteran Capt. Magnus Anderson reported a journey of a month and a day.

NOTES OF THE WORLD'S FAIR

Among the foreign visitors to A Century of Progress yesterday were A. Morotti Robry of Bologna, Italy; Artiero B. Stavanson, a merchant of Cartagena, Colombia, and R. L. Bomachea of the Cuban diplomatic service and his wife. The number of foreign visitors is increasing daily, according to exposition officials.

Students of the Parker Practice School of Chicago presented Maeterlinck's "Blue Bird," a fantasy, last night in the Enchanted island theater. John Merrill directed the play.

Prince Potenziani, first commissioner from Italy to the World's Fair, will preside at the dedication of the Italian pavilion at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Consul General Giuseppe Castruccio, his wife, and Luigi Ranieri, second commissioner, will attend. A Fascist chorus will be a feature of the ceremony.

Lake passenger steamers plying between Navy pier and the World's Fair grounds have now established a daily schedule. Starting at 10 o'clock in the morning the boats leave the pier every half hour and dock at "Hollywood" at the south end of Northerly island and at the rear of the General Motors building at the foot of 31st street.

The "log rolleo" was dedicated in the afternoon with the splitting of a log by Judge Charles E. Bull, portrayers of Abraham Lincoln at the Exposition. A preview was held later when exhibitions of log rolling were given by Pete Hooper and Sam Harris, champion log rollers. Monte J. Wax, manager of the show, said that if enough interest was exhibited he would promote an international log rolling contest in which 250 lumberjacks from this country and Canada would participate.

Representatives of Mayor Kelly and of the Greek people in Chicago will officially welcome the sponge fishing boat Halki, brought from Florida by way of the gulf and the waterway to the city today. The ship, named for an island in Greece, will be used to demonstrate sponge gathering methods before the World's Fair crowds. The welcoming ceremony will be held at La Salle street and the river. Among those participating will be George Depostas, Greek consul; Bishop Kallistos of the Greek Orthodox church, and A. A. Pantelis.

Robert Hayes Gore, newly appointed governor of Porto Rico, was the first visitor to the Porto Rican exhibit. Other guests included former Gov. Louis Emmerson and his wife and Charles H. Burke, former United States resident commissioner in Paris.

The ceremony of lighting up the World's Fair by the rays of the star Arcturus will take place at 8:45 o'clock from now on instead of at 9:15 o'clock, Fair officials announced yesterday.

Mrs. Alice Tobin of Wayne, Mich., suffered a broken arm yesterday afternoon when she fell in the Hall of Science. She was treated in the Fair hospital and then was taken to the Henrotin hospital. Fifteen others received treatment for minor injuries during the day at the hospital on the grounds.

Two members of the midget village show at the Exposition will go to the county clerk's office this morning for a marriage license. They are Harry Fish, 29 years old, 31 inches tall, and Mariska Summers, 25 years old, 30 inches tall. They will be married on June 10 in the village.

Fair officials announced that henceforth any person desiring to send a message over the Exposition's public address system must first have it approved by the management. There have been too many messages from swains to sweethearts and such, it was explained.

FAIR TO DEPICT 100 YEARS OF TRANSPORTATION

The progress of transportation in the last 100 years will be dramatized in a World's Fair pageant at 9 o'clock tomorrow night on the lake front east of the Travel and Transport building. Seats will be provided for 3,000 persons, according to Edward Hungerford, creator of the drama, which he calls "Wings of a Century."

The pageant will be presented on a stage, the forepart of which is 225 feet long. A cast of 200 persons will move across the setting in 100 vehicles representing various stages of transportation. Sixty horses will be used to draw the early vehicles.

Hungerford explained that the pageant will be in the form of a classic Greek drama. Two narrators will carry the plot to the audience through loud speakers.

NEW ENVOY GIVES BRITAIN 'HEART TO HEART' TALK

Appeals for Co-operation to Save World.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 30.—Robert Worth Bingham, new American ambassador to the court of St. James's, abandoned the text of his prepared speech before a distinguished audience at a Pilgrims' society dinner tonight and in his first public address to Great Britain made a straight from the shoulder talk. His remarks were greeted with resounding cheers from the 250 guests present.

The new American envoy was cordially introduced by the prince of Wales, who recalled that Mr. Bingham had built a playground for children on the estate which he (the prince) owns as the duke of Cornwall. The prince said he had addressed the Pilgrims last nearly a year ago, when differences between the two countries were grave. He added that they are no less serious today, but that since then there has been a change of sentiment in the United States.

Praise U. S. Leadership.

"The government of the United States has taken a very strong lead and the individual American realizes with us that no country can prosper in isolation," he said. "Suffering is a hard school. But if it shows the vice of economic nationalism then this great depression may well pave the way for a future permanent prosperity for all of us and bring us nearer to that ideal day when there will be no more poverty."

Mr. Bingham began with the usual polite compliments, but immediately switched to a series of humorous remarks on the hostile comments in the United States on his appointment to this post. Then he became serious and emphasized to the distinguished gathering that the United States had made a change in the November election which was "almost incredible."

He said that as soon as President Roosevelt took office "the whole nation accepted his bold leadership and his inspiring statesmanship."

Tells of "Changed Attitude."

"What has happened since is really incredible," he continued. "But what, perhaps, is more important to you is the phenomenal recovery which has been made, which indefinitely enlarges the influence the United States has to offer in behalf of world peace and world recovery. Vitally important also is the changed attitude on several subjects by the people of the United States on their misfortunes in recent years.

"I shall give you one concrete example. For years the majority of the people in the United States believed that the higher the tariffs, the higher the wages and the general level of prosperity of the country would be. Now they have learned the grim lesson that with the highest tariff the country ever had, more than 13,000,000 persons have no wages at all. By bitter experience they have learned how unfounded this tariff doctrine is. They have learned how impossible it is to continue selling when they do not buy, and they are at last prepared, through proper agreement, to lower tariff barriers so international trade may begin to move again."

Praises Peace Move.

Mr. Bingham said President Roosevelt's recent peace message to the nations at Geneva marked a definite departure from a principle maintained by the United States since the country's foundation, but he declared amid cheers it marked a definite step toward the peace of the world.

He said President Roosevelt's pronouncement carried a qualification, but that the American fingers were crossed no further in the Roosevelt message than Great Britain's were when it signed the Locarno pact.

Turning to the world economic conference, Mr. Bingham said this is no time for pessimism. He said he did not believe the English speaking nations would fail one another at a time when the whole of modern civilization hung on the outcome of a solution of the present crisis.

"No Time for Bargaining."

"This is no time for mere trading and bargaining, for seeking any form of advantage over the other," he said. "There is no time for any thought except 'what shall we do to be saved?'

"I believe the foundation of hope for our world lies in whole hearted, concerted action between Great Britain, the great self-governing British commonwealths and the United States.

"It would merely be futile and foolish to deny the gravity of the problems which confront us, as between ourselves. Such problems defy solution when approached in an attitude of distrust and suspicion."

The ambassador's address was the climax to a series of memorial day events in which Americans participated. The London post of the American Legion led in an observance at the Cenotaph, the war memorial on the Thames embankment; Ray Atherton, embassy counselor, placed a wreath on the grave of the unknown soldier in Westminister Abbey, and Americans attended memorial services in St. Margaret's church.

FRENCH GRAVES OF U.S. WAR DEAD ARE DECORATED

Honor Chicago Man, First Yank to Fall.

PARIS, May 30.—(AP)—The French graves of 28,500 Americans who died in the world war were decorated today with ceremonies commemorative of their sacrifice.

In five military cemeteries delegations of veterans conducted the ceremonies at 11 o'clock, followed exactly at noon by the raising of the Stars and Stripes as a symbol of a living nation.

At Suresnes, near Paris, where 1,541 soldiers lie under rows of white crosses, Theodore Marriner, American charge d'affaires, presided over the major memorial service this afternoon.

Church Services Held.

A group of Gold Star Mothers and widows here as pilgrims to the graves of their sons and husbands visited the cemeteries where their dead rest.

The American colony's observance of the day opened with church services at the cathedral church of the Holy Trinity and at St. Joseph's Catholic church. War days were recalled, particularly at the former church, where the service was identical to that on Memorial day of 1918, when the Germans threatened Paris.

After the church services, the patriotic organizations which attended both, with their colors, formed a column, marched to the tomb of the Unknown Soldier and there placed wreaths.

Honor Chicago Hero.

Forty-seven American aviators, who flew as volunteers with the French army before America's entry into the war, were commemorated at a ceremony at the Lafayette Escadrille memorial, near Garches.

Special homage to Edward Mandell Stone of Chicago and New Bedford, Mass., the first American killed in the world war, was paid by members of the Trench and Air Association of American Volunteer Combatants. Wounded in the trenches at Chemin des Dames, Stone died Feb. 27, 1915, and was buried at Romilly-sur-Seine.

BURGLARS FIRE ON WATCHMAN.

One of four burglars, surprised as they fled with an automobile load of men's clothing from the Ratsky and Stone store at 4830 South Ashland avenue, fired a shotgun at William Mallon, a watchman, early yesterday. The burglars escaped.

GREEN RALLIES LABOR TO PROFIT BY INDUSTRY ACT

Unionizing of America Is His Goal.

workers of the country through organizations may participate in the benefits of the bill and may demand that employers negotiate with their chosen representatives in the establishment of decent wages, shorter hours and improved conditions."

Unorganized Toilers Invited.

Mr. Green urges that the campaign be started quickly; that the federation may find means of carrying "the message of organization" to the unorganized workers of the nation.

"They will be advised," he said, "of their rights under the act and the necessity for united action in order to secure for themselves the economic and social benefits, as well as the enjoyment of all the rights to which they are entitled."

In setting up a national organization Mr. Green said that groups would be formed in every "state, city and town."

While this activity is reported in advance of the passage of the legislation great interest has been shown also in the similar powers vested by the farm bill in the secretary of agriculture. Many industries engaged in the processing of farm stuffs have applied to the department of agriculture for information concerning what type of agreements they may enter into for the protection against unfair competition and for more efficient marketing methods.

The first hearing to be conducted by Secretary Wallace under this power, which will see his first decision on a marketing agreement presented by a branch of industry, will be held next Monday in Washington, when representatives of various branches of the Chicago milk industry will appear.

An agreement presented by the Chicago Pure Milk association, the milk council and the Chicago Milk Dealers' association will be up for discussion.

KIDNAPED AND ROBBED.

Irving Brazerman, 37 years old, 3058 Ainslie street, was kidnaped and robbed of $197 and his automobile yesterday by four gunmen who halted him at Ogden and Sawyer avenues and drove him to Lemont before forcing him out of his car.

GERMANY DEFIES LEAGUE IN ROW OVER WAR ON JEW

Hands Off! Is Berlin's Warning at Geneva.

GENEVA, May 30.—(AP)—Germany refused today to accept an unfavorable league of nations report on her treatment of the Jews and in diplomatic language informed the league to keep its hands off the question.

Despite this position of the Berlin delegate the league council referred juridical aspects of the issue to a committee of jurists with the understanding that the matter will have a complete airing.

Germany's treatment of the Jews came before the council in a petition by Franz Bernheim, who described himself as a German Jew residing in Upper Silesia. He declared that the German-Polish convention, guaranteeing protection to the life and property of all inhabitants of Upper Silesia, was violated by German anti-Semitic regulations. Thus the issue before the league involved German Upper Silesia only and not the entire German nation.

Insist Convention Was Violated.

The council report held that the German measures involved restrictions applying only to the Jewish population. These restrictions, the report said, were in violation of the German-Polish convention.

Recalling that Friedrich von Keller, the German delegate, previously had indicated that if there had been any infringements of the convention they must be regarded as errors by local subordinates, the report continued:

"This statement implies that Germany will take steps to insure that general laws shall not be applied in upper Silesia so far as they are incompatible with the convention, and that Germany will reinstate persons of the minority who have lost their positions."

Plead for Equal Treatment.

Numerous members of the council at today's session appealed to Germany to accord equal treatment to Jews throughout the entire reich.

Von Keller contended that Bernheim was not of Silesian origin, had no right to raise the question of the application of German laws there, and was not a qualified spokesman for the people of that area.

Over the opposition of the German delegate the council referred the question of Bernheim's status to a committee of three jurists.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 30.—Germany tightened its travel boycott of Austria today. The government announced that Germans attempting to visit Austria without official permission will be liable to a fine of not less than $1,400 or a prison sentence.

The government on Saturday fixed a visa charge of 1,000 marks [about $270] to visit Austria in retaliation for repressive measures against Nazis.

German students in Austrian universities, Germans with jobs in Austria, and traveling salesmen are exempt from the visa regulations.

Nazis Suppress Nationalist Group.

Nazi authorities today suppressed the Hamburg branch of the Nationalist party "fighting ring." Renewed clashes between Nazis and young Nationalists are reported.

Meanwhile, the religious war is still raging over the election of Dr. Friedrich von Bodelschwingh as first Evangelical bishop of the reich. The Nazi German Christians are opposing Dr. von Bodelschwingh because he is "not revolutionary enough and fails to declare that the Hitler movement is God given."

The new bishop has refused to forbid the baptism of Jews. This has further increased the indignation of Nazis.

Former Chancellor Kurt von Schleicher, reported to have been imprisoned in a fortress yesterday, was reached by telephone at his home near Potsdam today.

"You see I am at home," he exclaimed.

SAYS ROOSEVELT IS LEADING U. S. INTO SOCIALISM

Washington, D. C., May 30.—[Special.]—Charges that President Roosevelt and his "brain trust" were leading the country into socialism were made on the senate floor today by Senator Henry D. Hatfield [Rep., W. Va.]. The West Virginia senator, who was chairman of the Republican senatorial campaign committee in 1932, denounced the farm act and the pending industrial control bill as measures befitting soviet Russia.

Congress, the senator said, had abandoned its function of initiating and passing upon legislation, and the nation its tradition of individual initiative. The country, he declared, had come under a dictatorship, the terms of which it did not understand, so fast have events transpired, and the administration of which was vested in the hands of academic theorists.

The "executive professoriat" and others are openly advocating a socialization of industry and agriculture, he said.

Earth Tremors Are Felt in Brazil; No Damage

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, May 30.—Earth tremors two minutes in duration were felt today in the Oyapock region near French Guiana. No damage or casualties were reported.

Late in Milking Cow, Son Slays Father, Shoots Self

Deep River, Conn., May 30.—(AP)—Because he was reprimanded for not returning home in time to milk his cow, police said, Henry Wooley, 29 years old, shot his father to death at their home tonight, and then fired the shotgun into his own head. The son is not expected to live.

BOY DROWNED IN SANGAMON RIVER.

Springfield, Ill., May 30.—(AP)—Robert Jones, 14, Springfield, drowned in the Sangamon river near here this afternoon.

Hoodlum Clementi Jailed for Second Time in Week

Louis [the Louse] Clementi, hoodlum, and John Monaco were arrested at La Salle street and Chicago avenue last night for the second time in a week in accordance with the police policy to harass known police characters. Clementi is scheduled to appear in South State street court this morning on a charge of disorderly conduct growing out of his first arrest.

When we tell you that you can add five hundred or a thousand scenic miles to your California trip this summer for not 1¢ more rail fare, you may not believe us. But it's true.

By going West on one of our Four Great Routes and returning on another, you see a different part of the United States each way—you include the whole Pacific Coast in your trip—for no more rail fare than a ticket straight to California and back!

For example, at the fares shown above, you can swing down to New Orleans by rail. Then board our "Sunset Limited" and cross Louisiana, Texas, Arizona and New Mexico to Los Angeles. Then up through San Francisco to Portland, Seattle or Vancouver, B.C. Return to Chicago on any northern United States or Canadian line. Or reverse the order. Or use any other combination of our Four Great Routes. Stopover anywhere. All this, remember, for not 1¢ more rail fare than a trip straight to California and back.

What Will the Trip Cost?

A trip to California costs a great deal less than you may think. Starting with the fares listed above, you can estimate your other expenses about as follows:

REDUCTION IN PULLMAN ROUND-TRIP FARE in connection with the $80.50 rail ticket. For example, Pullman lower berth from Chicago to California and return, $35.63. (Roundtrip Tourist lower, $25.50.)

REDUCED DINING CAR PRICES enable you to eat well on S. P. trains for $2.10 a day.

IN CALIFORNIA—You can allow as little as $6 a day. This includes hotel room (with bath), all meals and many scenic trips.

FRANCE'S ALLIES O.K. NEW VERSION OF 4 POWER PACT

Given Guarantee Against Revision of Treaties.

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, May 30.—(AP)—The foreign ministers of Jugo-Slavia, Rumania, and Czechoslovakia, France's allies, announced that they were satisfied with the new text of the Mussolini four power peace pact at the conclusion of today's session of the little entente conference. The pact is scheduled to be initialed in Rome this week by Great Britain, France, Italy, and Germany.

The little entente nations explained they have been given guarantees by England and France that the authority of the league of nations would remain untouched and that there is no question of changing the provision requiring unanimity in connection with the application of article 19 of the league covenant. This article contemplates the revision of post-war treaties in event they threaten the peace of Europe.

France Gives Guarantees.

In addition, it was said, France has guaranteed the little entente against any attempt to revise the peace treaties. In this connection the three foreign ministers declared that the revision question simply does not exist as far as they are concerned. They said the bringing up of such a question will only poison international relations.

(Rome reports said the Mussolini pact, as rewritten, merely mentions the possibility of treaty revision within the framework of the league of nations. The original form was reported to have indorsed revision.)

Daladier Given Free Hand.

PARIS, May 30.—(AP)—The chamber of deputies gave Premier Daladier a free hand by a vote of 434 to 135 today to sign Premier Mussolini's four power peace pact if he wishes to do so. The vote was taken following a bitter attack on the pact by Louis Marin, leader of the right opposition, who charged that it was dangerous, since it would pave the way for revision of frontiers.

May Be Initialed Tomorrow.

ROME, May 30.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini's four power peace pact will be initialed Thursday in the premier's office at the Venezia palace, it was expected today.

The signing will be done by the French, British, and German ambassadors and possibly by the Italian premier himself. Thursday will be the day, it was said, if the work of translating the text into English, German, and Italian has been finished by that time. The French text has been used in negotiations.

It is possible that the premier will review the negotiations in the senate on Friday, when there will be a discussion of the foreign ministry's budget.

FORD BUYS OLD HOMESTEAD OF EDISON FAMILY

ST. THOMAS, Ont., May 30.—(AP)—The old Edison homestead at Vienna, Ont., where Thomas Alva Edison spent the summers of his early youth, has been bought by Henry Ford, according to information received here.

It is reported the building will be removed from its present site and re-erected in the Ford historical settlement at Dearborn, Mich.

Mr. Ford, a friend of the late inventor, visited Vienna yesterday and surveyors visited the property during the last week. The house was built by Capt. Samuel Edison, grandfather of the inventor, but in recent years has been the property of Mrs. T. Allen, a cousin of Thomas Edison, now living in California.

CHINESE ENVOYS IN SECRET PEACE TALKS WITH JAPS

Meet at Port Under Guns of Warships.

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

TIENTSIN, May 30.—After many days of evasions, mystifications, and forthright denials that any plan was afoot for the early signing of an armistice, a group of Chinese negotiators was housed tonight with Japanese delegates in a building at Tangku, near the mouth of the Pei Ho river below Tientsin. Negotiations were proceeding under the guns of Japanese naval craft.

The Chinese delegates left Peiping at 7:50 a. m. today aboard a special train, preceded by an armored train. Martial law was declared all along the route. The train arrived at Tangku at 2 p. m., but even after 3 o'clock the Japanese headquarters here professed ignorance of any gathering of negotiators. They said Tangku was the most unsuitable and unlikely locality for negotiations. Not until late in the afternoon would the Chinese authorities in Peiping admit that representatives had departed. On the train with them were Sei-Ichiro Nakayama, the Japanese charge d'affaires, an interpreter and three other unnamed negotiators.

Chinese Fear Assassination.

It was learned at noon a Tientsin representative of the Japanese command in Manchuria arrived at Tangku aboard a Japanese vessel. The headquarters of Lieut. Gen. Kotaro Nakamura, commander of the Japanese garrison here, said Lieut. Gen. Kuniaki Koiso, chief of staff of the Japanese army in Manchuria, would not attend the conference, since the rank of the Chinese delegates would not justify his presence. Contradicting this, Gen. Ho Ying-ching, the Chinese war minister, officially announced that Gen. Koiso had arrived at Tangku yesterday aboard a warship, but had not yet landed.

The expedients adopted to conceal the place and time of the negotiations were inspired by the terror of the Chinese delegates, who fear assassination by their enraged countrymen. The meetings are being held in the building of the China Merchants' Steamship company, one of the few semi-modern structures in Tangku. It is obscure whether Tangku was chosen in order to make possible the presence of a Japanese warship or because it is held by troops of Gen. Ho Chu-kuo, who is reputed to be ready to join Manchukuo.

Gen. Ho Ying-ching and Hwang Fu, Nanking's chief representatives, remained at Peiping. Some of the Chinese delegates who went to Tientsin are Chang Chun, former mayor of Shanghai; Chien Chung-chie, director of the Peiping-Shanhaikwan railway; Hsiung Ping, a member of the Nanking general staff, and Hsu Yen-mou of the Peiping military council.

Three Stumbling Blocks.

One report said that tomorrow will be devoted to preliminaries to the formal discussions, which will open Thursday or Friday. Another report said Nakayama is expected to return to Peiping after two days. Three difficult problems are likely to prolong the conference. They are the Japanese demand to demilitarize north China; Chinese objections to the activities in Tientsin of "plain clothes men," who are alleged to be Japanese hirelings, and the presence in the Lwan river triangle of Chinese irregulars flying the old five-barred Chinese flag. The Japanese deny that they are supporting these forces, but the troops are armed with Japanese rifles.

The building where the delegates are sheltered is surrounded by a cordon of Chinese troops four deep. Tangku is eighteen miles from Tientsin. It is considered one of the most unattractive seaports of China. When the Pei Ho is silted, steamers ignore Tangku and come direct to Tientsin, but when the river is impassable because of ice or silt they dock there under protest.

Chinese Still Menace Peiping.

Tangku lacks hotels and is a mere ramshackle village around the railway station, docks and warehouses. At this time of year it is intensely hot and swarms with insects.

In the face of repeated Japanese insistence on full evacuation of Peiping, Chinese forces continued today to hold the southeastern wall of the Tartar city, menacing the area in which most Japanese civilians reside and adding to the great strain of the situation.

BRITISH PREPARE TO MEET JUNE 15 DEBT PAYMENT

Officials Deny Plan to Dodge Obligation.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 30.—With the approach of June 15, when Great Britain is due to pay a $75,900,000 war debt installment to the United States, the air is becoming full of rumors about plans for postponement moratorium, part payment and other methods which might enable Britain to escape paying what it owes.

As far as can be learned at the moment, there is no truth in any of these rumors. Every indication points to Britain paying on June 15 with the same reservation as on the occasion of the payment made on Dec. 15—namely, that the sum then paid should be taken into capital account in the final settlement which it is expected will be negotiated before the end of the year.

Rumors from All Sides.

The latest rumor came from Washington in newspaper dispatches today that President Roosevelt had offered to accept from Britain $10,000,000 as a part payment. Authorities here said they had not heard a word about this scheme and they did not believe it.

[This report was denied in Washington.]

From Whitehall last night came a rumor that the government is going to allow a free vote in the house of commons before June 15 on the question of paying or defaulting. This rumor was denied by Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, in the house of commons today.

Chamberlain also gave little comfort to the members who are demanding discussion of the debts by saying he did not know whether he would be able to make any statement to the house on debts before it adjourns Friday for the Whitsuntide recess.

Payment Is Easier.

The fact is that payment will be much easier this time than before, because of the devaluation of the dollar. Britain can either pay in paper dollars, which cost about 20 per cent less to buy than gold dollars, or in American securities, which can be bought with paper dollars at a discount and turned in at par.

Britain can also, if the United States consents, pay in silver at 50 cents an ounce. Britain has an immense stock of silver, the present value of which is a little over 30 cents an ounce and which was acquired at a still lower rate.

There is reported the usual division in the cabinet over payment or default. Chamberlain and Walter Runciman, president of the board of trade, are said to be in favor of default, while Prime Minister MacDonald, Stanley Baldwin, lord and president of the council, and the rest of cabinet favor payment.

BLONDE KILLS SELF; PROMINENT DENVER DOCTOR QUESTIONED

Denver, Colo., May 30.—(AP)—Mrs. Jane B. Gilfoy, 34 year old blonde from Los Angeles, died here today of a bullet wound in the head which Dr. Fred S. Halsted, prominent Denver physician, told police was self-inflicted when he refused to divorce his wife and marry her.

Police, called to the apartment of Mrs. Gilfoy, reported they found her lying amid upturned chairs and spilled ashtrays. They said the physician, middle aged, married and prominent, had numerous scratches on his face.

The physician's wife, Mrs. Ethel Halsted, told officers her husband and Mrs. Gilfoy had known each other for years.

"My husband and I have been married for 21 years," she was quoted as saying. "Nothing, not even his friendship for Mrs. Gilfoy, ever marred our happiness and will not now."

BENCH BATTLE CENTERS ON 2 CIRCUIT JUDGES

Feinberg and Klarkowski Assailed by Bar.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Thunder and lightning on the horizon of the county judicial campaign, which comes to a vote next Monday, centers on the Circuit court tickets and strikes particularly at Judges Stanley H. Klarkowski and Michael Feinberg, now on that bench.

In reports on a questionnaire and two primaries and in a special pamphlet prepared for this campaign, the Chicago Bar association has voted overwhelmingly against these two men, although some distinction is made in favor of Judge Feinberg. The main charge which the association has brought against them is that they have exercised their judicial functions as political expediency required, specifically in the matter of giving receiverships to friends and politicians who helped place them in office.

The accusations in detail have been laid before the Sinnett legislative committee, which is seeking remedies for receivership and foreclosure evils. They were made public in a report by the Bar association's committee on receivership and mortgage foreclosures, which visited "severe censure" upon the two judges.

Primary Fight Recalled.

This action of the Bar association was the result of an investigation made against Judges Feinberg and Klarkowski in April, 1932, by John A. Swanson, then state's attorney, at the height of the primary campaign in which Feinberg was the candidate of Robert E. Crowe, former state's attorney, against Swanson. The committee report held that the Swanson criticisms were well founded. Both Feinberg and Klarkowski are Crowe adherents.

These findings of the Bar association were attacked by both judges, who told the Sinnett committee that the Bar association had been influenced by a "receivership ring."

The association investigators made one error in reporting that Archie Cohen, master in chancery, had been appointed by Judge Feinberg a receiver in a number of important matters. Mr. Cohen informed President Charles P. Megan of the association that he had never been a receiver in any case in Cook county, either by appointment of Judge Feinberg or any other judge.

Case of Master Gorman.

Much stress is laid in the report upon the reference of cases to Master in Chancery George E. Gorman, a law partner of Mr. Crowe. On this Judge Feinberg said:

"I have given more cases to Master Mason, a Democrat, and to Ninian H. Welch, a Republican opposed to me, than to Master Gorman. They are putting the venom on him. They won't tell the story. There is not one case in which I selected a master to whom the parties had not agreed to refer the case."

The Bar association did not question the integrity or ability of Mr. Gorman.

Judge Klarkowski said on the matter of appointing receivers:

"I generally use my own judgment, because I found I could not trust the suggestions of lawyers who came before me. I think the Chicago Bar association ought to keep its skirts clean before attacking others."

The South Park Election.

Another complication in the cases of Judges Klarkowski and Feinberg arises from their political action in connection with the south park board, which is elected by the Circuit bench and controls immense patronage. Last December these Republican judges voted with the Democratic judges to elect W. H. McDonnell, a Democrat, as commissioner. Their two votes decided the election.

Therefore the Republicans kept these judges off their judical ticket and the Democratic bosses insisted on their inclusion in the Democratic list. This situation broke up negotiations for a coalition ticket. The Republican ticket is a party ticket, while the Democrats have a fusion ticket, including eight Republican Circuit judges.

Judge Feinberg said as to the election of south park officials:

"I have no apologies to make for voting for these men, though they are Democrats. Look at how the south park system has been run under Edward J. Kelly as president and contrast it with the west parks under the last Republican administration."

The charges of the Bar association concerning receiverships, which have been placed with amplifying data before the Sinnett committee, declared that both judges have appointed close political friends or political supporters as receivers even in cases where the litigants had agreed upon some other person to serve as receiver.

"Judge Feinberg," says the report, "appointed Samuel Frank as receiver in at least twenty-one different cases, in six of which Rappaport & Rappaport, who appear to be closely associated with Isadore Goldstein, a nephew of Judge Feinberg, were appointed as attorneys for the receiver.

"Samuel Frank was at one time associated in receiverships with one Jacob Goldman. Judge Feinberg stated that he became acquainted with Mr. Frank in the exposure and investigation of the Goldman receiverships in which Judge Feinberg actively participated and that because of this acquaintance he made the appointments above indicated.

"Among other appointments as receivers made by Judge Feinberg [illegible] individuals who were closely associated in politics with Judge Feinberg and his political friends under what is known as the Crowe faction [illegible] Republican party are the following: Joseph L. Golden, Emanuel [illegible] former judge and son of Morris [illegible] and George A. Curran, former municipal judge.

"In at least forty cases Judge Klarkowski appointed as receiver, Marcus Campe, a brother-in-law of Joseph P. Savage, [illegible] member of the law firm of Crowe [illegible]

CANDIDATES FOR PROBATE JUDGE

Election June 5

John F. O'Connell, Democratic candidate for Gov. Henry Horner's old place as Probate judge, indorsed by the bar primaries, is at present a Municipal judge. He was born 43 years ago on a farm near Harmon, Ill., and has lived on the north side for 41 years.

He studied law at the University of Notre Dame, and was graduated in 1913. He was appointed an assistant state's attorney in 1917 under Maclay Hoyne, serving two years and making a reputation as a successful prosecutor in many important cases. He later was a special assistant state's attorney in 1920-1922 and 1925-1928, and for a year was master in chancery.

In 1922, when 31 years of age, Judge O'Connell was elected to the Municipal bench for a two year term. In 1930, at the suggestion of the late Mayor Anton J. Cermak, he ran again for the Municipal bench and rolled up the highest vote cast for the 12 Municipal judges elected that year.

For the last ten years he has served as a member of the board of the Boy Scouts of America. He is a director of the Alumni association of the University of Notre Dame and has recently received the nomination for national president of the association. He is married, has four children, and lives at 3432 Bosworth avenue.

In the bar primaries he received 1,333 votes, as against 885 for Charles Scribner Eaton, Republican candidate for Probate judge. The association report said of Judge O'Connell: "He is courteous, even tempered, and possesses poise. He is fairly qualified for the office."

Charles Scribner Eaton, Republican, age 54, was born at Palmyra, Mo. He was graduated from the University of Chicago in 1900 and from Harvard Law school in 1903. Since that year he has practiced law in Chicago.

For five terms Mr. Eaton served as alderman from the 5th ward and made a reputation as a diligent and upright member, always counted on to vote right, especially against efforts of the former Republican city hall régime to overload budgets with extravagance.

The Municipal Voters' league in one of its findings said: "From his post in the finance committee he checks up remorselessly on every expenditure and on every sale of city property. The last thing a dollar sees on leaving the city treasury is the reluctant face of Ald. Eaton. Graft finds him a stern and fighting foe. He has served the council with a good record. He is able, honest, and courageous, and 100 per cent for the people."

In the bar primaries he got 885 votes, failing to get indorsement. The Bar association report said: "He possesses the requisite qualifications as to character and education, but he has not demonstrated the possession of the administrative and executive ability required by this office."

The Chicago Real Estate board in its recommendations, which were identical with those of the Bar association with two exceptions, gave its preference to Mr. Eaton.

George H. Meyer, candidate for Probate judge on the People's Judiciary ticket, was born in Chicago and is a graduate of Chicago Kent college of law. From 1912 to 1925 he was professor of law or real property, wills, and probate practice in W[illegible] lege of law and Chicago Ke[illegible] of law.

"Constipated" means "Poisoned"!

The curse of constipation is the slow poisoning of the blood stream, the over-taxed liver and kidneys . . . the host of ills that follow, when body poisons are not eliminated.

Do what they do in Carlsbad, Czechoslovakia, where so many thousands go to take the famous Carlsbad cure every year.

Take a teaspoonful of genuine Carlsbad Sprudel Salt in a glass of water . . . a pleasant drink that expels the poisonous food and body wastes that get into the blood stream and sap your vitality. Five hundred years of medical experience are back of this product in the treatment of the many ills that follow constipation—stomach, kidney and liver complaints, rheumatism, obesity and associated headaches, colds and skin troubles. # ABSCONDING TELLER TO SHOW WHERE HE 'BLEW IN' THOUSANDS

Los Angeles, Cal., May 30.—(AP)—Morgan N. Buchalew today awaited the hour when he would retrace the transcontinental route to Allentown, N. J., along which investigators said he spent $17,000 he took from a bank where he was a teller.

Waiving extradition at a United States commissioner's hearing, Buchalew, who was arrested Sunday aboard a liner at Los Angeles harbor as it docked, not only expressed a willingness to serve a prison term for his theft but also turned over to the United States marshal $30,000 he had stowed away in a safety deposit vault.

He was indicted by a federal grand jury on a charge of embezzling $34,731 from the bank, but the bank itself reported a loss of $58,000. Buchalew told the arresting officer, Deputy Marshal Vincent Mangeria, that he obtained the funds in April, 1932, by tampering with a vault time lock.

A blonde woman companion of Buchalew's today apparently had made good a determination to disappear. She was registered on the boat as Mrs. John G. Buck, the name Buchalew used as an alias. He has a wife and child in the east.

Appointment of Goldstein.

William Goldstein was a partner [illegible] a relative] of Isadore Goldstein, a nephew of Judge Feinberg. Judge Feinberg appointed William Goldstein as attorney for the receiver in the case of People's Trust and Savings bank and the Transportation Building corporation, in this case William Goldstein has already collected $38,000 in fees as attorney for the receiver.

"Judge Feinberg also made the following appointments [as attorney for the receiver] in a number of cases:

Maxwell Lurman, a friend of Judge Feinberg; Maxwell Landis, a Crowe precinct captain; Joseph F. Geary, a political associate of Mr. Crowe; John R. McCabe, a personal friend and intimate political associate of Judge Feinberg; Frank J. Jacobson, a personal friend of Judge Feinberg; Gerald Gorman, a son of George Gorman; Ma[illegible] a close political associate of Mr. Crowe.

Cases Referred to Gorman.

"The situation with respect to references of cases to Master Gorman by Judges Feinberg and Klarkowski is significant. In cases involving $100,000,000 or more filed in 1930 and 1931, these two judges referred to Master Gorman cases involving in the aggregate $16,096,000 principal amount of mortgage indebtedness, being 60 per cent of the total amount referred to masters by all judges.

"He has been allowed in these cases fees amounting to $106,690.45 up to the date of the examination of the files in the cases. Master Gorman was appointed a master Dec. 28, 1928, by Judge Klarkowski. He is a member of the firm of Crowe, Gorman & Savage, the senior partner of which is Robert E. Crowe. It was by a combination of Judges Feinberg and Klarkowski, who were of the Crowe political group, with the nine judges of the Democratic group, that these two judges were designated as chancellors.

"The same combination controlled the election of members of the south park board. Master Gorman was appointed attorney for that board on June 30, 1928, at an annual salary of $10,000, and still is serving in that capacity. He stated to the committee that his fees as master in chancery were treated as firm income.

Tracing of the Fees.

"We thus have two chancellors, who owe their position as chancellors to a political group, using their judicial authority over references to masters in such a way that the leader of that political group participated in the master's fees resulting from references made by them. It is the conclusion of the committee that this is a clear case of the use of judicial office for political purposes and that these two judges by reason of their willingness to exercise their judicial functions as political expediency required have thereby demonstrated their unfitness for the office of judge.

"Master Gorman's ability is well recognized by the bar. His participation, however, in the situation above described is improper and is condemned.

"Another general charge is that these judges were instrumental in bringing about the election of members of the south park board who would be favorably disposed to the selection of George E. Gorman as attorney for the board.

"The committee's investigation leads it to the conclusion that this charge is well founded and that Judges Feinberg and Klarkowski who were associated with the Crowe faction of the Republican party did combine with the nine judges of the Democratic party to bring about the result charged and for the further participation by Robert E. Crowe and his associates in the political patronage which is under the control of the south park commissioners.

Report Censures Judges.

"The committee is forced to the conclusion that in foreclosure cases these judges have permitted political considerations to influence them in the appointment of receivers and receivers' attorneys and in references to masters in chancery. The committee is further of the opinion that the conduct of these judges in matters under investigation has had an inevitable tendency to undermine the confidence of the public in the administration of justice by the courts and merits severe censure."

Before the Sinnett committee, Judge Feinberg said the Bar association attacked him in 1932 because of political reasons. He spoke of a "receivership ring." He denied categorically that he had ever appointed a receiver because of political reasons.

"In 1929," he said, "I was appointed chairman of a judges' committee to investigate the assets of all receivers. To my astonishment I found that over 400 were then in the court and that among the number were some absconders, and in three or four cases men who had lost their real estate licenses were acting as receivers.

Feinberg Tells His Rule.

"I reported my findings and made my position plain. When I became chancellor I believed it highly dangerous to appoint a receiver as chosen by counsel and unknown to the court. I made it a rule that attorneys would have to propose a bank or trust company or outstanding individual."

Judge Feinberg said he opposed any "receivership ring."

"In doing so," he said, "I antagonized some members of the bar because I refused them the right to control not only the complainants but the receiver and his attorney in cases they handled. Maybe that is why I am not in the good graces of the Bar association.

"I was trying to prevent a ring being built up in receiverships. Among many attorneys I appointed former association presidents, including Sidney Gorham, Francis X. Busch, Colin Fyffe, George A. Cooke, and William Sidley."

Judge Feinberg received the commendation of the Chicago crime commission for his work on the criminal bench. He is a former master in chancery and was placed on the coalition ticket in 1927, freezing out a sitting judge, Oscar M. Torrison.

In the first bar primary Feinberg received 565 votes favoring his nomination, to 1,865 opposed. In the second primary he lost 65 of these votes. Judge Klarkowski had only 345 votes favoring his nomination and 2,055 opposed. He was the lowest on the questionnaire returns and the verdict is as follows: "He is completing a term of six years as judge of the Circuit court and in the general opinion of the bar has demonstrated his unfitness for office. He should not be renominated."

As to Judge Feinberg the bar report stated:

"Although he possesses legal ability and is diligent in the dispatch of business, he has demonstrated a lack of qualifications essential to the holding of judicial office. He should not be renominated." The vote in the association as to whether or not he is an able judge was very close.

Judge Harry M. Fisher, third in line of the Bar association's condemnation, will be discussed in an article tomorrow.

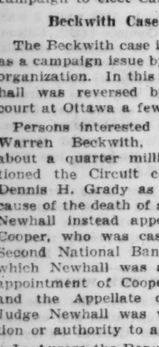
DEMOCRAT FIGHTS FOR A JUDGESHIP IN 16TH DISTRICT

Seeks to Break G. O. P. Grip of 73 Years.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

For the first time since civil war days, so the political chroniclers declare, the Democrats have a candidate for Circuit judge in the 16th judicial circuit, which embraces the counties of Du Page, De Kalb, Kane, and Kendall, to the west of Chicago.



M. F. ALLABEN.

Max F. Allaben of Glen Ellyn, Du Page county, is the Democratic contender against the three sitting judges, William J. Fulton of Sycamore, John K. Newhall of Aurora, and Frank W. Shepherd of Elgin, all Republicans, and the district is the scene of an intense and spirited campaign for the election next Monday.

Raise the County Issue.

The chief issue raised by the Democrats is that Du Page county has no representative on the bench, although up to six or seven years ago it used to furnish one of the three judges and is the second of the four counties in population. Judges Newhall and Shepherd are both from Kane county and Judge Fulton is from De Kalb county. For years political soreness has been engendered by the fact that Kane has two of the three judges.

In normal times the circuit is so strongly Republican that the Democrats declare they have had no judicial nominee in the area since Abraham Lincoln was first elected President. This year, however, the Democrats find hope in the election results of last November. Hoover carried all four counties in the circuit by an aggregate plurality of 18,291. The Republicans argue this shows the district is adamantine Republican.

Horner Plurality Cited.

The Democrats point out that despite the Hoover plurality Gov. Henry Horner rolled up a plurality of 4,465 against Len Small in the district. Horner had a plurality of 8,216 in Du Page, while Small had small margins in the other three counties. Besides the Democrats point out that, although Kane county was Hooverish, Aurora was carried by Roosevelt by some 3,000.

The Democrats, among their campaign matters, are dwelling upon the killing by a dry agent of Mrs. Lillian De King of Aurora in March, 1929, which led to the censure of State's Attorney George D. Carbary of Kane county for "lawless law enforcement" by a legislative committee which investigated the De King killing. The same committee criticized Judge Newhall for his political efforts in the campaign to elect Carbary in 1928.

Beckwith Case Recalled.

The Beckwith case is also being used as a campaign issue by the Democratic organization. In this case Judge Newhall was reversed by the Appellate court at Ottawa a few months ago.

Persons interested in the estate of Warren Beckwith, which involved about a quarter million dollars, petitioned the Circuit court to appoint Dennis H. Grady as a co-trustee because of the death of a trustee. Judge Newhall instead appointed Harry J. Cooper, who was cashier of the Old Second National Bank of Aurora in which Newhall was a director. The appointment of Cooper was appealed and the Appellate court held that Judge Newhall was without jurisdiction or authority to appoint Cooper.

In Aurora the Republican campaign has run into old factional troubles. Judge Newhall is a brother-in-law of Congressman Frank Reid. In the last municipal election, Col. Charles H. Greene, who had been mayor of Aurora for ten years, was defeated by Conrad Bjorseth, who was supported by the Reid-Newhall group. There was a contest, which led to a final decision by the Supreme court seating Bjorseth by 4 votes, after some 150 ballots had been thrown out, which if kept in would have elected Greene by 55.

Allaben of Democratic Family.

Mr. Allaben, the Democratic candidate, is of old Dutch New Amsterdam stock. His grandparents came to Illinois in 1840, and his grandfather was a Methodist minister. It is an old Democratic family. During the civil war the candidate's grandfather was expelled from the Methodist church at Polo, Ill., for a time because he persisted in remaining a Democrat.

Mr. Allaben has practiced law for 23 years and is serving his second term as member of the Glen Ellyn school board.

Of the three sitting Republican judges in the circuit, Judge Fulton is clean. He is regarded by the politicians as having no battle on his hands. He was born in 1875 and has lived most of his lifetime in De Kalb county. He was elected Circuit judge to fill an unexpired term in 1923, and was reëlected for the full term in 1927. Two years ago he was assigned to the Fourth district Appellate court by the Illinois Supreme court. He has been mentioned by the district bar as some day a possibility for the Supreme bench.

Shepherd Once Legislator.

Judge Shepherd was born in 1876. For three sessions he was a member of the general assembly, 1908 to 1914, and was identified with the progressive younger element. In the 1909 session he was one of the Republicans who did not vote for William Lorimer for United States senator—he stuck with Albert J. Hopkins to the finish.

He was elected probate judge of Kane county in 1922, serving until he became circuit judge in 1926.

Judge Newhall, a resident of Aurora since 1887, studied law in the offices of Judge Samuel Alschuler and was admitted to the bar in 1899. He was elected circuit judge in 1924 to succeed Judge Clinton F. Irwin of Elgin. For four years he was on the appellate bench.

Tell it to Sweeney!

{. . . the Survivor!}

MR. Tupper manufactures teapots. They are plain, serviceable, uninspired teapots—but they have made a lot of money for Mr. Tupper. Mr. Tupper never had a very clear idea as to who bought his teapots; and like many another business man in the late lamented decade he began vaguely to confuse his customers with his neighbors and associates.

His advertising was attended by a New York agency, comprised of bright young men who conceived the markets of America as multiples of Bronxville, Winnetka and Burlingame. Capable of advertising even a can opener in the Cartier manner, they visualized the prospect for Tupper teapots as a svelte creature in a tea gown, by Erickson. The art director ensembled the teapot on a Phyffe table, with linen from Mosse, silver from Crichton's, accessories from Ovington's, lemon slices from Sherry's, and flowers from Dard's. The arty advertising ran in arty publications. All of Mr. Tupper's friends and acquaintances admired his advertising—except his salesmen.

And all the while, the Tupper teapot was being sold in bargain basements and variety stores on mean streets. Its only crest was a cut price tag. It was bought not because it was smart, but because it looked like a lot for the money, held heat well, had a durable spout and handle and a large mouth for easy cleaning. It was bought by women who wore aprons most of the time—and never saw the Tupper advertising!

MR. Tupper knows better nowadays. So do most business men who once cherished the delusion that their major market lay among the "best people". The "best people" have become the worst market of recent years. The depression that cut the earning power and cost the jobs of a large part of the public, deflated wealth and affluence more cruelly and viciously than any previous occasion on record. The recent rich are for the most part the new poor, and even ancient vested capital is paying little or no return. So if you haven't been doing business with the mass market the past three years, you just haven't been doing business—and may not do much for a long time to come.

Fifty-seventh Street has been a sad street these last three years, but Thirty-fourth Street still carries crowds. The luxury shop has been a luxury chiefly to its owners. Summer homes, speed boats, antiques, jewelry and club memberships are available at ridiculous prices. Miami, with four hundred thousand visitors this winter had a boom; Palm Beach, of the mythical Four Hundred, had a blight. Chevrolet has become the big bread and butter of General Motors, and Cadillac is very small cake. Forty thousand dollar houses are a drug on the market, while forty dollar a month apartments are still hard to find. The bargain basement has appropriated whole department stores. In the first quarter of 1933 in New York City, only 2% of new car sales came from the $9,000 or better districts; but districts averaging under $5,000 furnished 75% of the sales. Any business man today who imagines that he must seek customers in the upper income brackets because the general public has lost buying power is trading a substantial frying pan for a very feeble fire! The "class complex" in advertising has been as disastrously deflated as the "class" audience.

TELL It to Sweeney—who still survives. The Sweeneys are the average New Yorkers, with incomes of from $6,000 down—but with more incomes than any large group of people in the world today. There are twelve million of them in and around New York. They comprise the most fortunate market of current times. Diversity of occupation has protected their collective jobs. Secondary manufactures, supplying finished goods closer to the consumption point, has kept New York's industries healthier and busier than industry elsewhere. Bank failures have been conspicuously few. Savings banks deposits, now at an all-time peak, show that the Sweeneys have more cash on hand than ever before. And better business for the whole country makes business better first in New York!

Matching this best market in America today is the best advertising medium. With more circulation than ever before, The News reaches two-thirds of New York City families and more in the suburbs than any other newspaper—most of the Sweeneys, and most of the Stuyvesants, too! Advertising in The News today taps most of the active buying power in this market. The small News page still gives all advertising greater effectiveness. The cost is at an all-time low.

And The News is still making sales. It was first in display linage among all morning newspapers in the whole country this year! May we tell you more?

REPEAL IN ILLINOIS.

The states voting on the eighteenth amendment in their special conventions have gone for repeal with great majorities. This was true also in the popular elections which selected the delegates. New York went eight to one in the election, Michigan three to one, etc. The decision has not been in any doubt in any state voting thus far.

For reasons which are apparent the voting has not reached the belt where opposition to repeal is expected to make its last stand, although Michigan, where the convention had only one dry, would have been put in the last ditch list a few years ago. The prohibitionists, where they have vestiges of political control, will block action as long as they can. Failure to act on the amendment is a vote against repeal.

There is contagion in political action, as the prohibitionists themselves realize. They had advantage of it when they carried their amendment through the legislatures of states where if there had been any reflection at all they could not have prevailed. A number of the states ratifying the amendment came out of a daze within less than a year and started to undo what they had so rashly consented to do for reasons which they could not later understand.

Advantage now is with the repeal amendment. It is an advantage not based upon sentimental confusion and emotional expectations, but upon experience and reasoned judgment. Illinois votes for the selection of delegates June 5. Both the parties have joined in presenting a ticket for repeal. Inasmuch as all voting in Illinois has been against prohibition it is expected that the ticket for repeal will be elected, but the opponents of prohibition are asked not to take this for granted. It is important that the vote be large and the majority for repeal convincing. Opponents of Volstead in Indiana, which votes the day following the Illinois election, hope that Illinois will set a pace for their own people.

It is already apparent that repeal is the only proper way out for the nation. Indeed if the prohibitionists were wise and really considerate of the country's welfare they would agree to this. Repeal will permit the orderly handling of the question of liquor regulation. If the eighteenth amendment should be retained because of the stubbornness of thirteen states, small in population and minor in political rank, the consequences might be deplorable. It would be impossible to bring the problem under control legally. States containing a great majority of the American people would be prevented from passing laws to regulate the manufacture and sale of intoxicants. Lawlessness would be increased and the situation might very well come to require a sanction of nullification as the lesser of two evils.

There is, furthermore, the immediate question of public revenue. The alternative to the repeal of the amendment and the resumption of liquor excise taxes is a new boost in income taxes. The administration has called the attention of the voters to this alternative. If they take the amendment out of the constitution they will keep these impossible new levies out of the tax bills. The bills cannot tolerate the new taxes, the constitution cannot tolerate the amendment.

In such a predicament the answer should not be hard to find. Illinois votes on the question June 5. Its response ought to be felt throughout the country, giving repeal another impetus on its way.

CONTROLLED INFLATION.

Secretary Woodin has announced that the federal reserve banks will continue their purchases of government bonds and notes if dullness appears in the commodity and security markets. This is not good news. It suggests pretty strongly that the additional credit which will be created by the open market operations of the reserve system will find its way into the speculative markets. Some temporary improvement in business may result, but it will be at immense cost. A new speculative boom and a new collapse lie at the end of the road to which Mr. Woodin is pointing. It is idle to pretend that there can be a controlled inflation if the principle which governs is that every time the markets show the slightest sign of weakness, from whatever cause, the hypodermic is to be employed.

TITLES IN CANADA.

Prime Minister Bennett of Canada let it be known, and apparently is not unwilling that the word should carry to London, that there is no objection on the part of the Canadian government to the bestowal of titles on Canadian citizens whom the king may wish to distinguish. There is objection on the part of the Canadian house of commons, but the prime minister intimates that is an objection not shared by the other functions of government, and consequently, being incomplete, does not prevail.

The dominion's lower house sticks by a resolution adopted several years ago requesting the British government not to give titles to Canadians. The lower house has refused since then to recede. It adheres to its democratic principles and maintains its ground. Titles are inconsistent in the doctrines of democracy, and the Canadian dominion representatives, or a majority of them, regard the continuance of the petty noblesse as undignified.

Vanity also holds its ground and can be satisfied with small favors even if it cannot expect big ones. Possibly if Mr. Bennett's apparel were examined a small lightning rod would be found lying along his spine and projecting just above his collar. As Sir Richard of the Ice he might appear in the light of one who has deserved well of the empire.

PERMISSIVE POWERS.

A good many observers are convinced that if the administration uses to the full the powers already voted it, to say nothing of those powers which congress is apparently going to convey, nothing can save the nation's economy from ruin. The saving element in the situation is that the powers granted are all permissive. They are not mandatory. The President in his discretion may use them or not as he sees fit.

It is not reassuring, however, to discover that though the power to put the domestic allotment scheme into operation is discretionary, the secretary of agriculture is already at work preparing to give it a trial. The price of wheat has risen from about 45 cents to more than 75 cents without the allotment plan, and at 75 cents a very substantial portion of the American wheat yield is grown at a profit. Under these circumstances there is little justification for entering upon a disturbing and highly experimental program of taxation of consumers for the benefit of farmers.

The disturbing effect of the experiment will be heightened because business men will conclude that other permissive powers granted under the emergency laws enacted at this session will be employed even where the need for action is not clear and even if conditions continue to improve without artificial aids.

SEDITIOUS TEACHING.

Although THE TRIBUNE does not support the bills directed at seditious teaching in the colleges, the discussion they have created is unquestionably useful. The bills' intent is commendable, but they are so phrased as to open the way to perversion and abuse and are of dubious constitutionality. One measure would cancel the tax exemption of institutions in which seditious matter is alleged to be taught. This is intended to correct or restrain the evil in privately endowed institutions. The other bill withdraws support from tax supported institutions. The phraseology of the bills is so general and open to loose interpretation that they may be used for improper and ulterior purposes to restrict a legitimate freedom of instruction in the higher schools and the proper imparting of knowledge. Sedition ought certainly not be spread under cover of education, but the evil should be prevented by means consistent with the American principle of free thought.

Nevertheless, the discussion aroused by the bills calls attention to a condition which deserves effective handling. The attack by radicals, Reds, and pacifists upon the president of the University of New York and others at a review of the R. O. T. C. unit of that institution and similar manifestations at other schools and colleges show the influence of radicalism and pacifism upon immature minds. To be informed of all political theories is a part of education, but our youth should be protected from the influence of teachers who take advantage of their position to propagandize surreptitiously, or, as many of them do, openly, against the institutions and doctrines of our country and in behalf of theories destructive of the American system. Academic freedom does not go to the extent of justifying the exposure of youth to the influence of teachers who seek to undermine loyalty and impose their own opinions in the guise of instruction.

This wrong is especially flagrant at a time when widespread discontent and misfortune fills the air with ill considered proposals and tempts especially the immature to hasty judgments. Against this tendency the teachers should offer restraint, not encouragement. But too many of them show an impatience as callow as inexperienced youth is prone to. The reasoned defense of American institutions and ideals is not prominent in the teaching body. Its absence is ominous and not to be ignored. American ideals and institutions are worthy of better treatment in our schools. But disapproval and a covert or open inclination to Socialist and even communist theories and experiments seem to have gained a strong hold upon our so-called intelligentsia. Among our professional educators the phenomenon calls for challenge. The direct preaching of revolution is, of course, confined to the Socialist and communist party agitators who have made no headway with the American people. The process which needs serious treatment is the infiltration of Socialist ideas and assumptions through men and women of more repute, and especially within the teaching profession, the influence of one sided criticism of American conditions.

CHICAGO'S MAGNIFICENT ACHIEVEMENT.

[Rockford Register-Republic.]

Having carried through to completion during a period of unprecedented economic stress the greatest exposition project in the world's history, Chicago on Saturday will formally open A Century of Progress, designed to show the tremendous forward steps taken in all forms of human endeavor in the last 100 years.

Vast as is the physical aspect of the Fair, its size and beauty reveal only partially the indomitable spirit which turned the plan from a dream into a reality in such a brief space of time and under such disheartening conditions.

Despite every adverse circumstance, work proceeded on schedule, and when the energy from a beam of light from the distant star Arcturus touches the grounds and buildings into brilliance Saturday evening civic Chicago promises the Exposition will be finished in every detail.

It has been a truly magnificent achievement, and has given not only to this nation but to the world an inspiring example of the great accomplishments which are possible when courage, determination, and vision set out to overcome apparently insurmountable obstacles.

The Exposition reflects the finest of Chicago's civic traditions. Into the huge project along the lake front has gone much of the same spirit which enabled the stricken city to arise from the ashes of its great fire in 1871. Rockford, with the rest of Illinois, shares in the pride of its big neighbor's ambitious undertaking, and joins in extending to Chicago every good wish for the success of A Century of Progress.

Forty years ago another World's Fair was held in the city on the shores of Lake Michigan. In the minds of many of the older generation recollections of visits to the Exposition, its Midway and many concessions, still stir pleasant memories of the wonders then revealed. In this year's Fair every effort has been made to portray faithfully the interesting story of the world's progress in the last hundred years. It should prove an intensely interesting and instructive panorama for young and old.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY of the Presbyterian church has ruled that an autoist who drives in the inner lane so that other cans can't pass him is a sinner as much as any kind described by the Bible. But is that going to make the road hog reform? No, a road hog is born that way. Calling him a sinner will no more change his ways than calling him a public benefactor. He's used to being called things; he's been called everything that can possibly be thought of, and what of it? There he is, with a cheerful smile on his face, driving happily along the inner lane and never batting an eyelash. And we sometimes think that a rhinoceros has the thickest hide of any animal in the world. Tsk! tsk! tsk! A road hog has a rhinoceros beat a mile.

A CROSSWORD CONNOISSEUR.

And took great pride in proper classic phrase,
And had, they vow, an extraordinary,
Apt and voluminous vocabulary.
And now, retired upon a payless pension,
She gives much time and study and attention
To crossword puzzles. Her apartments are Arranged in queer designs, quadrangular;
The walls adorned with geometric squares,
And all about are checker-board affairs:
The furniture, the bedspread, pillow shams
Are placed in perfect parallelograms,
While everywhere are seen rectangle rows
Of crossword bric-a-brac and curios.
Upon the mantel sits the great god Ra,
Attended by a tawny-hued amah.
Near by squat Esus and an ancient El,
Also an image of the mighty Bel.
Within a bowl there swims a finny tai,
Watched by a three-toed ai and a sai.
Upon a card is fixed a splendid dor,
A pin thrust through his cor. A towering tor
Is painted on a screen, and there's a gat
Extending from the foothills, where a lat
Stands out alone. Midstream, a tropic ait,
Luxuriant with nutant palm and date.
Arrayed upon a table are all sorts
Of miscellaneous and curious orts,—
Of crossword specimens: Eri, emu,
Aes, ecu, ess, espagnolette and esne,
Tau, ule, til (which is a kind of sesame),
A bit of aa, a stuffed and mounted oo,
A tod, an oast, a miniature igloo,
A wide-winged ern, some lerp, a deep sea id,
Poi, iva, lei, a carven caryatid,
A ratite moa and a fleet-foot goa,
A steel engraving of a Grecian stoa,
An alb, an obi and a luscious al,
Green sprigs of acer, upas and ipal,
And other things chrestomathic and queer,
Gleaned slowly from ochletic year to year.
Perhaps her mind has a peculiar slant,
But certainly she is not otiant;
And who would cavil or dehisce at her
Would simply prove himself an onager.

THE SEDITION BILL, which has passed the Illinois senate and is now being excitedly discussed pro and con, seems to be faulty in one respect. While it provides that almost anything a person says that another person doesn't like can cause the offender to be haled before the courts and tried for treason, it falls short in the fact that it is not nearly so funny as the Tennessee monkey law, which forbids the teaching of the descent of man from monkeys in the schools. If Illinois must have ridiculous laws they ought to be funny, so that we can get a good laugh as we are burned at the stake or boiled in oil.

"BIGELOW, Noted Author, Announces He Has Become a Nudist."—Headline. We have wondered a good deal lately whether the authors or the book publishers would be the first to decide they'd have to go without clothes. And the authors win. Well, we hope the book market picks up a lot before next winter.

THAT DAY, if and when Secretary Woodin leaves the cabinet, must be regarded as a great blow to American humor. Not much in the way of rollicking humor comes out of Washington anyhow, and the appointment of Mr. Woodin brought forth a mighty roar of mirth from Maine to California, and from every city, village, and town the wits shrieked with laughter as they managed to stammer between ha ha's—"Don't take any Woodin money." It was the first real merriment heard since the depression started. It's really too bad, just when we get a fine joke, for Mr. Morgan to go and step on it.

ULTIMATE END.

Each advertisement I read
Tries to make me see the need
Of vacationing two weeks
By blue seas or mountain creeks.
Brook trout fishing, mountain sheep,
Breezes that conduce to sleep.
Norman cider, chateau wines,
Life preservers, trailing vines.
Moons on water, music, love . . .
Oh, I know the magic of Nature when a man's around.
It affects my pulse, I've found.
But with every passing summer
I have learned my technique's dumber.
For I fall and in September
When he's gone I still remember.
So this year I shall not roam—
I can break my heart at home.

HELEN WELSHIMER.

"REBUKE REPUBLICANS, Sen. Dieterich Asks."—Headline. Come, come! After what they suffered last November and since? Ah, any one mean enough to rebuke the sad-eyed Republicans now would steal an all day sucker from a baby in the park.

THE ADVANTAGE OF GOING BAREFOOTED.

THERE are children who must wear shoes because the hookworm will get them if they don't watch out. In some places it has been found that the best method of controlling the prevalence of hookworm is to have the people wear shoes. In some parts of the world still other parasites get into the system through the skin of the foot, and wearing shoes is the best medicine physicians can prescribe.

There is another side to the story. Wherever these several parasites do not prevail there is at least a possibility that the case for going barefooted is a winner. Fallen arches, and the type of disorders grouped under that name, largely result from wearing shoes. Going barefooted builds up the foot muscles and ligaments. The small boy who practices picking up marbles with his toes is giving himself the best of treatment for flatfoot—either curative or preventive.

Many foot maladies develop because the shoes worn are too narrow across the ball of the foot. When one walks in his bare feet the toes spread as the weight falls on the front of the foot. That is natural. When narrow shoes are worn this spreading cannot occur. Restraint of spreading in the toe region is one of the causes of bunions.

The first day one tries going barefoot brings more discomfort than pleasure. But within a short time the soles are thick and insensitive. Callus is formed for the purpose of protection and it promotes comfort when it is reasonably near uniform. The callus that hurts is the lumpy kind. The callus on the foot of a shoeless boy is a joy. He does not have the painful kind. That results from going shod. The remedy for the callus that hurts is going barefooted, or wearing shoes that rub evenly.

The same holds true of corns. They are protective and shoeless people do not have them. The permanent remedy—curative and preventive—for corns is to go barefooted or to wear shoes that do not rub the place where the corn hurts.

Ingrowing toenails result from wearing shoes that pinch at the front end of the toes. Shoeless people do not have this trouble.

It is said that one part of the schedule of Mohammedan religious requirements is that nothing shall be worn across the instep. This predisposes the Mohammedan people to the wearing of sandals rather than shoes. This, in some measure, makes for foot health. One method of treating pompholyx is having the subject wear sandals, preferably with socks. Mohammed, as well as Moses, knew something of personal hygiene.

STOMACH PAINS.

Mrs. F. S. M. writes: 1. For some time I have been having stomach pains and indigestion, with gas and heaviness in the abdomen after meals. I eat simply. Could there be any connection between this digestive disorder and bad breath?

2. Will pyorrhea cause bad breath? I am fastidious in the care of my mouth and teeth.

3. About twice a day I spit up chunks of white mucus from the nose. It seems to have no odor. Is this catarrh? Can it be the cause of halitosis?

REPLY.

1. There are several causes of halitosis. Your statement indicates that the cause, in your case, could be in your digestive apparatus.

2. Yes. But you appear to be taking good care of your mouth.

3. Among the causes of halitosis are cheesy matter in the tonsil crypts and putrifying material from ozena. Your description does not suggest either.

GOITER.

J. M. C. writes: Would iodine prevent a goiter from growing?

REPLY.

Iodine, properly used, has a place in the treatment of goiter. The drug benefits some cases and harms others.

MORTGAGE RENEWAL.

Chicago, May 25.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I have a mortgage on my home which is 21 years old. It has been extended up until now. The party that holds the mortgage wants his money. The note is 21 years old. If I can get some one to take the mortgage over is the old note good and how long is it good for? It is backed by a trust deed. If the old note should be canceled can a new note be made out on the old trust deed? J. O.

The statute of limitations does not run as long as the interest payments are kept up. We advise the recording of a renewal agreement before permitting twenty years to expire on any mortgage. Since you are the debtor, we do not see how you should be worried by these matters.

PROPERTY POSSESSION.

Chicago, May 25.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am interested in a cottage on a 25x125 foot lot. The building is of no value and has not been occupied for three years. The taxes are past due, also special assessment. 1. If I pay the taxes and assessment can I move into this cottage and take possession as a home? 2. If not, what steps should I take first before moving in? What legal obstructions will confront me? R. L.

1. At any time short of the seven years the true owners could treat you as a trespasser and put you out.

2. In order to be in, as a matter of right, it would be necessary for you to purchase or rent. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

40 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 31, 1893.

CHICAGO.—The World's Fair proved a magnet for many of the thousands who labored not yesterday because it was Decoration day. It is estimated 165,000 people entered the fair grounds. Go where one would it was impossible to get away from the sightseers. The more inaccessible the spot the more they seemed to throng to it, and even the packing case department, the windmill exhibit, and the end of the Casino pier had their own crowds.

The duke of Veragua, the duchess, the Hon. Maria del Pilar Colon y Aguilera, the Hon. Christopher Colon de Toledo, accompanied by Commander Dickins and W. E. Curtis, mixed in with the crowds at the Fair yesterday.

"Old Glory" floated from the tower of the moated castle of the German village, from Blarney castle, from the fortress tower of old Vienna, from the Chinese pagodas, from the domes in the Turkish village, from the towers of Cairo street, from the warrior perches of the Dahomans' West African kraal, from the gates of Drogheda, from the balcony of the Hungarian café, from King Bull's tent in Lapland, from the Moorish palace, from St. Peter's, from the Japanese theater, Tunisian and East Indian bazaars, from Hagenbeck's arena, the two glass works, and over all the buildings of the Midway plaisance. The piper in front of the beauty show did his level best to blast out national airs, and the Syrians who relieved him had a difficult time of it with the "Star Spangled Banner." All this was in honor of the American soldier—tribute from the nations represented at the World's Fair.

Frederick Villiers, special correspondent of the London Graphic, a war artist of world-wide reputation, was arrested for taking pictures in the World's Fair grounds yesterday. Mr. Villiers entered the Manufactures building armed with a hand camera and was proceeding to take snapshots of points of interest when a Columbian guard asked for his permit. Having none, he was arrested, but after he identified himself he was given a permit.

The United Presbyterian general assembly in session at Monmouth resolved, "That it is the sense of this assembly that to attend the World's Fair in case the gates are open on the Lord's day would be a sin against our risen Lord and a compromise of our Christian testimony. Therefore, we pledge ourselves not to patronize the Fair by our presence or in any other way."

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 31, 1917.

LONDON.—The recent lull in the fighting has had no effect whatever upon the British aerial offensive, which continues day and night with unrelenting intensity. In the last few days there have been witnessed some of the most desperate air battles of the entire war. One or two of these have been fought at the unprecedented height of 18,000 feet, or more than three and one-half miles from the earth.

LONDON.—Yesterday's admiralty report of the last week's U-boat toll shows a total of twenty-one British ships sunk, compared with thirty last week. The total was the smallest for any week, excepting only the second, since the unrestricted submarine warfare was begun by the Germans. British ships sunk to date total 491.

WAR SUMMARY.—Rome reports further gains by the Italians on the Triest front. The Italian lines have been extended west of Medeazza. Fighting on the western front is confined to artillery actions with patrol and minor infantry engagements. Vienna reports livelier fighting on the eastern front, especially in eastern Galicia.

CHICAGO.—Fifteen million dollars is to be expended upon the expansion of the Great Lakes Naval station, it was announced from the administration building of the station. Word has been received from Secretary Daniels approving the plans of Capt. W. A. Moffett providing for the expenditure of the $15,000,000 in quadrupling the capacity of the station.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Special orders were given government officials throughout the country to keep close watch on meetings at which there is likely to be agitation against registration under the war army act, and prepare to arrest speakers who encourage violations of the law.

PRESIDIO, Tex.—Francisco Villa last night held a border post opposite an American town and again United States troops are patrolling the border, while Villa cavalrymen are silhouetted against the night sky on the southern bank of the Rio Grande.

RAILWAY RATES COMPARED.

Cincinnati, O., May 22.—In THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE Mr. David Darrah, writing from Rome, shows that the Italian government owned railways are losing $35,000,000 a year, and this is partly accounted for, at least, by what he states as "cheap rates." Permit me to say that there are no cheap rates on the Italian socialized railways in any true sense. The Italian railways have a third class passenger rate that is lower than anything we have, but if we measure the ability of the average citizen to pay for passage there and here, we find that our rates are far below those of the Italian lines.

When it comes to freight—and it's from the carrying of freight there as well as here that the main source of revenue is secured—freight rates on the socialized railways of Italy average 2.09 cents per ton per mile, as against one cent in this country. Under normal conditions the 10,384 miles of railways owned and operated by the nation receive, in round numbers, $160,000,000 a year for freight transportation. If the people of Italy enjoyed as low freight rates as we do they would save more than $80,000,000 a year. Wages on the Italian railways average $851 a year, or less than half the wage rate on our railways. We tax our private railways $1,400 per mile per year; the socialized lines in Italy don't pay taxes. If we reckon taxes, high freight rates and low wages by our American wages, taxes and freight rates, we see that the Italian railways suffer an actual loss of more than $100,000,000 a year. That's a mighty big price to pay for state socialism.

ABOUT STATUES.

Chicago, May 25.—I heartily want to approve the suggestion made by S. A. Arthur in THE TRIBUNE for May 24. The peristyle at the north end of Grant park should be house-cleaned, and while the cleaners are in the general neighborhood they should attend to the Logan statue at the south end of Grant park. Its condition is disgraceful—an insult to a noted general of the civil war and to America's greatest sculptor.

While writing about statues, let me thank THE TRIBUNE for its articles descriptive of Leonard Crunelle's excellent Lincoln monuments at Dixon and Freeport. It is refreshing in these instances to notice the praise given to the artist whose accomplishment, all too frequently, is recognized but whose name is customarily wholly overlooked.

The two Lincoln memorials, unlike the Logan equestrian monument, are well cared for, the bronze figures are clean, and the surrounding park areas are well cared for. J. S. D.

FROM A TAXPAYER.

Chicago, May 25.—It is time for somebody in charge of our school system to be courageous enough to cut expenses and salaries. Over 80 per cent of us small taxpayers who have children in school and who have had to take salary cuts of at least 50 per cent have paid our taxes right up to date, and it does not seem fair that we have to suffer the continual tirades of the teachers to the school children about not being paid. A great many of us small taxpayers are also college graduates, but have had to take cuts in wages in excess of three times the amount of what the teachers have, and yet we have to pay them their high salaries and pay school expenses which are way out of proportion to conditions at the present time.

Of course we are all anxious that our children have as many advantages as possible, but there are times when retrenchment is necessary and it is a great deal better to have a medium grade school system than to have none at all. The talk of closing the schools is ridiculous and quite unfair to those of us who are paying our taxes. Also there ought to be some laws passed whereby these agitators and radical minded teachers could be discharged, as they are not setting a good example for our children. Naturally none of us like to have our salaries cut, but the rest of us have been forced to take it and it is about time that the teachers and school board realized that there is not as much money to spend as in the boom days, and that prevailing conditions have to be faced. The sooner the better for all concerned.

A TAXPATER WHO HAS PAID.

HOW COME!

Chicago, May 26.—In 1928 while I was employed by the Commonwealth Edison company a corps of company officials began a World's Fair certificate drive. Many employés immediately bought them at $5 each because they were informed that when the Fair opened they would be worth $10 in actual ticket value. Later others, following veiled threats concerning possible discharge, less willingly applied for them.

Now, five years later, these certificates are being exchanged for a booklet of ten 75 cent tickets, which can be purchased anywhere at the present time for $5. How come? J. H. S.

CRACKING THE WHIP.

Evanston, Ill., May 25.—The bribe offered by the administration and emphasized by Postmaster General Farley to the various states of the elimination of new taxes if repeal of the eighteenth amendment is voted is reprehensible and unworthy. The question should be settled on its merits alone, without threat, bribe, or favor offered. "Cracking the whip" does not appear to be, as alleged by the repealists, the weapon only of the prohibitionists. FAIR PLAY.

TEA from CHINA

CHINESE legend records that the virtues of tea were discovered by Emperor Chinnung in 2737 B. C. Yet not until more than four thousand years later was tea brought to England. Even then its prohibitive cost of $30 to $50 a pound made it a luxury of royalty.

Then a tea advertisement—one of the first advertisements ever run on a product other than books and remedies — appeared in Mercurius Politicus, September, 1658. It read:

"That excellent and by all Physitians approved China Drink, called by the Chineans Tcha, by other nations Tay, alias Tee, is sold at the Sultanesse Head, a cophee-house in Sweetings Rents, by the Royal Exchange, London."

Favorable public opinion soon demanded tea. Prices came down as the volume grew. London became the central tea market of the world. An entirely new type of ship was built to transport tea rapidly—the China Clipper, with her knife-edged prow and spreading sails. Great fleets would race from Foochow to London with the new crops of tea.

Thus another product which had been reserved for royalty became a staple with the common people. Thus again did favorable public opinion, fostered by advertising, complete a task at which previous centuries had failed.

Some one once defined favorable public opinion as being a mixture of good product, fair price, sincere advertising, plus a generous proportion of time. Favorable public opinion builds great factories and stores. At its bidding, products prosper and grow.

Favorable public opinion builds newspaper circulations, too. It has given The Philadelphia Bulletin more than half a million daily. (Two and one-half times the circulation of any other Philadelphia evening newspaper, more than any Sunday newspaper, more than all morning newspapers combined.)

Favorable public opinion has carried The Bulletin into nearly every Philadelphia home, without a single inducement other than its merit as a newspaper .... without premium or circulation contest.

Favorable public opinion has resulted in The Bulletin carrying double the number of individual retail store advertisements that any other Philadelphia evening newspaper carries, more than any daily and Sunday newspaper combined, and more national advertising than any other daily newspaper in America.

And favorable public opinion has given Bulletin advertisers the low cost that comes with widespread demand: Its advertising cost per reader is one of the lowest among all newspapers.

Create favorable public opinion, at low cost, for your product in Philadelphia by advertising in The Bulletin—the newspaper nearly everybody reads.

SUPREME COURT TOLD HOW JUDGE FREED GANGSTER

Brief Assails Shurtleff for Action.

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., May 30.—[Special.]—Perhaps the most sweeping, the most violent attack upon the conduct of an Illinois circuit judge is pending here before the state Supreme court.

Examination today of the records of the mandamus proceedings filed by the attorney general of Illinois and the state's attorney of Cook county to compel Judge Edward D. Shurtleff to "set aside, cancel, expunge and strike from the record" his order releasing James [Fur] Sammons, public enemy, gangster and machine gunner, disclosed a degree of condemnation for the lower court that is expected to play a big part in Judge Shurtleff's candidacy for reelection next Monday.

"Reversed" Supreme Court.

These records disclose fully for the first time that in giving the convicted murderer his freedom Judge Shurtleff really "reviewed and reversed" the Supreme court which on June 18, 1931, refused the habeas corpus that the Marengo jurist granted, the cases presented in the lower and upper courts being identical in all essential particulars. The Supreme court also denied Sammons a rehearing, and in customary practice the case would have been considered as closed forever.

"But," reads a part of the brief filed by Oscar E. Carlstrom, then attorney general, and John A. Swanson, then state's attorney of Cook county, "counsel for Sammons, not satisfied with the decision of this honorable court, pursued what we believe was an unusual course by filing another petition for habeas corpus in the Circuit court of McHenry county on behalf of the same prisoner for his release from the same imprisonment and against the same warden as respondent.

Assures Jurisdiction.

"And what is stranger than fiction, the respondent as judge of the Circuit court of McHenry county assumed jurisdiction of said habeas corpus petition, ordered a writ of habeas corpus to issue, and heard the case all over again upon the same identical record evidence [with two minor additions hereinafter noted] as had been presented to and considered by the Supreme court in the original habeas corpus case there filed.

"But stranger still, the respondent reviewed and reversed the action of the Supreme court and ordered that James Sammons be discharged from the penitentiary.

"It is apparent from the written opinion handed down by the respondent that there was but slight hesitation on his part in his action in that regard."

There follow in the brief numerous citations setting up that the Supreme court has a controlling power over all other state courts and that its final decision on habeas corpus is just as binding as in any other case—"otherwise the Supreme court would not be supreme in such cases."

In the argument attached to the brief of the state the same contention also is emphasized.

No New Evidence.

Further on in the argument appear these two paragraphs:

"No subsequent events occurred which have changed the situation of the relator Sammons so as to present a new case for the consideration of any other court. And, while there is not and cannot be any conflict or disputed question of fact in this case because both the petitions and return are based upon actual record evidence and nothing else, the petition in the Circuit court presented the same questions as were presented to the Supreme court; and it is respectfully submitted that the opinion and judgment of the Supreme court cannot be disregarded or set aside."

"It is not to be tolerated that this same question should be again raised and litigated by the same party in another and inferior court."

But this case was not the only effort Sammons made to obtain a writ of habeas corpus from the Supreme court. The conclusion of the argument of the state in this proceeding quotes from a decision in a similar case delivered by Chief Justice Frank K. Dunn, three years ago when Sammons, held on a charge of vagrancy, was refused bail in the Chicago Municipal court.

Scattered through the state pleadings are names well known to the newspaper reading public in connection with the pardon and parole scandals of the régime of Len Small, who first commuted Sammons' sentence and later ordered his discharge upon the recommendation of the parole board managed by Chauncey Jenkins and Will Colvin, whose removal from their positions was forced by action of a Will county jury following disclosures resulting from the murder of Deputy Warden Klein at Joliet.

A tour of part of the 17th circuit, which includes Lake, McHenry, Boone, and Winnebago counties, has disclosed that Judge Shurtleff is on the defensive against charges in the Sammons case and also his connection with the Lorimer senatorial election scandal. The Democrats, backing only one nominee, Charles E. Carpenter of Crystal Lake, instead of three as the Republicans are doing, are centering their fire on Judge Shurtleff.

BLAME POLITICS FOR DISMISSAL OF SCHOOL CHIEF

Charges were made last night that politics prompted the ouster of Will C. Robb as superintendent of the Proviso High school. The school has 3,200 pupils from Maywood, Melrose Park, Forest Park, Bellwood, and Hillside.

Robb was notified Saturday night that his contract would not be renewed next September. He was voted out by School Trustees John M. Newcomer, Leslie B. Allen, and Leslie J. Smith. Trustees George Bosco and Albert C. Martens voted for Robb.

Martens and Bosco asserted last night that a political machine including Forest Coburn, village president of Broadview; Joseph Imburgio, president of Melrose Park, and Kurt Berliner, Republican committeeman of Proviso township and a commissioner of Forest Park, had helped to dictate Supt. Robb's ouster.

According to Robb's supporters, Trustee Newcomer said that Robb's dismissal was partly due to the fact that he recently was elected governor of the 40th Rotary club district. It was feared, it was said, that this responsibility would interfere with his school duties. Robb retorted that his duties as governor would take only his school vacation time.

NEW ZEALAND'S IDLE THREATEN MINISTER'S LIFE

Secret Police Protect Cabinet Member.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AUCKLAND, N. Z., May 30.—Following threats on his life and an attempt to burn his house, a police guard has been detailed to protect Joseph G. Coates, minister of employment in the coalition government here.

The ministerial residence was set on fire several weeks ago. Now a second attempt has been made to destroy the building.

Wood shavings and petroleum were used by the incendiaries, but the blaze was discovered by Robert Groves, the Coates gardener. Detection of this latest attempt to destroy Coates' living quarters has brought to light the details of the earlier attempt, which were suppressed at the time.

Receives Threat on Life.

Following the attack by firebugs on the Coates residence, the minister received threats on his life in letters written by anonymous persons. One piece of paper was sent to Mrs. Coates. It contained the scrawled words:

"This is for Coates—he won't see the next one."

Wrapped in the paper was a bullet. From that date Coates has been under secret guard.

As finance minister and for four years its premier, Coates is the real center of the government. His party was swept from power in the election landslide of 1928, but he returned to office with the formation of the coalition cabinet in 1931.

Real Head of Government.

From then on it has been increasingly apparent that he was the real head of the government of which Prime Minister Forbes was the nominal leader. He induced the government to inflate the currency and he mapped out the government's policy in unemployment relief.

In this he has been a particular target for hatred because of his abrupt refusal to consider representations of the idle and his insistense on going his own way.

Members of the government, bound to his dominant personality, fear the result of any attack upon him. Removal of Coates from the cabinet would leave New Zealand's ministry a gathering of nonentities and the government knows it.

MUNITIONS FIRM IN FRANCE SHOWS PROFIT FOR YEAR

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, May 30.—That the armaments business profits by new and better models was demonstrated again today when Hotchkiss & Co., one of the world's great munitions firms, announced a 60 franc dividend for 1932 on the common stock. Hotchkiss also makes automobiles, but last year was a bad one for that industry.

The president's report gives the secret of Hotchkiss's successful year.

"In response to demands more than military tactics," it reads in part, "the staff of workers."

company has developed more and more powerful automatic machine guns destined for all sorts of use in land, naval and air forces. In the field of automatic arms firing infantry cartridges, Hotchkiss has notably brought to a high degree of perfection its rifle-machine gun which, during the course of particularly severe official tests, has demonstrated its qualities of precision and resistance.

"The company has also received important orders. Thanks to the qualities of these various materials and to the reputation they have won in nearly all countries, Hotchkiss has been able to register sufficient orders to keep its factories at Levalloos-Perret in activity and maintain a normal

Find Woman Dead; May Be Victim of Heart Disease

An unidentified woman about 55 years old, was found dead yesterday in a ditch alongside the belt railroad at Archer and South Central Park avenues. She apparently had died of heart disease. She wore a gray hat, blue gray dress, black coat, and black shoes and stockings. She was about 5 feet 4 inches tall.

COUPLE ROBBED IN GARAGE.

Ben Fisher and his wife, Bertha, were robbed of $70 and a fur neck piece valued at $90 by an armed man as they were putting their automobile in the garage at the rear of their home at 4829 Christiana avenue early yesterday.

Miss Strobel Picks Poetry for Ark Trip

She Chooses New Volumes You'd Need in Refuge.

BY MARION STROBEL.

[Author of "Once in a Blue Moon" and "Lost City" (volumes of verse) and "A Woman of Fashion," "Sylvia's in Town," etc. (novels).

IF the rains continue, let us not forget to include certain 1933 books of poetry along with the other valuables we are herding onto any available ark.

Let us take along Ezra Pound's "XXX Cantos," [Farrar & Rinehart]. Ernest Hemingway has said "The best of Pound's writing—and it is in the Cantos—will last as long as there is any literature": Hugh Walpole has said: "He is a beautiful mingler of dead worlds and live ones"; James Joyce, "Nothing could be more true than to say that we all owe a great deal to him. But I, most of all, surely." And Archibald MacLeish acknowledges his debt by stating that Pound more than any other man "is responsible for the emancipation of modern English poetry from the prose tradition of the nineteenth century."

EZRA POUND.

But it is not for these reasons, but for the sound of the words Pound uses, his verbs that turn into nouns with a hyphen—"cliff-wash," "sand-stretch," "sun-film" [MacLeish has learned this device from Pound]; it is for his similes—"the town like a one-eyed goose"; for his alliterations—"by the curved carved foot of the couch," and not for his erudition, his too frequent Greek, Italian, and Latin digressions—that I would take him.

Let there be a place for Hart Crane's "Collected Poems," [Liveright]. These are for the initiate, but Waldo Frank's absorbing introduction should clarify "The Bridge"—Hart Crane's most ambitious and superbly structured poem—for every one. The beauty, the sweep, the word dazzle of the climax needs no clarification.

There should be room, too, for the young poets: Lawrence Lee and Carleton Drewry. Mr. Lee in "Summer Goes On" [Scribner's] has enough buoyancy to keep any ark afloat. He uses traditional rhymes and meters, but his verse is as fresh as a spring morning. It is for any one and every one. It is—I say this without degrogatory intent—wholesome. He accepts life. He has left the post-war neurotic disillusioned singers far behind; he is an authentic and welcome portent of the new—the simpler, saner song.

Carleton Drewry has also the sensitive ear in "Proud Horns," [Macmillan], the perfected technique. He is more mental, but hardly less poignant than Mr. Lee. Take the lovely ending of his "Interlude":

And wash your mind of memory in sunlit hours,
And walk, as children walk, through a far green meadow,
Innocently pulling the strange bodied bodied flowers.

Then, two by two, for, though so unlike, they have England in common, take along de la Mare and D. H. Lawrence. In "The Fleeting" [Knopf], de la Mare dispenses his own humorous, individual flavor and a simply hair raising eerieness that—to quote him—"ghosts my heart away." "The Feckless Dinner Party" is a spook from burnt soup to the butler Toomes.

The "Last Poems" [Viking] of Lawrence are, for the most part, casual, careless, irritable, but in a few, notably those in the appendix, we find Lawrence, the person, integrated, meeting death with the same unflinching passionate honesty with which he met life.

With these six books aboard there should still be room for the new edition of Willa Cather's "April Twilights" [Knopf], for Harold Lewis Cook's "Spell Against Death" [Harper's] [Mr. Cook is too good a poet not to slough off the Millay influence] for Horace Gregory's "No Retreat" [Harcourt Brace], for G. K. Chesterton's spirited "Queen of Seven Swords" [Sheed and Ward], for Burton Stevenson's useful anthology of "Great Americans as Seen by the Poets" [Lippincott], and decidedly for Elizabeth Drew's appreciative book, "Discovering Poetry" [Morton]—for Miss Drew has been able so deliciously to communicate her own delight that poetry, the Cinderella of the arts, may yet become the people's choice.

William Faulkner, whose prose is as moving as any being written today, has a verse also. But "The Green Bough" [Smith-Haas] isn't much. A few rudimentary rhymes, a few shocking similes. This book, at least, we needn't take along.

Fallstaff or Pepys Needed to Keep Up with Cabarets

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

Keeping up to the minute among Chicago's look-and-listen cafés this summer is a job for Haroun al Raschid, Samuel Pepys, and Sir John Falstaff combined. Each of these worthies was a champion at nocturnal exploits—Haroun as a tireless man-about-town, Sam as an insatiable gossip, and Jack as a relentless eater and drinker.

The Congress hotel opened its Joseph Urban room last Friday night with Vincent Lopez's "boys" in the orchestra chairs and a little floor show that seemed to scorn the banality of a bare-legged ballet. [Every one said, "Where are the girls?" and perhaps they will presently be added to the program.] The specialties were contributed by Robert Royce, a singer, who embraces the microphone with ardor; Sis and Bud Roberts, a dashing team of adolescent dancers; Jimmy Hadreas, who tap dances the way he did in "Fine and Dandy," and the Three Debutantes, refined damsels, who sing pieces out of the concert stage repertory to the piano accompaniment of Ben Jerome, staff composer of the La Salle theater in the years of "Louisiana Lou," etc. [1912-1914].

Lopez, whose dance-and-dinner music is highly regarded by experts in these matters, plays in the Pompeiian room for the early eaters, and moves into the brighter and more modern atmosphere of the Urban room at 10 p. m., to remain there until the last supper party says, "Home, James." Tuesday nights are pledged to theatrical celebrities who are fond of taking bows; Thursday nights are in special honor of debutantes.

The Hawaiian room of the Congress may be found where the old formal dining room, off the main lobby, used to be. It has been redecorated with flowers, foliage, and pastel-tinted balloons, and can claim to be the prettiest restaurant in town. H. L. Kaufman, manager-in-chief of the Congress, is the man who designed these festive trimmings. A Hawaiian band started the place off on its World's Fair career, and Leo Reisman's orchestra takes charge next Friday.

This Reisman is a new maestro to Chicago. Radio, phonograph disks, and two years at the Central Park Casino of New York are on his record. Incidentally, he is a fan about old violins. He hangs around auction sales, hunting for Strads, and is the proud owner of a Guarnerius, worth many "grand."

The Terrace Garden, well seasoned place of dinner and supper entertainment in the Morrison hotel, has transformed itself into a South Sea island. A cluster of cocoanut palms has been placed beside every table, towering to the ceiling. They are papier maché imitations, of course, but quite convincing, except for the fact that balloons are hanging where the nuts ought to grow. The management promises to correct this error with real clusters of cocoanuts, guaranteed not to drop off on the heads of the customers, and also with a few stuffed monkeys [organ grinder genus] to help the illusion.

The show at the Terrace is lively and copious. The ballet girls are good enough for any musical comedy, and when they appear with drums in the finale they may remind you of Ziegfeld's first "Follies," which annoyed the reformers twenty-five years ago.

Dick Ware, a pleasant young fellow with dancing talent, is a genial master of ceremonies. Two specialists in fancy forms of dancing, named Loma Ruth and Connie Bee, are the best entertainers. There are several other principals. Altogether this pastime at the Terrace Garden has plenty of gusto.

These cabaret characters are a sociable crew, and they make a point of dropping in on openings at rival places. The most striking couple at the Urban room debut were Veloz and Yolanda, the star tangoists of the Palmer house's Empire room.

Noted Artists Decorate Club at Party Today

BY JUDITH CASS.

MURAL decorations to harmonize with modernistic Swedish furniture and red and blue plaid china and glass are the problem of Tony Sarg and Peter Arno. Today these two distinguished artists have been invited to stage a painters' Derby before the five hundred or more guests who are coming to "housewarm" society's fashionable Century of Progress rendezvous, the Century club.

At 10 o'clock the latchstring of the club, which tops the Blue Ribbon Casino on the southernmost tip of Northerly isle, will be out and Mr. Sarg will go to work to decorate the walls of the private dining room. Mr. Arno in his most sophisticated manner will follow suit in the men's lounge.

The all day party promises to be one of the gay events of the World's Fair social season, or at least a successful precursor of the entertaining that is in store on the Fair grounds. Informality, according to George Dickson, member of the house committee, is to be its keynote.

"Beginning today," he explains, "we want the members of our new club to feel that they can come here dusty and footsore without worrying about dinner gowns and white ties."

Noon to 3 this afternoon there is to be a buffet luncheon served in the grand manner, then high tea from 4 until 6, and a special birthday dinner with continental service from 7 on. Five hundred reservations [and that means members and their ladies, for no outside guests will be welcomed today] have been made for the dinner party.

Club's Officers to Receive Today.

The Century club president, Arthur Meeker, will be receiving most of the day with his son-in-law, Ambrose Cramer, who has "done" the decorations, and the members of the house committee, Howard F. Gillette, Willoughby G. Walling, and Mr. Dickson. And so, as a matter of fact, will several of the members of the club staff who are more familiar with the social register than the registerites themselves.

Tony Esser of the Casino is one of them. He is the club's maitre d'hotel. And then there will be today Frenchy of the Ambassador, who is to mix the salads and prepare the chafing dish foods. Pete, loaned by Onwentsia, who is to have charge of the south solarium, and Kathryn, who has set many a curl for Twelfth Night balls, and will preside over the powder room.

The menus will be only a taste of what is in store for the members of this "club of the Century" the next several months—delicious hors d'œuvres served from a wagon, frappés and Russian chocolate, salad dressings concocted with a maestro's touch, brioche in the French style, rare cheeses soaked in sherry, and tiny strawberries covered with double cream flavored with kirsch.

All of this will be seasoned with music the day through, but it is a safe guess that many of the guests will forget about the music for a tour about the clubrooms and the grand views of the Exposition that the club terraces afford.

Photos of Members Decorate the Bar.

One of the congregating spots will be, without doubt, the modernistic barroom done in copper colored furniture, a marble bar, and snapshots of the members from 1893 on. Mr. and Mrs. Cramer are responsible for these and they've been keeping them a deep, dark secret. It has crept out, however, that there's a picture of one of our most sophisticated matrons in a bathing suit of 1900, another of a middle aged lady in her debut gown of 1906, and still another of one of our best known architects in his early polo playing days.

The powder room is the last word with its engraved glass panels and with a private terrace furnished with gay umbrellas and garden furniture. And so are the pink and blue Venetian blinds, the white dining room tables with their striped tops and matching legs, and the very moderne flower boxes that circle the terrace.

Alliance Francais Gives Luncheon Today.

Robert Hall McCormick will appear for the first time in his new and official capacity of president of the Alliance Français at the luncheon party the senior alliance and the juniors are having this noon for M. and Mme. Lecomte du Nouy at the Casino. At the recent annual meeting of the alliance Mr. McCormick, who has long been interested in the organization, was chosen to succeed Arthur Allais.

At the same time Mr. Allais and Orville J. Taylor were made the new vice presidents of the organization and Hayden B. Harris the new treasurer.

More than 100 reservations have been received for the luncheon this noon. Among the guests will be the French consul general, René Weiller, and Mme. Weiller; Dr. George Kolonbatovich, the Jugo-Slav consul general; Dr. Titus Zbyszewski, the Polish consul general; Mr. and Mrs. Rufus C. Dawes, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, Dr. and Mrs. William A. Pusey, Mrs. Edward H. Bennett, Mrs. Thomas W. Hinde, Mrs. James Winston, Mrs. Ralph T. Winston, Mrs. E. John Senn, Mrs. Edward T. Leight, Mrs. Helen Walton, Mrs. Westover Channon, Mrs. H. Spencer Brown, Mrs. Otho Fisher Ball, and among the juniors Miss Marjorie Goodman, Miss Louise Dewey, Miss Charlotte Gordon, Miss Dorothy Stanton Miss Katherine Cutten, and Miss Beatrice Kirk.

M. du Nouy, who heads the Pasteur institute in Paris, has been enthusiastic in his praise of the scientific exhibit at the Fair. The Pasteur contri-

Junior Leaguers Invite Husbands to Show Tonight

There is a "sellout" house tonight, we hear, for the gentlemen's performance of "Peter Pan" in the Children's theater of Enchanted Island. Appreciating this opportunity to see the play minus their young sons and daughters, husbands of the Junior leaguers in the cast and on the business staff are turning out and bringing their friends, too.

Another cast of Junior leaguers is putting the finishing touches on the Indian play, "The Captivity of Eleanor Lytle," which is to open at 11 o'clock Saturday morning in the Children's theater. This will continue to play intermittently until July 8.

For the opening of the military tournament last night in Soldiers' field, Gen. and Mrs. Frank Parker occupied the official box with a party of friends. Their guests included Mr. and Mrs. Rufus C. Dawes, Harry S. New, Federal Commissioner to A Century of Progress and Mrs. New, Maj. and Mrs. Lenox R. Lohr, Col. William B. Causey, Col. and Mrs. Robert I. Randolph, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Bosworth.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., May 30.—[Special.]—Mrs. Roosevelt returned to the White House this morning from a week-end visit in her New York and Hyde Park homes and went shortly afterward on a tour of inspection of the municipal gardens supplied by the District of Columbia committee on employment for the use of the idle in the district.

The secretary of state and Mrs. Cordell Hull will leave early tomorrow morning for New York to sail for England later in the day. They will be accompanied by the former's secretaries and by Mrs. Hull's niece, Mrs. Paul Hays of Staunton, Va., who has been a frequent visitor at their home in Washington.

Lady Lindsay, wife of the British ambassador, returned tonight to the embassy from New York, where she has spent a week visiting relatives.

Art Institute Attracts 11,000; 2,000 View Whistler's Mother

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Eleven thousand persons visited the Art institute yesterday, 2,000 of that number paying the 25 cents admission which entitled them to see Whistler's portrait of his mother and other famous paintings in galleries on the second floor. Three-fourths of the museum's treasures are available for the duration of the World's Fair without any admission price.

Although the institute's records were not obtainable last night, G. E. Kaltenbach, keeper of the archives, said that in his recollection yesterday's attendance surpassed any single day's attendance since 1913, when 16,000 persons in one day visited a Cubist show brought from New York.

Most of the 2,000 who paid admission yesterday asked to be shown the Whistler portrait of his mother, officials of the institute said. The portrait hangs on the west wall of Gallery 25.

This portrait, valued at $1,000,000 by the Louvre, and insured during its stay here, for which it was loaned by the French government, for $500,000, was offered to the Chicago Art institute for $1,200 in 1891 and was rejected, officials revealed.

The institute was poor at the time, it was said. Located then at the present site of the Chicago club in a brownstone building, the Art institute possessed a scant few paintings of note, their most cherished one at the time being Charles Sprague Pearce's "Beheading of John the Baptist," which now is kept in a basement storeroom.

James Abbott McNeill Whistler, according to some biographers, longed for American acclaim and would have parted with the mother portrait for $500 to have it in an American museum, according to one version. Later in the same year, 1891, the Louvre purchased it for 4,000 francs, then about $800.

According to D. C. Rich, associate curator of painting at the institute, Whistler asked his mother to pose for the portrait at least partly because models were expensive and he was poor in those days [the painting was done in 1871]. The painting was first shown in 1872 in the Royal academy, but only after a sharp controversy and the threat of one member of the academy to quit if it were not shown, one biographer reported. It was not until 1905, two years after his death, at a special showing of Whistler's paintings and etchings in London, that the mother portrait achieved fame, critics say.

Methodist Bishops to Start Sessions Today in Evanston

The board of bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church will convene today in its regular semi-annual sessions at the North Shore hotel, Evanston. The bishops meet in three executive sessions daily throughout the remainder of the week to discuss problems affecting the welfare of the largest Protestant communion in America.

Next Sunday the visiting bishops will be special preachers in various Methodist churches of Chicago and suburbs. Friday night they will be guests of the Methodist Social union at a banquet in compliment to them. Bishop Mathew W. Clair of the Covington, Ky., area will deliver an address tonight at a public meeting at the First Methodist Episcopal church, Evanston.

National High School Orchestra Contest to Open in Elmhurst

More than 4,000 high school musicians and visitors are expected to attend the opening of the fourth national high school orchestra contest in York Community High school in Elmhurst on Friday. Russell Moberly, director of music at the school, announced yesterday that 1,200 registrations have been received to date.

The largest single delegation is from Ottawa, Kas., which is sending an orchestra of 132 pieces and a crowd of 200 persons, headed by Gov. Alfred M. Landon. The contest will close on Sunday with a massed performance at A Century of Progress.

Black and White Togs Take Inches Off Silhouette

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Say what you will concerning gay and giddy color combinations, cheerful outfits of scarlet or jade or canary yellow, the gal that deliberately plans to slice literal inches away from her silhouette shops assiduously for the classic models that dramatize black with white. Even bulging ladies suddenly slim into a willowness in black and white dresses that is practically unattainable in creations of color.

One smart shop in town is filled with black and white costumes—a small corner shop within a big store that hangs only this stunning contrast on its racks. Here you will find clothes with an air, clothes that do grand things for slim young shoppers as well as cushioned older collectors.

Here you will find the filmy black sheer suits for hot summer days—summer sheers consisting of, for instance, a clever one piece frock topped with a pointed yoke of black and white dotted chiffon, or a snowy yoke of crinkled white silk or chiffon, or the all black dress, trimmed with hand fagoting, and the long, slim coat accented with white cuffs and collar or a small flat bow.

All the fragile looking chiffon suits of dotted black and white chiffon are somehow a bit more slenderizing in this tucked away corner than in other sections.

Or you can select a twin fabric costume, the long slender frock of white sprigged with Japanese looking printed designs and the flaring semi-puffed sleeve coat made in reverse—that is, a black background printed with the same design in white. Anything you have ever dreamed about in the way of a super-slim and slenderizing costume can be found in this interesting black and white room.

Sing 'Requiem' of Brahms in Ideal Setting

Work Becomes a Dream in U. of C. Chapel.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

It was some one's brilliant idea that "A German Requiem," the final item in the Brahms festival at the University of Chicago, should be sung in the university chapel. For once in this generation a great masterpiece of music was given in exactly the correct surroundings.

"A German Requiem" is by no means an ordinary piece of concert music. It should never be given in a concert hall. For that matter, it seldom is. The proper place to hear it is where the eye rests upon the cool beauty of line and surface which is the interior of the University of Chicago chapel, where to a hushed audience the voices of unseen choristers float through the air from some unknown station, where, if humanly possible, there should also be the voice of Claire Dux, soaring with a loveliness hardly of this earth above her choral background. Then the piece ceases to be the austere imaginings of a lofty and reticent composer and becomes a dream whose spell is hard to shake off.

In detail, the performance was given by the university choir with additions from the university chorus. Mme. Dux was one of the soloists, Earl Wilkie, baritone, the other. Frederick Marriott was the organist, and the conductor was Mack Evans. It was the finest thing of the Brahms festival, the finest bit of music that has ever come out of the university.

The Memorial day music at A Century of Progress consisted of three-quarters of an hour of community singing in the late afternoon, led by a chorus in the court of the Hall of Science. Frank Bennett was the conductor in songs of the civil war; Samuel Burkholder in songs of the later period of the world war. The chorus, a large one, was made up of members of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs for the sopranos and altos, and members of various Rotary clubs for the tenors and basses. The program was under the direction of Anne Faulkner Oberndorfer, and attracted a large audience.

Waitress to Become Bride of Philadelphia Banker

Philadelphia, Pa., May 30.—(AP)—Like a page from a novel comes the announcement from Miss Frances Sewzuk, 23 years old, waitress in a sandwich shop, that she is engaged to marry Robert F. Welsh, 59, Philadelphia sportsman and head of the banking firm of Welsh brothers. Miss Sewzuk said no date has been set for the wedding. At Welsh's home it was said that he had presented Miss Sewzuk to his parents as his future wife.

The Social Register of Beauty lists a distinguished group of dashing debutants and brilliant society women who follow a regular course of beauty treatments at the salon of Helena Rubinstein, world-famous beauty authority.
Some of them come for face treatments, some for hormone scalp treatments, for manicure—each treatment a home beauty lesson in itself. At tea-time, many substitute the quick pick-me-up Youthifying Herbal Masque Treatment for the restful cup of tea—or cocktails.

Some Unknown Woman

By Elisabeth Sanxay Holding

SYNOPSIS.

Dinah Allen and Jane Rosslyn are roommates in a Manhattan boarding house. Dinah, from the south, envies and imitates Jane's air of mystery and sophistication. Jack Fiske, a young boarder from Vermont, is head over heels in love with Dinah, who considers him just a kid. Dinah and Jane stroll to the corner drug store for sodas. A gay young man in a silk hat, not quite sober, invites the girls for a ride in his car. To Dinah's surprise Jane accepts for both of them. He takes them to his home, but Jane soon finds herself left alone with Jane's purse instead of her own. In Jane's purse she finds an automatic pistol. All the lights are turned out. Dinah rushes for the door and is grabbed by strong arms. She shoots. Jane reappears. She rushes Dinah away from the scene of their host lying in a pool of blood. Next morning the papers carry the story of the murder of Philip Divine, Broadway playboy, and said there were two bullet wounds. Jane and Dinah saw a tall, dark man with a mustache as they left Philip Divine's house. Jane recognizes Jack Fiske's sterling qualities and tries to bring Dinah and him together. Jane admits to Dinah that she knew Philip Divine before and that she also shot him. Jane goes to the theater with Jack after Dinah refuses him. Dinah has a caller. He introduces himself as Pierre Baron. He is the tall, dark man with the mustache. Dinah promises to have dinner with him next evening. Baron tells Dinah that Divine was secretly married to Jane. Dinah resents his hatred of Jane and doesn't trust Baron. She tells him it was she who shot Divine. Jane confesses to Fiske that she shot Divine and that she'd brought Dinah to his home. Jane's efforts to shield Dinah win Jack's admiration. Jane leaves, not telling Dinah or Jack where she is going. Baron's sister, Jerry, a dancer, calls in search of Jane. She claims to have been married to Divine. She expects to frighten Jane into supporting her claim. Divine's widow will collect an inheritance. She moves in with Dinah.

INSTALLMENT XXVII.

VISITORS IN OFFICE HOURS.

"I shouldn't care much if I died," Dinah thought, forlornly. "I know I'll get faded and hideous in a few years. I'll never marry. I'll just go on and work. . . . If I'm lucky, that is."

If she were lucky enough not to encounter the realization of her nightmare, the hand on her shoulder, the voice saying: "Come with me. You're wanted. . . ." And perhaps that would be better than this suspense.

She was typing, and typing very rapidly and accurately, when Mrs. South, the dragon who presided over the girls in her department, came up to her.

"There are two people to see you in the outer office," she said in a low, toneless voice. "I hope you'll explain to them that you can't have visitors in office hours. Miss Allen."

But Dinah was too overwhelmed to speak. Two people to see her. . . . Who could it be but those visitors she feared beyond measure? Two detectives. . . .

"You'd better see them, now they're here," said Mrs. South. "But don't let them keep you, Miss Allen."

The first person she saw in the outer office was her arch-enemy, Jerry, sitting on a chair, her foot tapping the floor impatiently, while beside her stood the handsomest man Dinah had yet set eyes on in her life.

"There are two people to see you in the outer office," she said.

As her feeling of immeasurable relief died down she felt a most vehement anger.

"Really!" she said. "I can't have this——"

She should have known better than to stir up her panther.

"Can't you?" said Jerry. "Well, you are having it—and you'll have more, too."

"O, Carmen. . . .!" murmured the young man.

"I mean it!" said Jerry. "That damned landlady of yours——"

"Carr-men!" said he, sternly.

Jerry gave him a sidelong look, half sullen, half apologetic.

"It's her fault!" she said. "She told that—landlady something—I don't know what. Only the damned old cat——"

"Carmen!" said he. "You cannot talk like this in Miss Allen's place of business."

"I can say what I like," said Jerry, but none the less, both her voice and her words were more subdued. "Anyhow, we had an awful row, and she put me out. And you've got to do something about it."

"You will soon be going out for your lunch, Miss Allen?" asked the young man.

"At twelve."

"I can't sit here for twenty minutes!" said Jerry.

He paid no attention to her.

"Then if we can wait downstairs in the lobby for you. . . . ?" He asked, addressing Dinah, with deference. "If you will be kind enough to lunch with us——?"

"She's going——" Jerry began, when his hand fell on her shoulder.

"You will be quiet!" he said, and his voice astounded Dinah still soft, but there was in it a fierceness Jerry herself could not equaled.

"You will be kind enough to lunch with us, Miss Allen?" he repeated.

"Yes," Dinah answered, unwillingly enough.

The chief thing, though, was to get them away from here, before Mr. Price saw her, wasting the time he paid for, talking to this flamboyant couple. She went back to her work and tried to forget them and all her troubles, until noon came, bringing the hour that belonged to herself.

"If Mrs. Cotter's put her out," she thought, while she waited for the elevator, "so much the better for me. I won't do something about it. I don't know how I could have endured her in the room for another night."

The elevator came, and she descended, and there they were, Jerry walking impatiently up and down, the extraordinarily handsome young man leaning against a newsstand, smoking a cigaret. He came up to her, taking off his hat with a flourish that suited him.

"If there is some restaurant near here where you have the custom of going——?" he asked.

There was more than one; there was the restaurant where she went when she was alone and had to pay her own check; there was one where she occasionally treated, or was treated by another girl, and there was one where young men sometimes took her to lunch. This last was much the best, and the most expensive, the sort of place, she thought, which this young man would expect to patronize. So they went there, and he was very attentive to Dinah on the way. He would have been attentive to Jerry, too, but she was furiously rude to him whenever he spoke.

"A French cuisine," he observed as he took up the menu. "That I like, don't you?"

"Yes," said Dinah. "I do!"

"Potage Parmentier?" he suggested. "Then a little filet mignon, eh? With asparagus hollandaise? Then this salad chiffonade—and to end, Persian melon, and café noir?"

"See if I care!" said Jerry.

"That suits you, Miss Allen? Good!" He gave the order to the waiter and then turned back to Dinah. "Carmen has not done me the favor to introduce me," he said, with a flashing smile. "You permit that I introduce myself? José Chavel."

"How can they both be called 'Chavel'?" thought Dinah. "Well, maybe she says she's married to him, too. She's quite capable of it."

"Miss Baron and myself, we are dancing partners," he went on. "It's popular that the partners should be man and wife. The public likes that. But, for real life, Miss Baron and I are not married."

The waiter brought the soup.

"We are not married," Chavel repeated, and glanced at Jerry. Dinah saw those two pair of black eyes meet, in a venomous look that astounded her. "I am too poor," said he. "I am much too poor to marry any North American young lady."

"Then you'd try for an old one," said Jerry. "You would find one, José, one very old and ugly—who'd support you nicely."

"One would think," said José to Dinah with a smile, "that I am a gigolo."

"One would," said Jerry.

Dinah was quite at a loss to understand the relations between these two. Were they lovers, or did they hate each other? And why had they come to her office?

"Give me a cigaret!" said Jerry, suddenly, and when José had lit it for her: "Well!" she said, looking at Dinah. "What are you going to do about it?"

"I don't see what that has to do with me," said Dinah, coldly. "If you quarreled with Mrs. Cotter——"

"It was your fault! It must have been you that told her that disgusting, dam' fool name. And I couldn't stop the old idiot. She came banging on the door, and when I let her in she kept on calling me 'Miss Bowzenbock!' I told her that wasn't my name, but she wouldn't stop. 'We use real names in this house,' she said. 'Not any fancy stage names'—It's just like you, you simpering little moron, to play a trick like that."

"I won't be talked to like this!" cried Dinah.

"You will! You will! You set that old idiot on me—and you're going to be sorry!"

Touch of Stoic CalmNeededby Some Children

Helps Them to Forget Tactless Remarks.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Some months ago I wrote an article based on a letter some one sent me about the agonies over-tall children suffer when people say to them, "My, aren't you big!" "How you've grown!" and other similarly untactful remarks that we have all, at one time or another, been guilty of.

Children seldom let on how much they really do mind these personal remarks. They suffer in silence. And grown ups usually have forgotten how much they used to mind remarks of this kind. Often growth does not keep pace with a child's age; they grow too slowly or too fast at certain ages and they are, perhaps, unduly sensitive about being too tall or too short.

Happy is the boy or girl who can accept either. Happier still, those who can do as did the two girls who wrote me after this article appeared.

"When I was in high school I was very tall. All my younger days people always said, 'How tall you are' and so forth, and I used to wish so hard to be short. Then, gradually from hearing this I got a sort of conceit because of my height, to try to make up for the fun poked at me. I wore the highest heels, stretched myself to the limit and then got a 'haughty' look on my face!

"When I entered high school I became friends with a girl who was very short. People laughed at us and the teachers always said, 'Well, Jeff, where's Mutt?' and vice versa.

"At first we got angry, but then we thought we would fix them. A few days later into our classes we marched with blazing red sweaters, on one in white letters as large as possible was 'Mutt' and on the other was 'Jeff.'

"They all got a good laugh out of it—but after that they respected our tallness and shortness. We graduated together and we still go together. People still make fun of us.

"I'm proud of being tall and she is proud of being short. My advice is, never let people 'get you going' about your height. Just take it and grin. You'll be respected for it."

And that's my advice, too.

Paris Bedecks Girl's Suit with Starched Linen

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Girls of eighteen and younger, please take notice. Bruyère has designed the perfect suit for you to wear this summer. That special kind of starched white linen collar takes a lot of wearing by any one older than you, but it's perfect for the shining morning face of the girl.

Like all washable details this collar, which you can see in our sketch, comes off when it has accumulated enough grime for a trip to the washtub. It buttons on black buttons that are sewed onto the collarless round neckline of the wool suit. These buttons run all around the neck, and other buttons are sewed on around the sleeves to hold the deep white starched linen cuffs.

The suit itself is made of dark blue semi-sheer wool, which has a rib like serge. The jacket is hip length, and buttons down the front on black lacquered buttons. There are two pockets set on at the sides of the front, and held by the same big, shiny buttons. The belt is black patent leather with a silver buckle.

The skirt of this suit has only one seam, and that down the left side. It is under a rather wide tuck which begins at the waistline and ends at the hem, and a single knife plait is set in back of this tuck from just below the hipline.

Gray and Beige Costumes Require Special Cosmetics

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

If you're going in for gray this summer you can help yourself charmingly with makeup. You may have to throw out, or give away your old facial color mechanics, for the best recommendation for a gray outfit is deemed to be a powder of rosy hue. This is to offset, any yellowish tinge in the skin—and whether you know it or not, most skins have quite a yellow streak in them.

Your lipstick and rouge for the gray frock had better be a clear rosy-red. Whether your eye shadow is to be a gray-brown or a gray-blue is something for you to experiment on. It depends on the color of your eyes. But still the rule is best worked out with experimentation. The brown eye would seem to call for the gray-brown eye shadow, and the brown mascara, yet I've seen this color of eye beautified with blue shadow, too.

One thing you cannot do with a gray outfit is to blacken eyelid and lash with a black cosmetic. Incidentally, if you're hoarding any emeralds or jade, bring 'em out and spend them on that lovely gray ensemble. If you're not guilty of such hoarding, don't be unhappy. Your gray will take to crystal or rhinestone, amethyst, topaz or aquamarine.

If it's beiges you're outfitted with, better look into the makeup kit for all the help you can draw there, too. The string beige, ficelle, chalk-beige, require a bit of color vamping. Don't use too strong color on lip or cheek or eye for the effect you want is coolness, quiet and moonbeam charm, if you know what that is.

And by the way, and right along the last mentioned line, there are a couple of new and exotic powder shades designed to bring the hero to his knees swooning. For evening wear, these, with the lovely fluttering chiffon! There is a silvery jade that does for the blonde everything that hasn't already been done for her, which you'll admit is a lot. And for the brunette there is a pale, pale mauve. If you have silver hair and fresh skin try this shade and watch the dates pile up!

bution, which he came to install, is to be turned over to Mr. Dawes at the close of the Exposition, to be given in turn to some institution.

English Speaking Union Holds Luncheon Today.

After a strenuous Memorial day seeing the Fair and visiting friends in the country, Samuel Higginbottam, the distinguished principal of the Agricultural institute at Allahabad, India, is going to give the English Speaking union "An Appraisal of Gandhi and the Significance of His Fasts" at a 12:30 luncheon today in the Victorian room of the Palmer house.

Much can be said of Mr. Higginbottom, both locally and biographically. A member of the 1903 class at Princeton, he has five classmates here whom he never neglects seeing when he sets foot in Chicago. They are Uri B. Grannis, Robert C. McNamara, Cyrus H. Adams, John Paul Welling, and James C. Ames, and they were the reason for his trip to the north shore shortly after his arrival yesterday.

After finishing at Princeton Mr. Higginbottam went to India, where he has seen the problems, men, and institutions of that country in their own setting. His work for the Agricultural institute was recognized in 1924 when he was awarded the Kaiser-I-Hind gold medal by the Indian government.

The Palmer house dining room is to be filled with luncheon parties this noon interested in hearing his views and greeting him on his brief visit to the city.

In the mail yesterday came an invitation to another notable luncheon next week Tuesday when Victor F. Ridder is coming to give the Council on Foreign Relations an eye-witness account of Germany. The council members and their guests will gather at 12:30 o'clock in the red lacquer room of the Palmer house.

When sensational reports began to emanate from Germany following the reichstag elections March 5, Mr. Ridder, publisher of the New York Staats-Zeitung, sailed for Germany on a tour of investigation, from which he has only recently returned. While in Berlin he had an unusual opportunity to confer with Chancellor Hitler.

Stamps to Be Dinner Guests at C. G. Dawes Home.

Tonight Gen. and Mrs. Charles G. Dawes will entertain at dinner for Sir Josiah and Lady Stamp, who came to Chicago last week for the opening of the World's Fair and a short visit with the Charles Bosworths, to whom they are related since the marriage of Frances Bosworth to Dr. C. Trevor Stamp.

After an afternoon at the Exposition yesterday the Stamps went out to the Dawes' Evanston home for the night. Tomorrow night Sir Josiah is to deliver an address at the dinner meeting of the Economic club and on Friday evening there is to be a dinner at the Bosworths' Evanston house. Among the guests will be Mr. and Mrs. Rufus C. Dawes, who had previously expected to entertain for Sir Josiah and Lady Stamp on that evening.

After Sir Josiah has delivered the commencement address at Northwestern university at 5 o'clock Saturday, he will entrain for the east. Lady Stamp will remain until next Wednesday when she will leave for New York to meet her distinguished husband.

Chicago Boys to Get Harvard Diplomas.

There are many Chicago boys on the "tentative" list of Harvard graduates, not only from the senior class of the college proper but from the engineering, law, medical and business schools. Mr. and Mrs. Gardiner B. Van Ness are leaving by motor shortly before June 22 to see Gardiner Jr. receive his diploma. They will be gone a week or so and on their return they will open up their Delavan house and keep both that and their Chicago home so they may enjoy a summer of A Century of Progress and comparative quiet in the country. As both Gardiner and his younger brother, Radford, who is at Yale, plan to have classmates visit them, this summer should be anything but dull for the Van Nesses.

Among the other Harvard seniors are John J. Borland II., Richard S. Neff, brother of the lovely Louise Neff and Mrs. Solomon B. Smith; Benjamin B. Buckingham of Highland Park, and John W. Kirkland of Lake Forest. John R. Fetcher of Winnetka is in his last year at the engineering school. Budd Clarke Corbus Jr. is following in the steps of his physician father and is in his last year in medical school, and Philip W. Moore of Winnetka will be graduated from the school of business administration.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh L. McWilliams are among other parents planning to go to Princeton for their sons' graduation on June 20. Their daughter, Jean, who will not be a debutante for at least two years more, will have returned from her Texas school in time to motor east to see Hugh Jr. receive his diploma. The McWilliamses are opening their house at Northport Point, Mich., for the summer—with occasional inspections of A Century of Progress.

With the Auditorium completely sold out for the opening concert a week from tonight in the brilliant series planned by the Friends of Music, the sponsors are already concentrating their attention on the second program, June 8, when Rudolph Ganz will be the guest artist. And to judge by the advance ticket sale for the second night, the city is "going in" for Russian music.

Boxholders for the Russian concert June 8 number already Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy, Mrs. William M. Spencer, Mrs. Philip Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Swift, Princess Rostislav, Mrs. Theodore W. Robinson, Dr. and Mrs. Phillip Miller, Mr. and Mrs. James M. Hopkins, Robert F. Carr, Mrs. Edwin A. Seipp, Dr. and Mrs. Frederick Stock, Mrs. William W. Dixon, Mrs. H. Newton Hudson, Mrs. Louis K. Boysen, Mrs. Owen Gilman, Mrs. Rudolph Ganz, Mrs. Frederic W. Upham, Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed, Mrs. Eugene Wheeler, Mrs. Frank G. Logan, and Princess Galitzine. Mrs. Henry Bartholomay and Mrs. Howard W. Fenton are among those who will occupy their season boxes on both Wednesday and Thursday evenings.

Prince Potenziani to Be Host and Guest.

At one party within the next week Prince Potenziani, the royal Italian commissioner to A Century of Progress, is to be the host, and at another a special guest. Tomorrow noon he is entertaining some of his many hosts and hostesses and friends at a luncheon in the Italian restaurant in the Fair grounds. This is near the stunning Italian pavilion that looks like a giant airplane settled down to rest.

Next Wednesday noon at 12:30 the distinguished guest committee of the Chicago Woman's club is entertaining for Prince Potenziani at luncheon in its 11th street clubhouse. Invitations for this party were issued in the name of Mrs. Edward A. Leight, a member of the distinguished guest committee.

News from Pine Manor tells of the election of Miss Madeline Bliss, daughter of the George E. Blisses of Highland Park, as president of the Christian association at the eastern finishing school for next year. The same letter tells that Miss Lois Uhlemann, daughter of the L. H. Uhlemanns of Stratford place, will preside next year over the athletic association at Pine Manor. This year Miss Uhlemann has been head of hockey.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Dick Jr. to Return Tomorrow.

Tomorrow Mr. and Mrs. Albert Blake Dick Jr. will arrive home from New York, where they were for Sheldon Dick's marriage to Margaret Lee Burgess on May 19.

Mrs. Norman MacLeish went east Friday to stay until early September with her mother, Mrs. Joseph B. McCall, in Mrs. McCall's summer home in Jamestown, R. I.

Mrs. Charles B. Shaffer has arrived home from Kentucky, where she went last week to visit her mother, Mrs. Mary Deems Rhodes, and she has brought Mrs. Rhodes with her to spend a few days and look at A Century of Progress. Miss Barbara Shaffer will arrive home from Ogontz tomorrow. She is to make her debut in the fall.

Yesterday the Waterson Rothackers arrived in Chicago to be the guests for several days of the Warren Wrights. Former Chicagoans, they are now making their home in Beverly Hills, Cal. They made their trip to Chicago by way of the canal and Central America. When in town Mr. and Mrs. Rothacker will stay at the Drake since the Wrights are now at their country home in Golf.

BY MARY MEADE.

A little stuffing now and then is relished by the best of vegetables. It flatters them. Makes them feel dressed up and decidedly high hat. And then what these complacent vegetables proceed to do to a modest noon-time lunch or supper is nothing short of astounding!

For instance, nothing to my knowledge has yet glorified cabbage as a stuffing of corned beef, crumbled crackers, onion, and sour cream does.

GLORIFIED CABBAGE.

1 medium head of cabbage
20 soda crackers, crumbled fine
2 cups ground, cooked corned beef
2 tablespoons minced onion
2 tablespoons butter, melted
Salt and pepper to taste
½ cup sour cream
¼ cup grated American cheese
2 cups thin white sauce

Remove the outer leaves of the cabbage and cut out the center, saving it for coleslaw. Cook the remaining shell of cabbage in boiling salted water until just tender but not soft. When done, drain. Meanwhile combine half of the crackers, the ground beef, the seasoning, cream, onion, and half the butter. Stuff the cabbage with the mixture. Now combine the rest of the crackers and butter with the cheese and sprinkle this over the stuffed cabbage. Place in a buttered casserole and pour the white sauce over it. Bake one-half hour in a hot oven (475 degrees F.). This serves six.

Turnips and beets likewise have a great fondness for stuffings. They can take them in the form of salads or may be served hot and preside over lunch or supper as did the stuffed cabbage cousin. If we yearn for them cold simply cook good sized beets or small sized turnips with their skins on, till tender. Skin and then hollow them out with a spoon. Brush over lightly inside with French dressing. Let chill while you prepare the filling. This may be any type of fish or vegetable dressing tossed together with cooked dressing, savory French dressing, or sour cream mayonnaise.

And are you remembering that short, stubby cucumbers make good customers for salad fillings? Select fat ones, peel them, and cut in halves lengthwise. Scoop out the centers and let stand ten minutes with French dressing over them. Then stuff with any vegetable or fish salad your fancy dictates.

Solid but ripe tomatoes should be skinned and a little of the top sliced off. Hollow them out, season with salt and a bit of paprika, and drain in the refrigerator. Coleslaw with green pepper mixed in, or any sort of cooked or fresh vegetable salad combination will do the trick for a filling. Shredded cabbage and pineapple blended with mayonnaise is delectable. Or use celery and chopped nuts, frozen cheese salad, or plain cottage cheese and minced onions, or cooked lima beans blended with chili mayonnaise.

Tomatoes, cucumbers, peppers, eggplants, and beets—not to mention turnips—may all be treated to hot fillings and a sojourn in the oven.

BAKED STUFFED TURNIPS.

6 medium sized yellow turnips
12 white crackers, finely crumbled
½ cup grated cheese (American or pimiento)
2 tablespoons butter, melted
Paprika
Salt to taste
1 cup medium white sauce

Peel the turnips and boil in salted water till just tender—not soft. Save the water. Hollow out the centers, saving the pieces. Blend the crackers with the cheese, butter, seasoning, and enough of the turnip cooking water to make the mixture packable. Fill the turnips and brush with more melted butter. Dash with paprika and place in a buttered baking dish. Bake in a hot oven (425 degrees F.) until golden brown. Meanwhile cut up the turnip removed from the centers and mix with the hot white sauce. Pour this combination over the stuffed turnips when serving.

Prints and Plain Colors Used in Very Old Design

Double Irish Chain.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Because of its name many quilt makers credit this design to Ireland. There is apparently no other justification for placing the credit because it never has been definitely decided just where it did originate. "Double Irish Chain" is a very old quilt design, correctly made in combinations of prints and plain colors. The illustration above shows four blocks pieced and set together, the light blocks alternated with the dark.

For a pattern of this quilt design, send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn.

Smutty Stories Always Reflect on the Teller

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I am anxious to hear your opinion of a girl who objects to obscene jokes in the presence of boys. According to the modern ideals, just what is expected of a girl under the circumstances? Is she trying to be a saint, as the boys call her? VICTORIA."

"Victoria" is only one of a number of girls who've put the question to us of whether it is better to be branded as a saint than to have to listen to obscene stories. The answer is pretty obvious as to which choice to make. But what pains us is the frequency with which girls' ears are assailed. And why boys aren't willing to take a chance on a clean bit of humor with a girl they have no reason to believe enjoys the other kind. Also, the lack of intelligence in circles where the obscene story abounds.

Nothing, you know, quite determines the intelligence quotient of a person as does his story telling, and his reaction to stories. And only the lowest form of intelligence has need to resort to obscenity to get a laugh. In fact, there isn't any real laugh in a carload of dirty stories, as witness the revolt of any decent man to an exchange of bawdy smoking room stories.

Again, witness the success of Ed Wynn, Eddie Cantor, Will Rogers whose intelligent appreciation of an audience's response to clean humor keeps them headliners.

We repeat that the obscene tale is the barometer of a person's mentality and for reasons quite aside from sainthood the young woman is perfectly privileged to walk out on the scene. In fact, we think she's pretty dumb if she doesn't, rather linking her own intelligence with that of the cheap witted story teller. Certainly we see no point in stopping to argue as to the rightness or wrongness of the situation.

What's wrong with you young women is your weakness in not making known your distaste for the sort of thing. So long as you stand for it, and perhaps take it with a laugh, the more of the sort of thing you'll be treated to. All you'd need do is to walk out on the scene and tell any inquiring bystanders that the party is much too dumb for you.

Young Cantors Welcome Dad to West Coast

Comedian Just a Father to His Daughters.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Hollywood, Cal., May 30.—[Special.]—Eddie Cantor was just a father, and a tremendously happy one, when he returned to the coast to appear in another Goldwyn singing comedy, and was met, aboard his ship, by the three youngest Cantor girls in San Diego harbor.

"I haven't seen them since last October" said Eddie, his arms full of little and medium sized Cantors, as he invited a whole troup of welcomers from Hollywood to have supper aboard his east-to-west coast steamer, Virginia, and travel north by sea with him from San Diego to San Pedro.

Eddie slipped from the rôle of entertainer to that of the entertained when the youngest Miss Cantor, 5½ years old, enlivened supper with a rendition of "The Lone Cowboy," in a shy, tiny voice.

"You should have seen my wife bargaining with the merchants in Panama," said Eddie, speaking of his west bound trip. "She didn't miss a shop. And she even outdid those pirates of storekeepers who take their cue from the historic Sir Henry Morgan, who did the original Panama pirating."

There's one thing makes Cantor get solemn and positive in his speech. It's when the subject turns to clean and dirty films. "The producers are going to be compelled to clean house," he said. "But radio—there's a spot to start a big house cleaning party. The other day my older daughter, Janet, after listening in with my wife on a program describing a perfect crime, in which the murdered put his sudden poison in a tube of tooth paste, said, "Well, mother, that's something to remember." Now, my wife and I get along, but those things give a man a start. I've been calling her 'Honey' ever since. A man can't be too careful."

Richard Whiting had to blush. He's the composer who did tunes for "Adorable," Janet Gaynor's latest film, and a lot of other movie musicals and stage comedies. "I was hard at work on a new tune," Whiting said. "Some of the strains sounded pretty good, and I put the notes on paper and played them over. But the tune seemed vaguely familiar. I played over 'You Are an Old Smoothie,' a tune I wrote in 'Take A Chance,' now playing on Broadway, and my new tune was just a variation of the former one."

"Gad, how unethical," said George De Sylva, associate producer at Fox's, where Whiting is on contract. "A song writer stealing his own stuff."

Fox has signed Florence Desmond, New York Radio-RKO find, a night club discovery for "Green Dice," the next Will Rogers film. She plays a movie struck Brooklyn girl hitch hiking to Hollywood. Rogers listened to some of her records and said, "I'm sure to have competition in that film." Zasu Pitts plays the rôle of his wife.

There was a lot of argument at Fox studio over the character name for Harvey Stephens, cast for the juvenile rôle in "Paddy," which co-stars Warner Baxter and Janet Gaynor. The scrip named the character "O'Hara," but there's a real O'Hara, Fiske O'Hara, playing in the cast and it became very confusing. So Winfield Sheehan, boss of the studio, said: "Very well, we will name him after my friend, Joe Breen." So Joe Breen, who is Will Hays' assistant in the Movie Producers' association and is in charge of contact with the public, thus meets the fans en masse.

The first public preview of "Dinner at Eight," film version, got a reception so enthusiastic that it was riotous in a Glendale, Cal., show house last night. The film is made by the same company which turned out "Grand Hotel," and is played by the same kind of an "all-big name" cast, including the Barrymore boys, Marie Dressler, Billie Burke, Wally Beery, Jean Harlow, Eddie Lowe, Louise Closser Hale, Jean Hersholt, Madge Evans and Karen Moreley and, if this observer's opinion is of interest, it held up interest throughout even more than "Grand Hotel."

S. J. Ferelman, wit and magazine writer, has joined the Universal studio writer's staff.

Stunning Black Silk Evening Gown Has Ruffled Sleeves of White Organdie

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

Here is a stunning dress of black silk with ruffled sleeves of white silk organdie, and very stunning it is, too.

The pattern, No. 2569, comes in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20 years and 36 and 38 inches bust measure. Size 16 requires 3⅝ yards of 39 inch material with 1 yard of 35 inch contrasting.

How to Order Clotilde Patterns.

Write your name and address plainly on dotted lines, giving number and size of such patterns as you want. Inclose 10 cents in stamps or coin [coin preferred; wrap it carefully] for each number, and address your order to Clotilde Patterns, Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central station, New York City.

MINUTE MYSTERY
CAN YOU SOLVE IT?
BY H. A. RIDLEY
[Copyright; 1933; By The Chicago Tribune.]

THE STOLEN MASTERPIECE.

"Well, son, so you've come to me for council, eh? You know, my boy, that while advice is often sought it is seldom followed. Perhaps it's just as well," said Prof. Fordney to Ralph Wentworth.

"Criminology—a good profession? I think so! But have you an aptitude for it? I'll give you a little problem I encountered not so long ago. The correctness and speed of your answer may——"

"Let's have it, professor!" eagerly interrupted Ralph.

Fordney lit his pipe, crossed his legs, and continued:

"I was called in to assist the police in solving the theft of an old masterpiece, an invaluable Rembrandt, from the home of Murray Henderson, the millionaire. After considerable investigation, I succeeded in rounding up four members of a gang of international thieves and learned the following:

"Their names were Wilson, Grady, Morris and Bishop. One of them had only recently been released from Sing Sing.

"The leader and one other member of the gang, who was an art connoisseur, both came from Germany.

"Bishop and the actual thief, unknown to the leader, had attempted another robbery the previous night.

"Grady and the leader had arranged with a fence to buy the painting.

"Wilson and the actual thief had told the leader that if they got away with the masterpiece they were going to Europe.

"The actual thief and the leader are both related to Morris by marriage.

"Now, Ralph," smiled Fordney, "can you tell me who was the leader and who was the actual thief?"

CAN YOU?

[See solution on page 27.]

Perhaps you have a story or problem you would like to submit to Prof. Fordney. If so, send it to him in care of this paper. He will be delighted to receive it.

Rockford College Finals Announced for Monday, June 12

Rockford college will hold its 79th annual commencement exercises on Monday afternoon, June 12, in the college quadrangle. Dr. Horace J. Bridges of Chicago will give the commencement address, speaking on "The Meaning of Culture."

The commencement activities will open with an alumnae banquet Saturday evening, June 10, at which the graduates of 1923, 1913, 1903, 1893, and 1883 will be honored. The baccalaureate services will be conducted by the Rev. John Gordon at the Second Congregational church of Rockford. A reception will be given the following day on the campus by the alumnae association and a step-sing by the four classes that evening in the quadrangle.

SOX BEATEN, 15-8, AFTER WINNING, 7-2; CUBS DIVIDE

DURHAM WHIPS INDIANS, THEN PARADE STARTS

Six Pitchers Throw in Second Game.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Efficiency was written all over the White Sox in capital letters yesterday when they bowed themselves back into their own yard in the front half of a double header. With consummate ease they pushed over the Cleveland Indians by 7 to 2 before 22,000 boisterous adherents. But in the second portion the efficiency went over to the side of the enemy, and the 22,000 had to sit by in silence while their pets were being subjected to all sorts of indignities. At the conclusion of this embarrassing procedure the Pale Hose were on the wrong end of a 15 to 8 score.

The chief link in the winning chain forged by the Pale Hose in the inaugural battle was Ed Durham. While his mates were keeping themselves busy in the production of base hits against Mel Harder and Belve Bean, the slim Mr. Durham was spending one of the most satisfactory days of his career. His fun during the first eight innings was marred by only two singles, one of which produced a run because it followed a pass. But the Indians made themselves feel a bit better in the ninth by increasing their lean total to five.

Gregory Blasted Out.

The Indians didn't take much time creating a mental depression among the attending populace in the night-cap battle. They landed on Paul Gregory, one of the south siders' most consistent performers, with two runs in the first inning. That was merely a warmup for bigger and better things. They blew him out of the picture with four consecutive hits before anybody was retired in the third. And before Joe Heving and Chad Kimsey could restore quiet five runs had scored.

Then Kimsey had to resign in the fourth and Vic Frasier assumed the martyr rôle. He, too, was plastered with base hits, as was Walter Lefty Miller, who was summoned to stop a big disturbance in the seventh. After that Miller and Milt Gaston were satisfactory.

Show Spark of Courage.

The Sox did one thing well in the second affair, but they were so long getting around to it that the accomplishment was wasted. They were more or less docile under the influence of Clint Brown for seven innings and with a 15 to 2 count against them there was hardly any reason to expect a demonstration of courage. But it came in the eighth in the shape of three runs and reappeared in the ninth with three more, whereupon Brown, with an advantage of seven runs, was yanked. Willis Hudlin proved able to mop up effectively.

FIRST GAME

Just to keep Harder from getting the idea he was going to put something over on them, the Sox made three hits and a run in the opening inning. All this was done after two men were out. Swanson beat out a roller to the more or less confused Boss. Simmons lined a single to center, putting Swanson on third. Appling singled to the same spot and Swanson hiked home.

Cissell and Burnett were extremely lax in their fielding in the second inning, so the Sox scored a pair without having to resort to much hitting. Dykes led off with a hit to center. Berry flied to left, but Durham survived when Cissell dropped Kamm's throw to second on Durham's grounder. After Hayes had forced Durham, Burnett pegged wild on Haas' bounder and Dykes ran home. Swanson singled to center to score Hayes. Then Simmons inadvertently committed a social blunder. He fanned.

Four Score in Fifth.

The fifth inning during which four scored and Harder went away began with Burnett fumbling on Swanson. Simmons drilled a hit into center to move Swanson to third. Appling sneaked a singled between Kamm and Burnett, scoring Swanson and sending Simmons to third. Appling raced to second on the throw in. At this juncture Bean relieved Harder, but the hitting continued. Sullivan looped a single to right, scoring Simmons and Appling. Dykes singled past Boss to shove Sullivan to third. The latter scored when Durham beat out a bunt to Boss.

Burnett walked to start the seventh, and this developed into the first of the two Indian runs. He went to third on Averill's single, the second hit off Durham, and home on Boss' fly to right. Then in the ninth successive singles by Averill, Vosmik and Boss put an end to Durham's hopes of a two hit triumph and also accounted for the second Indian tally.

SECOND GAME

Gregory's wildness in the first inning resulted in passes to Porter and Cissell and only one hit was needed to get two runs around to the plate. Burnett attempted to sacrifice, but Gregory picked up the bunt and tossed to Dykes in time to force Porter at

Cubs Lose to Pirates, 2-1, Then Triumph, 6-2

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 30.—The Cubs refused to be cast down by the fact that Paul Waner knocked an eighth inning homer off Burleigh Grimes for a 2 to 1 Pirate victory this morning. They bounced right back and won the afternoon game, 6 to 2, with a five run seventh inning.

Since we are seething with civic pride, it is natural to dwell on the afternoon game before we set down much about the tragic morning encounter. The afternoon show was made rather dramatic for Chicago partisans through the fact that the Cubs were unable to negotiate a hit off Meine until two were out in the fifth inning. And up to this point there was no evidence that they ever would make a hit off Meine.

Jurges Does His Bit.

Hendrick started the fifth by being thrown out by Meine, and next Hartnett, who didn't make a hit all day, fanned. At this point the Cubs were trailing, 1 to 0. Well, up stepped Bill Jurges, who hadn't knocked anything bigger than a double all year. This time Bill socked a homer over the left field fence, 360 feet from the home plate.

The score thus tied, the Cubs took on new life, though they didn't cash on it until the seventh. Then, aided by some poor strategy and Captain Traynor's second error of the game, they busted out five hits, the last of which was a double by Riggs Stephenson with the bases full, the net of all these elements being five runs. Malone went all the way to achieve his third straight and his fourth victory of the year.

The morning game was a swell revenge for Bill Swift whom the Cubs beat here April 27, 3 to 2 on five hits. The trouble with the Cubs in this morning's affair was that their six hits weren't made by enough different men. Three of them were accomplished by Frank Demaree, and the last of the three, a double, led to the run with which the Cubs tied the score in the seventh. The Pirates had scored in the fourth on a walk, an out and a single by Piet.

Stephenson Back In Game.

Two of the Cub hits were knocked by Riggs Stephenson, who made his first appearance in a starting lineup after a spell with a stone bruise. The other hit was made by Grimes. Then Paul Waner's No. 2 homer of the year came with one out in the eighth to spoil everything for Grimes, who lost his fourth decision as a consequence.

The day's business gave the Cubs a continued edge on the Pirates in their season series—three Cub wins out of five, it is now—and it enabled the Chicagoans to stay within 4½ games of the leaders. Also the champs continue one game above the .500 mark.

MORNING GAME

The Pirates got the first run of the morning in the fourth inning in which their leadoff man failed to reach first. After Traynor had lined to Babe Herman, Suhr walked and went to second while Jurges was throwing out Vaughan. Piet then singled to center, scoring Suhr. Grace popped to Bill Herman.

Demaree led off the seventh with the Cubs' fifth and his third hit, a double along the left foul line, and moved to third on Grimm's sacrifice. Hartnett reached first and Demaree held third on Vaughan's fumble of Gabby's tough bouncer. Vaughan also fumbled Jurges' grounder, Demaree scoring the tying run and Hartnett stopping at second. Grimes hit into a double play, Piet to Vaughan to Suhr.

One was out in the Pirate eighth when P. Waner wiped out his third inning boner. After Lindstrom bunted out to Grimm, Paul drove the ball over the right field screen for the game deciding homer. Traynor caromed a single off Grimes' glove, but Suhr hit into a double play.

In the ninth Grimm and Hartnett tapped to Piet and Koenig, batting for Jurges, lined to Lindstrom.

AFTERNOON GAME

The Cubs got men to third and second with one out in the first inning, without the aid of a hit. English was safe when Traynor dropped his pop fly back of the pitcher's box. Bill Herman walked and the runners advanced on Babe Herman's sacrifice. Stephenson then fouled to Suhr and Demaree popped to the same gent.

Traynor led off the second with the first hit of the afternoon. Suhr flied to Babe Herman, but Vaughan doubled to left center scoring Traynor. Piet grounded to Jurges and Vaughan was out at third, Jurges to English. Piet stole second, but Padden flied to Babe Herman.

Paul Waner led off the fourth with a double to right center which would have been of higher caliber but for a

Traynor Happy Over Lead in Baseball Poll

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 30.—Pie Traynor of the Pirates is happy over the huge lead the fans have given him in the nation-wide poll that will determine the personnel of the interleague teams for the Game of the Century in Chicago July 6.

"I am pleased to see so many fans think I should play in baseball's greatest game. If I am selected I shall be delighted to participate, not only because of the chance it would give me to do some battling for the National league, but for the further reason that I would get a personal wallop out of being so honored.

"I am glad, too, that the fans are paying a lot of attention to other members in the voting. They can't make us mad by sending a whole squad from Pittsburgh to Chicago."

Batting Skill Alone Fails to Satisfy Fans

One hundred thousand Americans can't be wrong, so it seems that the outfielders leading the National league poll do determine the makeup of the team that will oppose the American league's best on July 6 owe their position to something besides power at the plate.

None of the first five in today's standings has been setting the league on fire with his bat this season. Klein, the leader is hitting .323, but the other four all are under .300. Frederick of Brooklyn, whose mark was .366 in the last weekly averages, ranks tenth. Unless his stock takes a sharp upturn in the next ten days he will be so far behind there will be no chance of his getting into the Game of the Century at Comiskey park.

According to the rules of the interleague contest, the three outfielders with the most votes in the nation-wide poll will start the game. There will be one utility outfielder for each club.

Vote on All Around Ability.

It is apparent that the fans are basing their estimates of the players' worth on all around ability rather than on batting strength. Paul Waner, who ranks next to Klein, is hitting only .286 and O'Doul, who holds third position, has slumped to .254. Manager Max Carey occasionally has substituted Hack Wilson in O'Doul's position.

Ott of New York, who has been batting at a .321 pace, is in eighth place where he trails Berger whose

NEW DEAL GIVES 20,073 A THRILL; WINS BY A NOSE

Swiftsport Runs 2d in Stake at Homewood.

A 2 year old named New Deal, owned by J. W. Parrish, the banker of Midway, Ky., came rolling home the winner of the Curran Memorial the first juvenile stake decided this year in Chicago.

New Deal got the decision over Swiftsport, another Kentucky youngster, only by a nose. Only a length back of the two leaders was Speedy Skippy, another from Kentucky, in third place.

However, the New Deal had conquered and the folks who believed in it and this big upstanding son of Broadway Jones-Ethel Dear, were most happy. For after New Deal had stepped the 5½ furlongs in 1:06 2-5, within fractions of a second of the track record, he paid off in the mutuels at $13.18 to win, $6.42 to place, and $4.72 to show. Swiftsport was at $5.16 to place and $3.88 to show, while Speedy Skippy paid $5.04 to show.

20,073 See the Victory.

A crowd of 20,073, official figures, kept filing into the track all through the early afternoon and watched New Deal score his victory. The crowd was larger by some 1,500 than the one which watched Projectile race to a triumph in the same stake on Memorial day a year ago. The betting in the pari-mutuels was lower by 12 per cent, the officials announced.

There wasn't a vacant seat in the huge grandstand and the wide sweeping lawn in front of it was packed every time the horses were on the track. The clubhouse was filled almost to Derby day capacity.

The favorites came along just often enough to keep the players in money most of the afternoon. The long shot players had been routed during the first five races. The only thing that resembled long shots which won were Babee in the third race and New Deal in the stake.

It didn't take Starter Morrisey long to get the ten youngsters away in good alignment and it was Swiftsport's nose which showed in front an instant later. It made the great crowd happy, for most of the spectators had wagered on him.

Swiftsport's task of making the pace was soon ended, for the field was out only an eighth of a mile when Cloud d'Or from the Audley farm of Virginia raced up on the outside and went into the lead. He rounded the turn in front and was going so rapidly it seemed that the outsider might gallop on to victory.

New Deal Makes a Bid.

Swiftsport challenged him at the head of the stretch but couldn't get to the front. Next came Jockey Richards on New Deal racing on the extreme outside. He went on past the flying Cloud d'Or. Once whipped, Cloud d'Or dropped out of it but Swiftsport continued gamely and was trying with his last ounce of speed and strength to get to New Deal in the final strides.

Gilbert Elston finished fourth and Stuyvesant Peabody's Technocracy, on which there had been a late plunge, was running well in the final stages, but the best he could do was fifth place. It was a dizzy pace the youngsters had cut out, for the first quarter was run in :22 4-5, the half in :46 4-5, and the 5 furlongs in :59 2-5.

The stake, carrying $2,500 in added money, was worth $2,630 to Banker Parrish. Swiftsport got $500 for finishing second and $250 went to Speedy Skippy.

Hold Funeral Tomorrow for John C. Schank

Funeral services for John C. Schank, Chicago sportsman and president of the Chicago Business Men's racing association in control of the Hawthorne race track, will be held from Salem Evangelical church, 6820 Emerald avenue at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Interment will be in Oakwoods cemetery.

JOHN SCHANK.

Mr. Schank, 65, one of the most widely known men in American racing, died suddenly at his home at 6720 Oglesby avenue at 5:30 o'clock yesterday morning. Death was due to a heart attack.

News of his death stunned the turf fraternity. Flags were at half staff at the Washington Park track yesterday in his memory. Mr. Schank had retired early on Monday night apparently in good health. He was up preparing to dress when stricken and died within a few minutes.

With One Firm 45 Years.

While he had given most of his time to racing during the last few years, Mr. Schank was active in other fields. He had a wide acquaintance in the civic, business and social life of Chicago.

He was a former vice president and treasurer of the Brunswick-Balke Collander company and had been with that firm 45 years before his retirement several years ago. He started as an office boy at the age of 16 and advanced through the ranks. For many years he was the active head of the concern, one of the largest of its kind in the world.

Schank played an important part in the revival of racing in Illinois. In 1922 when Tom Bourke and Joseph A. Murphy, the present general manager of Hawthorne, staged the first Revival meeting, Schank raced his horses there.

For the next four years Hawthorne staged meetings of one sort or another. Not many of them were successful. Schank had advanced money several times to keep the track going. Finally in 1927 the old operators could make the grade no longer.

Operated Fairgrounds.

Schank suggested the organization of the Chicago Business Men's Racing association. He interested Col. M. J. Winn, the head of the Kentucky Jockey club, in the project and it was the money furnished by the Kentucky Jockey club and by Schank and his friends which saved the track from bankruptcy.

Mr. Schank and his associates purchased the Fairgrounds track in New Orleans from Col. Edward R. Bradley last summer. Mr. Schank, after being elected president, personally conducted the winter meeting at that track.

He was a member of the Chicago Athletic association, South Shore Country club, Medinah Athletic club, Lake Shore Athletic club and the Germania club. Surviving are two sisters, Katheryn Schank and Elizabeth Schank, with whom he resided.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 30.—[Special.]—Louis Meyer of Huntington Park, Cal., won the annual 500 mile auto race at the Indianapolis speedway today, setting a new record with an average speed of 104.162 miles per hour. He finished three laps ahead of Wilbur Shaw of Indianapolis, completing the run in 4 hours and 48 minutes.

The race took a heavy toll, killing two drivers and a mechanic and seriously injuring three others. While Meyer's car was roaring through the final laps, Mark Billman, 30, of Indianapolis, a driver, and G. L. Jordan, 27, of Los Angeles, mechanic, died of injuries received during the race. Lester Spangler, 27, of Los Angeles, died early tonight in the field hospital on the Speedway grounds.

The three injured, all of whom are in the field hospital, are Malcomb Fox of Westville, N. J.; Bert Cook of Detroit, and Elmer Lombard of Indianapolis. Cook was Fox's mechanic and Lombard was riding with Billman.

Second Two-Time Winner.

These deaths added to those of William Denver and Robert Hurst, who were killed during a test run Sunday, made today's race one of the most disastrous in the history of the event.

By today's triumph Meyer took his place beside Tommy Milton, the only other driver to win twice in the 500 mile race. His previous victory occurred in 1928. Milton turned the trick in 1921 and 1923.

The previous record was set last year by Fred Frame, who averaged 104.144 miles per hour, just a shade slower than Meyer's mark. However, the high average made in today's race was all the more remarkable because the drivers were forced to slow down when the track became strewn with wreckage.

Bill Cummings, who occupied the pole position in the first row by virtue of making the best qualifying average, took the lead at the start and held it for 75 miles. Then Frame moved into the front and set the pace until the 125 mile mark, when he began dropping back until he reached fourth position. Later he moved up to second place. He was forced out of the race when his car hit the wall.

Meyer Moves Up Gradually.

When Frame relinquished the lead Egbert Stapp sped ahead and stayed there until he ran out of gasoline at the 325 mile mark.

Meanwhile Meyer had been improving his position gradually, being seventh at 25 miles and fifth at 50. Continuing to advance, he was second when Stapp went to the pit. He took the lead at this point and never relinquished it.

After Meyer and Shaw had finished, Lou Moore of Los Angeles, Chet Gardner of Long Beach, Cal.; H. W. Stubblefield of Los Angeles, and Dave Evans of Columbus, Ind., followed in order. These were the only drivers to average better than 100 miles per hour. Only 19 of the 42 starters finished.

Billman Crashes Wall.

The fatal accident of Billman occurred on the northeast turn. Approaching the curve at a terrific speed, Billman lost control of his car. Crashing into the retaining wall, the machine skidded to the top and hung there, the front wheels remaining on the track and the rear wheels hanging over the embankment.

The first impact crushed the side of the car on which Billman was riding. He was taken to the field hospital and an emergency operation was performed, but he died soon after. Lombard, his mechanic, is expected to recover.

The other fatal accident occurred when the car driven by Fox lost a wheel on the south turn and skidded into the middle of the track. The car driven by Spangler crashed into Fox's machine. Jordan, who was killed, was riding as Spangler's mechanic. Cook was Fox's mechanic.

Spangler was a native Hoosier, having been born at Brook, Ind., where his parents still live. He broke into the racing game at the Roby Speedway, near Chicago, but in recent years had raced on the west coast. He took second place in the Pacific coast driving championship last season.

Meyer Wins $13,150.

Today's victory entitled Meyer to $12,000 first prize money and an additional $1,150 as lap prize money. Of the lap money, Stapp received $1,000, Cummings, $500, and Frame, $400. Meyer also will receive a major

CARDINALS WHIP CINCINNATI IN DOUBLE HEADER

Take First Game, 5 to 4; Win Second, 3 to 2.

St. Louis, Mo., May 30.—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals took two close games from Cincinnati today and climbed to within a half game of the league leading Pittsburgh Pirates. St. Louis won the first game, 5 to 4, and the second, 3 to 2.

Tex Carleton pitched his sixth victory of the season in the first game. The Cardinals, facing Paul Derringer, former Cardinal, for the first time since he was traded to Cincinnati, put over four runs in the first inning on a single, three doubles, a walk, and two errors.

GIANTS, DODGERS DIVIDE.

New York, May 30.—(AP)—The Giants and the Brooklyn Dodgers divided a doubleheader today. The Giants won the first game, 2 to 1, when Byrne James hit the first ball pitched by Van Mungo in the ninth for a home run and the Dodgers took the nightcap, 3 to 1, on Tony Cuccinello's homer with one on in the sixth. Cuccinello also hit a homer for the only Brooklyn run in the opener. Manager Bill Terry's homer as a pinch hitter in the eighth inning of the first game tied the score. Mel Ott hit a homer for the Giants in the nightcap. Scores:

How They're Voting on National League Stars

The baseball fans of the nation will decide who will play in the game of the century at Comiskey park July 6. Fifty-five newspapers in all sections of the United States have invited fans to help pick the National and American leagues' greatest players.

The Tribune is offering $500 in cash prizes to the fans who come closest to naming the teams. The first award of $250 will go to the person who comes closest to naming the starting lineups [batting order] and the three pitchers for each team in the order they work. The fan who selects the National league's starting lineup with starting pitcher will receive $100. A similar prize will be presented for the American league team. Fifty $1 prizes will be distributed among the fans who can name the six pitchers.

In case more than the allotted number qualify for the awards, the prizes will go to those whose selections reach The Tribune first.

Batting Skill Alone Fails to Satisfy Fans

Unless the present leaders regain their old stride, there are certain to be radical changes in the last week or two of the poll. Baseball fans are more alert than almost any other sports followers. National league fans will make positive that the strongest players are in the lineup. It will take the greatest batting power the league can produce to hold its own with the American league's long distance wallopers.

Fans Cast 100,000 Votes.

More than 100,000 votes already have been cast in the national poll, which has been conducted only ten days. That is evidence of the tremendous interest the game of the century has aroused.

Johnny Evers, scout for the Boston Braves and one of the greatest second basemen the game has developed, yesterday sent in this comment:

"It is one thing to sit down and dope out an all star team that never is going to take the field to show what it can do. But it is something infinitely better to know that every one's vote in this matter may decide which player shall represent either league in the game at Chicago. I want to congratulate all those concerned in the arrangement of the game."

That is the big kick of the game—the fact that your vote will help decide the personnel. It will give you something to shout about the rest of your life if you can name the greatest players in the major leagues. If you are enough of an expert to predict the batting order and the pitchers in the order they work you can win $250 of THE TRIBUNE'S $500 prize money.

ATHLETICS TAKE DOUBLE HEADER FROM RED SOX

Win Opener, 7-3; Capture 2d in 12th, 11-8.

Boston, Mass., May 30.—(AP)—Robert [Lefty] Grove twice came to the rescue of wilting Philadelphia Athletic pitchers in a double header with the Boston Red Sox today and as a result the A's won, 7 to 3 and 11 to 8. Grove received credit for the victory in the first game only. The nightcap went 12 innings, and the latter part was played in rain.

In the nightcap the A's came from behind twice to tie. Brown pitched the 12th inning for the Red Sox after a pinch hitter had batted for Rhodes in the eleventh. Brown was wild and three walks with singles by Bishop and Claset accounted for the winning runs.

It was the seventh time in the last nine games played by the A's that Grove had been called upon in his new rôle of relief pitcher. Score:

BROWNS, TIGERS SPLIT.

Detroit, Mich., May 30.—(AP)—Detroit and St. Louis broke even in a double header today, the first game going to the Tigers, 8 to 6, and the nightcap to the Browns, 3 to 1.

Errors played an important part in the opening game. Four St. Louis runs in a second inning rally were the result of misplays, and two errors figured in a Tiger eighth inning rally. Score:

Senators Lose to Yanks, 3-2; Protest Homer

Washington, D. C., May 30.—(AP)—The New York Yankees today handed the Senators a 3 to 2 defeat to entrench themselves more firmly at the top of the American league in a game enlivened by heated protests from Washington players and bottle throwing by fans.

When Lou Gehrig, New York first baseman, lifted one of Whitehill's fast balls over the right field fence in the eighth to give the Yankees a 2 to 1 lead, an ensuing rumpus almost ended the ball game permanently.

Umpire Brick Owens at the plate ruled the hit had topped the fence inside the right field foul line and that Gehrig was entitled to a homer. The Washington team thought otherwise and Owens was surrounded quickly by gesticulating players. Three bottles were thrown from the stands and the game was halted for more than ten minutes.

third. Averill then supplied the hit. It was a double to right center, scoring Cissell and planting Burnett on third. Burnett dashed home while Hayes was tossing out Vosmik.

The lathering that made three Sox pitchers squirm in the third started with Porter's single to center. Cissell, after failing to bunt, wound up with a scratch hit to Dykes. Burnett's single to left moved Porter to the plate. When Averill hit to the same spot to load the bases, Gregory quit the party. Heving came in to get Vosmik on a pop up, but the stampede was revived immediately. Boss and Kamm singled to score Cissell, Burnett and Averill. That finished Heving. Pytlak welcomed Kimsey with a single, scoring Boss, before the uprising was subdued.

Error Helps Sox Score.

The Sox broke in with a couple of runs in the third because of assistance from the enemy. Hayes singled to right and Haas lofted to Vosmik. Swanson lined a single into the territory patrolled by Porter, but the latter neglected to stop the ball. It rolled to the fence, letting Hayes score and Swanson go to third on the error. Simmons' infield out scored Swanson.

Kimsey had to conclude his limited appearance before the fourth was finished. He fanned Cissell, but Burnett caromed a single off his glove. A fly to Haas stopped Averill, but Vosmik singled and Boss walked, filling the bases. When Kimsey passed Kamm, forcing Burnett to score, he was recalled. Frasier promptly nailed Pytlak for the third out.

Frasier gave a pass to Brown, who stole and scored on a single by Burnett in the fifth. That made it 9 to 2.

More Grief for Frasier.

There was further grief for Frasier in the sixth. Averill plunked the top of the right center field wall for three bases and walked home while Vosmik raced to third on a rakish drive between Haas and Swanson. Vosmik scored on Kamm's infield out. That made the score 11 to 2.

There was ample excuse for the removal of Frasier in the seventh, the excuse being four hits. Porter started it with a single and was forced by Cissell. Burnett singled to right and Averill flied deep to Swanson. Then Vosmik singled to score Cissell and Boss doubled to drive in Burnett. This was where Miller came in for his share of the bruising. Kamm's single scored Vosmik and Boss. Pytlak scratched a single toward third, but Miller managed to fan Brown.

Sox Break Through.

The crowd let loose some yelling that didn't sound sincere when the Sox made three useless runs in the eighth. Haas and Swanson started this with singles. Webb, who entered the party when Simmons retired, fanned, but Appling scored the two waiting runners by tripling over Averill's head. Appling registered on Sullivan's infield out. Rhyne, who supplanted Dykes, singled Cissell mussed up Grube's roller, but Pinch Batter Kress struck out.

Brown had to be removed with one out in the ninth because of four hits with only one out. Hayes opened with a single and took second when Averill fumbled. Haas did nothing, but when Swanson singled, Webb doubled and Appling singled for a total of three runs, Hudlin dashed to the rescue and stopped the Sox cold.

Jurges Clouts Homer.

The first hit off Meine was something to write home about. After Meine had tossed out Hendrick and fanned Hartnett in the fifth, Jurges knocked the ball over the left field wall to tie the score at 1 all. Malone singled to center and English fanned.

Lindstrom opened the sixth with a single to center and moved to second on P. Waner's sacrifice. Lindstrom went to third while Malone was throwing out Traynor. Suhr ran the count to three balls and two strikes then walked. Vaughan also ran the count to three ball and two strikes, then flied to Demaree.

And now for the detail of the big Cub seventh: Demaree led off with the third hit off Meine, a single to left. Hendrick sacrificed, and when Traynor threw wide to first for his second error of the game Demaree was perched on second and Hendrick on first. Hartnett sacrificed. Then with men on third and second and first open the Pirate board of strategy held a conference in the center of the diamond.

They Finally Decide—Wrong.

Eventually it was decided to pitch to Jurges with the infield pulled in especially close. Jurges promptly smacked a single to center, scoring Demaree and Hendrick. Malone forced Jurges after Piet had intentionally grounded Pat's pop fly, the intent being to give Pat a little added exercise, though they obviously did not figure that Pat would get to run clear around the bases.

English walked and the bases were full when Bill Herman singled to center for his first hit of the day. Babe Herman also was credited with his first hit of the day on a grounder to Vaughan. The Pirate shortstop came up with the ball but could find no purposeful place to throw it, Malone scoring and the bases remaining full. Stephenson doubled off the scoreboard in left, English and Bill Herman scoring and Babe Herman stopping at third. Demaree, up the second time in the inning, grounded out to Vaughan.

Pirates Get a Run.

The Pirates got a run across in their end of the seventh. Piet singled and went to third when Comorosky, batting for Padden, also singled. Jensen batted for Meine and flied to Stephenson. L. Waner singled to left, scoring Piet and putting Comorosky on second. Then Lindstrom and Paul Waner flied to Demaree.

The Pirates got two men on in the eighth but the inning ended when Grace fanned. Pinch Batter Young was safe on English's fumble, the only Cub error of the day, to start the ninth. Then L. Waner, Lindstrom and P. Waner flied to Demaree to bring Frankie's putout total for the game to seven.

ILLUSTRATE GOLF LESSONS IN PAIR OF EXHIBITIONS

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The enthusiasm with which THE TRIBUNE Golf school, now in session upon the 27 member courses of the Chicago Daily Fee Golf association, has been greeted since its inception nine days ago, was demonstrated again yesterday. Hundreds appeared for instruction at the courses which gave lessons in spite of the holiday, while others appeared to follow exhibition matches by their teachers, at which various points in the first week's lessons were illustrated.

Five hundred appeared at Evergreen to see Al Megeff and Don Gardner defeat John Takasch and Roy Hutchison, 2 and 1. Megeff led the quartet with a 76, due to sinking a number of long putts. Jock Anderson allowed a class of fifty to swing brassies, after he had made a resume of last week's lesson on the driver.

Two Exhibitions Saturday.

At Chicago Meadows Harold Matheson, who shot a 73, and Percy Swanberg defeated Les MacArthur and Mike Jansic, 3 and 2. Jack Chamberlain played with them. The club will hold two exhibition matches Saturday for the benefit of pupils, one at 10 a. m. and another at 3 p. m.

Two classes for men were held yesterday at Golfmoor, where Jim Loye is urging women students to attend the 10 a. m. class today to relieve the congestion at the 7:30 p. m. class. One hundred men turned out at Harlem Monday despite the rain and another 100 took a lesson last night. Boys and girls classes' at Harlem will be combined on Thursday nights hereafter.

150 Men at Glenbard.

One hundred and fifty men attended the Glenbard class, where Art and Curtis Schatz assisted Joe Sturm. Jack Croake of Elmgate reports an enthusiastic class. He will hold classes for men and boys on Tuesdays hereafter and for women and girls on Wednesdays.

Don't spend more - GET MORE real enjoyment with EL PRODUCTO

WHEN you smoke, you want real enjoyment, no matter what you spend. And El Producto means more real enjoyment per penny spent than any other cigar.

The reason? QUALITY!—in the tobaccos, in the blending, in the making.

The matchless sparkle of choicest Havana combines with a rare mildness in the uncopyable El Producto blend. You just can't duplicate the fragrant satisfaction of an El Producto. Add to that, superb smoking qualities—even-burning, holding its fire—and you get more real enjoyment for every dime investment.

It's a safe investment, too—El Producto quality never varies—and never will. Many sizes, 10c to 25c.

SIMMS, ROPER BOX FRIDAY ON GRIFFITH CARD

Marty Sampson to Meet De Marco.

Tuffy Griffith vs. King Levinsky [10].
Jack Roper vs. Frankie Simms [8].
Tony Cancela vs. Clem Miller [8].
Marty Sampson vs. Tony DeMarco [8].
Bob Stone vs. Walter Madey [6].

Roper is a stablemate of Griffith and Cancela is a member of the Levinsky stable. A place on the card had to be found for them. Roper accepted terms to meet Cancela, but Tony refused. He wished to fight Izzy Gastanaga, Otto Von Porat or any topnotch heavyweight. This was impossible. Tony finally compromised on Clem Miller of Cleveland. Roper signed to box Frankie Simms, also of Cleveland.

Wolff didn't encounter obstacles in matching Bob Stone and Walter Madey in the six round preliminary. But he did in attempting to get an opponent for Marty Sampson. Sampson apparently had to be on the card and prospective opponents and Marty were hard to please. First Vincent Sireci, then Ray Tramblie, Willie Oster, and Henry Firpo were sought. Sampson closed yesterday to face Tony De Marco, younger brother of Cuddy De Marco, former Pittsburgh lightweight.

Griffith finished boxing yesterday. He will do only light exercises today and tomorrow. He sparred three rounds with Harvey Mortenson, heavyweight, and finished with a round against Norman Brown, Indianapolis, Ind., welterweight. The drill was halted before the round terminated, when Brown butted Griffith and opened a small cut over his right eye.

Freddy Miller, featherweight champion, has agreed to defend his title against Abie Israel at Seattle, Wash., about July 1. Miller was whipped by Israel in a nontitle match several weeks ago at Seattle. The champion will box Baby Arizmendi at San Francisco, Cal., in an overweight contest on June 12.

Nate Lewis, Chicago Stadium Operating company matchmaker, is scheduled to leave on June 7 on Sammy Wolff's special train to attend the Max Schmeling-Max Baer bout in New York. He intends to close several matches while in New York.

Bud Saltis, north side middleweight, and Bob Groshek of Gary, Ind., are to clash tonight at Northwest Stadium 4848 Irving Park boulevard. Tony Muscarello, former Golden Gloves star, and California Joe Rivers will meet in the four round semifinal. Other matches: Young Scotty vs. Eddie Stiegal, Harry Booker vs. Tod Kelly, Mickey O'Shea vs. Einar Hedquist, Tony Hajdich vs. Pat Corrigan [wrestling].

Canoe Trip on Flambeau Is Thrill-Packed

BY BOB BECKER.

Boy Scouts and adult explorers who want to paddle down a beautiful river for a real camping and fishing trip should not overlook the Flambeau in Wisconsin. This stream, with its roaring rapids, which can pour plenty of water and temporary grief into any paddler's canoe, offers a thrilling trip to the experienced canoeist. For those who do not like canoes, comfortable flat bottomed boats can be hired, and in these you can travel down stream without worrying about rapids.

Ever since THE TRIBUNE Boy Scout cruise was conducted on the Flambeau we have received numerous requests for information on where to start a cruise and where to get a map of the river. Scout Jerome Nevius of Wilmette is the first 1933 canoeist to file these questions. His letter follows:

"My friend and I are thinking about a canoe trip this summer. We intend going down the Flambeau river in June.

Start Trip at the Oxbo.

"Upon hearing from one of my Scout associates that you had made the trip, I am asking you to please furnish me with information about it.

"I should like first to know the best starting place. In addition, can you tell me where to get a map of the river? Any other information you could furnish relative to river conditions and fishing would be appreciated."

One of the best places to start the Flambeau river trip is that known as the Oxbo. It is southwest of Park Falls and northwest of Philipps. From there you can go down stream for as long a trip as you wish. If you have the time, continue to Ladysmith and ship your canoe or boat. Canoes and boats are available at the starting point.

Canoeist Must Be Good Swimmer.

No one should attempt the Flambeau by canoe unless he can swim well and knows considerable about handling a canoe. The rapids are numerous and full of rocks. On our trip down the river we had no tipovers, but there were several times when we had to jump from the canoe in swift water and haul the craft off a boulder to keep from spilling everything.

Inexperienced river travelers will find it worth while to hire a boat and a guide for the trip. There will be plenty of mosquitos in June. Take a bugproof tent along and a mosquito spray. Later in the year insect pests are less of a nuisance. Fishermen should bring along muskie, pike, and bass tackle.

Bill to Legalize Boxing Goes to Texas Governor

Austin, Tex., May 30.—[Special.]—A bill which would legalize boxing was sent to Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson by the legislature today. Boxing has been outlawed in Texas since 1895.

| UNCLE MATT [C.E.Allen] | 115 | 4 | 5 | 5½ | 5h | 8 | 8 | DevereauxSta. | 26.08-1 |

Time, :23 3-5, :48 1-5, 1:13 1-5, 1:26 1-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Essential, $54.64 straight, $18.82 place, $8.76 show; La Salle, $5.22 place, $3.32 show; Wirt G. Bowman, $4.00 show. Winner trained by owner. Went to post at 2:18½. Off at once. Start good from gate. Won driving; second and third same.

ESSENTIAL, well ridden and lucky, was slow to respond to urging, came through on inside with a rush approaching final eighth, and weakened but lasted. LA SALLE, probably best, away slowly, raced wide throughout, improved his position gradually, and was strongest of all in late stages. WIRT G. BOWMAN slow to begin, worked way through some of the field at turn, could not withstand ESSENTIAL'S rush after getting to front, but held on stoutly.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse $700. Net value to winner, $525; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25.

Time, :23 2-5, :47 2-5, 1:12 2-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Meloy, $8.50 straight, $3.98 place, $2.98 show; Portmanteau, $3.62 place, $2.92 show; Night Jasmine, $5.08 show. Winner trained by R. McGarvey. Went to post at 2:54½. At post 1 minute. Start good from gate. Won driving; second and third same.

MELOY had first speed from start, slowly drew clear at the turn and, holding on gamely, outstayed PORTMANTEAU in a long drive. Latter saved much ground in early stages, but came out entering stretch and returned to inside in final eighth; closed strong. NIGHT JASMINE worked her way up on extreme outside and weakened badly after five-eighths, but was best of others.

THIRD RACE—One mile out of chute. Purse $700. Net value to winner, $525; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25.

†Field. Time, :23 3-5, :48 3-5, 1:13 4-5, 1:40. Two dollar mutuels paid: Babee, $13.00 straight, $4.26 place, $3.00 show; Helen Bab, $5.04 place, $3.00 show; Black Nose, $3.86 show. Winner trained by D. A. Headley. Went to post at 3:35½. At post 7 minutes. Start good from gate. Won driving; second and third same.

BABEE saved some ground when beginning to move up at the turn, slowly wore down BILLIE'S ORPHAN and BLACK NOSE and, holding on gamely under strong handling, outstayed HELEN BAB. Latter bettered her position slowly after a half mile, saved some ground in stretch, and stood the drive courageously. BLACK NOSE, a strong factor from start, took a short lead after three-quarters, but could not withstand leaders and weakened in final eighth.

FOURTH RACE—Seven furlongs out of chute. Purse $700. Net value to winner, $525; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25.

Time, :23 2-5, :47 4-5, 1:12 4-5, 1:26. Two dollar mutuels paid: Ondott, $5.16 straight, $4.40 place, $3.36 show. Crash, $21.74 place, $11.02 show; Mrs. Let, $5.48 show. Winner trained by B. B. Williams. Went to post at 4:18½. At post 1½ minutes. Start good from gate. Won easily; second and third driving.

ONDOTT, much the best and taken to inside after a quarter, slipped through next to rail when taking the lead, easily disposed of CRASH, and had something left. Latter, a strong factor from start, lost ground throughout and weakened after three-quarters, but held others safe. MRS. LET moved up weakly when urged hard after five-eighths and also weakened in late stages.

FIFTH RACE—Seven furlongs out of chute. Purse $700. Net value to winner, $525; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25.

Time, :23 3-5, :48, 1:13 1-5, 1:26 3-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Hamilton, $7.34 straight, $3.90 place, $3.50 show; Tamerlane, $7.98 place, $5.06 show; Romac, $8.04 show. Winner trained by R. McGarvey. Went to post at 4:54. At post 2½ minutes. Start good from gate. Won handily; second and third driving.

HAMILTON, having the most speed from start and cleverly rated, came away slightly entering stretch and maintained his advantage thereafter, but had little left. TAMERLANE moved up on inside at stretch turn, withstood severe pressure, and outstayed ROMAC. Latter dropped back steadily the first five-eighths, rallied after reaching final quarter and was strongest of all in final stages.

SIXTH RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse $2,500 added. Net value to winner, $2,630; second, $500; third, $250; fourth, $150.

Two dollar mutuels paid: New Deal, $13.18 straight, $6.42 place, $4.72 show; Swiftsport, $5.16 place, $3.88 show; Speedy Skippy, $5.04 show. Winner trained by J. G. Goode. Went to post at 5:33½. At post 3 minutes. Start good from gate. Won driving; second and third same.

NEW DEAL, rated off the pace, saved ground at the turn, offered good response after coming out in stretch and, withstanding a hard drive, outgamed SWIFTSPORT. Latter much used racing with CLOUD D'OR, saved much ground, and held on stubbornly. SPEEDY SKIPPY had to race wide and closed strongest of all.

SEVENTH RACE—Mile and one-eighth. Purse $700. Net value to winner, $525; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25.

Winner trained by E. B. Carpenter. Went to post at 6:13. At post 4 minutes. Start good from gate. Won easily; second and third driving.

GAY BIRD, under strong restraint for three-quarters, took a big advantage quickly and, maintaining good speed to end, won in hand. HARAMZADA began fast, saved ground throughout, and held on well. ESSARE rank at post, where he was placed on outside, closed strong under weak riding.

EIGHTH RACE—Mile and one-eighth. Purse $700. Net value to winner, $525; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25.

CUBAN REVOLT PLOTTERS 'SHOW OFF' THEIR GUNS

Conducted Tour Reveals Caches of Arms.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, May 30.—Oppositionists, who are seeking in one way or another to depose President Machado and upset his régime, are still planning and conspiring by night and day. Evidences were shown to THE TRIBUNE correspondent today to initiate the desperate steps of the revolutionary party in its plotting to undo the government.

Escorted by three Opposition representatives, one from the Nacionalista union, one from the terrorist A. B. C. organization, and one from the students' directorate, this correspondent was taken for an inspection tour of "camps," "supply bases" and storehouses. They are scattered in several parts of Havana, disguised as various business houses in order not to arouse suspicion.

Find Dynamite in Florist Shop.

A good sized florist shop where business was in progress, as usual, was first visited. The basement contained 450 crates of dynamite neatly stacked and connected with wire fuses. The plotters claim the wires are so arranged that part or all of the dynamite can be exploded.

Several hundred rifles, hand grenade crates and sundry military equipment also were stored in this basement.

A warehouse, two men's furnishing goods stores, a grocery store and an undertaker's parlor revealed more stores of dynamite, etc. The correspondent saw maps dividing Havana into "military areas," and copies of code messages used between Opposition headquarters here and Miami, New York, and Mexico City. The correspondence deals with various efforts to oust the government.

Plotters Need $300,000.

These messages revealed that $300,000 is needed to "put over" the desired upheaval. Where these funds are to come from was not revealed.

The Oppositionists claim that 70 per cent of the leading business firms in Havana and the interior, including several American firms, are supporting the movement. They also say that supplies sufficient to equip an army of 8,000 will be on hand within five months. But there is the standing army of 18,000 federals to face the revolutionists if and when the latter organize.

At present the Opposition army is largely on paper. Oppositionists have been quoted as both favoring and opposing American intervention. Whether such intervention is in prospect is a moot question in Havana.

PROF. ELKIN, 78, ASTRONOMER AT YALE, IS DEAD

New Haven, Conn., May 30.—(AP)—Prof. William Lewis Elkin, astronomer and director emeritus of the Yale university observatory, died today at his home. He was 78 years old.

Prof. Elkin was known as the first astronomer to photograph meteors, and to determine their distance from the earth and the direction in which they move. He set up the first heliometer, measuring instrument, at the Yale observatory.

He was a senior associate of the Royal Astronomical society, and an early member of the National Academy of Sciences. The French Academy of Sciences awarded him the Lalande prize in 1908 for his work with the heliometer.

REV. ANDREW BENGTSON DIES AT AGE OF 83

The Rev. Andrew Bengtson, 83 years old, a retired Lutheran minister, died yesterday at the home of his son, the Rev. C. O. Bengtson, 1915 Elmdale avenue, pastor of the Immanuel Lutheran church. Old age and heart disease contributed to his death.

The elder Dr. Bengtson retired from active duties four years ago. He was born in Sweden and came to America with his family when he was about 16 years old. The family settled in Batavia. The Rev. Mr. Bengtson was active as a layman in Lutheran church affairs there. His intense interest in the church prompted friends to urge him to enter the ministry and this he did while in his thirties. At 39, father of seven children, he was ordained.

Dr. Bengtson held pastorates at Shell Lake, New Richmond, Hudson, and Star Prairie, Wis., and Bayport and Hector, Minn. He retired from his Hector pastorate after twenty-three years of service, and came to Chicago to live with his clergyman son. Surviving him are four other children, Emma, Mathilda, and Robert Bengtson and Mrs. David W. Conrey. Services will be held at 1 p. m. tomorrow in the Immanuel Lutheran church. Burial will be at Hector, Minn.

Cuba Confers Decoration on Ex-Envoy Guggenheim

HAVANA, May 30.—(AP)—A decree signed by Secretary of State Orestes Ferrara before his departure for London yesterday confers the cross of the order of Carlos Manuel de Cespedes on Harry F. Guggenheim, former United States ambassador to Cuba. Similarly honored was Frederick Snare, an American long a resident of Cuba, who is president of the Havana Country club.

CHICAGO WOMAN KILLED, 5 HURT AS AUTOS CRASH

Mother and Child Die in Another Wreck.

Mrs. George Gardner, 64 years old, of the Fairfax apartment hotel, 1369 Hyde Park boulevard, was killed and five other Chicagoans were injured, two seriously, in a head on collision between two automobiles in Indiana, highway 20, three miles east of Gary, yesterday.

Mrs. Gardner was in an automobile being driven west by Kenneth Wing, 35 years old, also of the Fairfax apartment hotel, when the accident occurred. The other car was driven by Oscar Kimbel, 2713 Potomac avenue. With him were Miss Reba Goldstein, 8025 Evans avenue; Miss Sadie Plotkin, 6201 Vernon avenue, and Sam J. Rosen, 3025 Champlain avenue. All were taken to Mercy hospital in Gary. Wing and Miss Plotkin suffering from possible skull fractures.

Mrs. Gardner's husband is head of the catalogue service of the Cuneo Press.

Mother and Daughter Killed.

Mrs. Charles E. Baker, 36 years old, and her daughter, Helen, 15 years old, of Downers Grove, were fatally injured early yesterday when an automobile in which they were riding turned over and caught fire outside of Bloomington. Both died soon afterward.

Also in the car were Helen Darnley, 15 years old, 735 Rogers avenue, Downers Grove, who was injured, and Mrs. Baker's 12 year old son, who was not hurt. Mrs. Baker and the girls had driven to a military school in Missouri to bring the boy home for vacation. The Baker home is at Carpenter and Grove streets in Downers Grove.

One death caused by an automobile accident in Cook county raised the motor fatality toll for the county to 387 since Jan. 1. The victim:

David Murray, colored, 38 years old, 2320 Maypole avenue. Died at the county hospital of injuries suffered on Sunday when he was struck by an automobile in front of 2254 Lake street.

Pedestrian Critically Hurt.

Edward Barry, 37 years old, 655 South State street, was critically injured yesterday when he was struck at 7th and State streets by an automobile driven by Thomas Jackson, 32 years old, 717 Briar place. Barry is in St. Luke's hospital.

John Burres, 35 years old, 6552 South Halsted street, and Edward Bessy, 49 years old, of Crystal Lake, were seriously injured when the automobile in which they were riding skidded on street car tracks and crashed into a light pole at Lawrence and Monticello avenues. Burres' wife, Loretta, 32 years old, who was riding in the car, escaped with bruises.

Woman Hurt in a Fall During Cadet Review Dies

Mrs. Nellie Baker, 76 years old, 1324 East Marquette road, died yesterday in the Billings Memorial hospital of a hip fracture incurred on May 14 when she fell on the parade grounds at the Morgan Park Military academy. At the time she was watching a review with her daughter, the wife of Capt. George Mahon, a member of the academy faculty.

Four of One Family Killed When Auto Is Hit by Train

Jamestown, N. Y., May 30.—(AP)—Four members of one family were killed near here tonight when their automobile was struck by a train at a grade crossing. The victims were George W. Siguler, 40, city fireman; his wife, Agnes, 31; their son, William, 13, and their daughter, Florence, 14.

Veteran Stricken While Reading Memorial Ritual

Plainfield, N. J., May 30.—(AP)—Memorial services at Evergreen cemetery, where lie many of the city's war dead, were halted abruptly today. Charles M. Raybert, an 80 year old honorary member of the G. A. R. was reading the ritual when he suffered a heart attack. He died soon afterward.

HUT DWELLER IS DEAD.

James Gorman, 48 years old, died yesterday of heart disease in a hut in which he made his home in the "jungle" at 214 North Halsted street.

Body of Woman Victim of Attack Is Identified

The body of a woman who was found unconscious Sunday under the elevated structure at Hill and Orleans streets, and who died yesterday, was identified as that of Mrs. Anne Olson Iornas, 45 years old, formerly of Hurley, Wis. Mrs. Iornas apparently had been the victim of a criminal attack. Her jaw was broken and her clothing torn. William P. Gleason, 23 years old, 338 West Goethe street, is being held at the East Chicago avenue station as a suspect.

RITES TOMORROW FOR REV. ERNST WERFELMANN

Funeral services for the Rev. Ernst Werfelmann, late senior pastor of the Christ Evangelical Lutheran church, Richmond and McLean streets, will be held from that church tomorrow afternoon at 2:30. The Rev. Mr. Werfelmann died Sunday at the Luther Memorial hospital of which he was the founder. He was 73 years old.

The Rev. Mr. Werfelmann was also the founder of Christ church, which he served from its organization in 1885 until his death. Since 1929, however, ill health forced him to retire from active leadership of the parish. The pioneer pastor was a member of the board of directors of Concordia Teachers' college, River Forest, and was the organizer of the Lutheran city missions. The Rev. Mr. Werfelmann's body will lie in state today and until the funeral service tomorrow.

The Rev. Mr. Werfelmann is survived by his widow, two sons, and a daughter.

COTTON PUSHES TO YEAR'S PEAK AT NEW ORLEANS

Upturn Marks Third Day of Rising Prices.

New Orleans, La., May 30.—(AP)—Displaying independent strength while other major American markets were closed for the Memorial day holiday, cotton here continued its push toward higher levels in active trading today, establishing new top prices for 1933 for the third successive session.

Futures showed extreme gains of $1.25 a bale over yesterday's close, closing strong near the top, up $1.10 to $1.15 a bale on the day. At the best the active October contract reached 9.60 cents, or 90 cents a bale above the previous high for the year, touched in yesterday's trading. Trading in futures for May, 1934, appeared for the first time, quoted at 10.08 cents.

Prices in today's market were four cents a pound, or more than $20 a bale above the quotations of the same day a year ago. The spot market moved up $1.25 a bale on the day, with the predominant middling grade advancing to a basis of 9.35 cents a pound.

Prices Rally Near Close.

The market, following the reaction of early afternoon, turned very firm in the late trading with good trade buying as well as foreign buying, particularly from Liverpool, and prices advanced to fresh highs for the day, movement, and season, with July at 9.35 cents, October at 9.60 cents, and December at 9.75 cents, or 24 to 25 points above the previous close. Prices eased a point or so at the end, but closed strong, showing net advances for the day of 22 to 23 points.

Closing quotations on cotton futures were: July, 9.33 to 9.34 cents; October, 9.58 to 9.59 cents; December, 9.74 to 9.75 cents; January, 9.81 cents bid; March, 9.96 cents bid; May [1934], 10.11 cents bid. Spot cotton closed steady, 25 points up; sales, 1,106 bales. Low middling, 8.85 cents; middling, 9.35 cents; good middling, 9.75 cents. Receipts, 9,517; stock, 947,928 bales.

Liverpool Prices Higher.

LIVERPOOL, May 30.—(AP)—Cotton—Sales, 7,000, including 2,900 American. Spot moderate business done; prices 9 points higher. Quotations in pence: American strict good middling, 7.05; good middling, 6.75; strict middling, 6.45; middling, 6.30; strict low middling, 6.15; low middling, 5.95; strict good ordinary, 5.75; good ordinary, 5.45. Futures closed steady. May, 6.10; July, 6.08; October, 6.08 bid; December, 6.11; January, 6.12; March, 6.16.

WHEAT PARLEY WILL BEGIN IN LONDON TODAY

LONDON, May 30.—(AP)—Representatives of the United States, Argentina, Australia, and Canada will meet in a west end hotel tomorrow morning to attack the problem of low priced wheat through the agency of restricted production.

The conference, adjourned from Geneva, will attempt to devise a plan of slashed wheat acreage in each of the principal producing countries which would allow tremendous stocks now in existence to be used up to some extent before the world's grain cornucopia again overflows.

Delegates to the conference are hopeful that some plan can be drawn up agreeable to each of the principal producing nations. The scheme evolved, if any is agreed on, will be embodied in a suggestion to the world economic conference, which will be asked to approve it and to obtain pledges of cooperation from other nations.

Standard Oil of California Gets Concession in Arabia

CAIRO, Egypt, May 30.—(AP)—The Standard Oil Company of California has obtained a concession on the oil field known as El Hassa, subject to ratification, according to information received today from Jeddah, Arabia.

Wheat Rises at Winnipeg; U. S. Holiday

WINNIPEG, May 30.—(AP)—Entering the pit in the final minutes of the session, the first real buying of the day sent wheat futures spurting at the close of the local grain market today. Earlier half-cent advances were added to, and values finished the day an even cent higher in all futures.

Though the late support was not considered large, it was sufficient to send prices swiftly upwards in a closing rush. May option ended at 65½ cents, July 65¾ cents, October 67¾ cents, and December, 68¾ cents, all one cent above the previous close.

Given a boost at the start on strength of firmer cables from Liverpool, futures easily retained their gains. With selling pressure virtually absent, small lot purchases were sufficient to uphold prices, coming mostly from commission houses. There was little feature to the trade.

Export Sales Small.

Export sales were disappointing, only small, scattered purchases being made overnight or during the session by foreign buyers. The lull in demand, however, failed to induce any particular easiness and futures clung to their opening upturns throughout. Other news was lacking.

Cash grains were quieter than usual and closed unchanged. Coarse grains moved with wheat futures, flax, again providing the feature in that market.

Closing prices follow: Oats, May, 29¼; July, 29½; October, 30. Rye, May, 49¼; July, 50¼; October, 52¼. Barley, May, 38⅝; July, 39½; October, 40¾. Flaxseed, May, 1.30¾; July, 1.30⅞; October, 1.30.

Liverpool Market Steady.

LIVERPOOL, May 30.—(AP)—Wheat futures closed steady.

| | High. | Low. | Close. |
|---|---|---|---|
| July | 62⅝ | 61⅝ | 62¼ |
| October | 64½ | 63¾ | 64½ |

STATES, CITIES SOON TO REQUEST BIDS ON BONDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 30.—Important new state and municipal issues which may be announced shortly for award through competitive bidding, according to private advices received in municipal banking circles, are as follows:

State of Maryland $4,000,000 to $7,000,000 poor relief bonds; state of Missouri $2,000,000 to $5,000,000 road bonds; state of New Hampshire $2,000,000 to $4,000,000 highway bonds; commonwealth of Massachusetts metropolitan district $3,000,000 water bonds, and Boston metropolitan district $3,000,000 rapid transit bonds.

The state of Tennessee, which has been unsuccessful during recent weeks in marketing an issue of $15,000,000 of funding bonds locally, has sent notices to New York bankers proposing to offer the issue for award on June 15.

Schenectady county, N. Y., has scheduled a new issue of $550,000 emergency relief bonds for award on June 6 at 10 a. m.

The city of Atlanta, Ga., will be in the market June 2 with a new issue of $477,000 of redemption bonds.

Duluth, Minn., independent school district has called for bids, to be opened June 5 at 7:30 p. m., on a new issue of $575,000 of funding bonds, dated June 1, 1933, and due from 1935 to 1942.

The city of Minneapolis, Minn., plans to sell at auction on June 14, at 11 a. m., an issue of $1,000,000 of tax anticipation certificates of indebtedness, dated June 15, 1933, and due Aug. 15, 1933. This issue was originally scheduled for award on May 10.

WALL ST. LOOKS FOR 2D QUARTER EARNINGS GAIN

New York, May 30.—(AP)—In view of the quickening in industrial activity in the last six weeks Wall street is looking forward to second quarter earning statements with considerable interest. Gossip in brokerage circles indicates some expectation of reflection of the improvement in the earnings of steel, motor, and rubber companies, as well as some others in basic lines.

Standard Insurance Co.

Investors' Guide: Will you please give me what information you may have on Standard Insurance company of New York?—L. G. H.

Answer: Standard Insurance company of New York was incorporated in 1922. It writes fire, motor vehicle, earthquake and related types of insurance. The company is controlled by Tokio Marine and Fire Insurance company, Ltd., and Meiji Fire Insurance company, Ltd., of Japan.

Underwriting loss in 1932 was $26,000 and investment gain, after $136,000 loss in value of investments, was $30,000. In 1931 the company lost $83,000 from underwriting. Investment loss, after $1,133,000 loss in value of investments, was $919,000.

At the close of 1932 unearned premiums totaled $1,187,000 and unpaid losses and claims were $154,000. The company set up as a liability a contingency reserve of $1,142,000, the difference between security valuation as used and actual market value of securities. Other liabilities totaled $130,000.

To cover such liabilities admitted assets totaled $5,965,000. These included bonds of $1,418,000 [market value] and stocks of $1,005,000 [market value]. They were listed on the company's balance sheet at a total of $4,023,000 [book value], less $495,000 to adjust the valuation to convention value. Cash was $2,182,000.

On the basis of market value for securities owned, surplus above all liabilities was $3,423,000.

The company is licensed to do business in 27 states and the District of Columbia.

New Orleans Public Service.

Investors' Guide: Can you send me a late report on New Orleans Public Service 5s, due 1955?—G. C.

Answer: New Orleans Public Service, Inc., is a subsidiary of Electric Power and Light corporation. It furnishes electricity, gas and transportation to New Orleans. About one-third of gross is from transportation revenue.

Lowered industrial activity in New Orleans is reflected in gross revenues of $15,652,000 for 1932, against $17,384,000 in 1931 and $17,647,000 in 1930. Charges were earned 1 1-3 times last year, against 1.42 times in 1931, 1.37 times in 1930, and 1.32 times in 1929.

At the close of 1932 current assets were $5,196,000 and current liabilities totaled $5,191,000. Both cash and working capital improved during 1932.

The first important bond maturity is July 1, 1935, when $12,328,000 of bonds come due.

The $12,000,000 series A bonds, due 1952, and the $18,000,000 series B bonds, due 1955, are secured by a first mortgage on part of the property and a general mortgage on the remainder. They are a business man's investment.

Lend Over 21 Billions Since War.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 30.—Americans have reaped a profit of more than eleven billion dollars since the war on all international dealings, but they have invested more than 21 billions abroad in long term securities or projects, the department of commerce announced today.

During this same period, American tourists have spent more than two and a half times as much money abroad as America has collected in war debts, and immigrants living in this country have sent almost as much money home as the foreign debtor nations have paid on their war accounts, the department's figures show.

American tourist expenditures abroad have aggregated six billion 773 million dollars for the 14 years since the end of the war, and each year Americans have spent many millions more abroad than foreign visitors paid out in this country.

Peak Year Was 1929.

The peak year was 1929, when tourists spent 821 millions abroad, and 183 millions was spent here. By last year the tourists' bill abroad had shrunk to 446 millions.

In the same 14 years immigrants living in this country have sent a total of 2 billion 228 million dollars back to their home lands. During that time America collected only 2 billion 435 millions in war debts.

Tourist outlays and immigrant remittances have been the chief outgo items on the American foreign ledger, according to the commerce department. Shipping and freight services also cost this country as much as 96 millions a year.

On the income side of the ledger, helping to pile up a net profit on current items of 11 billion 119 million dollars in the last fourteen years, the United States has had interest and dividends on foreign investments amounting to 7 billion 651 millions and favorable merchandise trade balances worth 5 billion 510 millions.

Interest Collections Large.

Emergence of America as a creditor nation after the war is reflected in the interest payments, the largest single item of income from abroad. While this country was collecting more than 7½ billions in interest and dividends, only from a half to a third as much was being paid out to foreign investors who had capital over here.

Of the 21 billion 172 million dollars in long term funds which individual Americans had sent abroad since the war, 15 billion 252 millions were still outstanding at the end of last year, the department reported. America now for two years, however, has been importing more long term capital than she exported.

Foreign Investments Listed.

Of American money invested abroad, about $4,432,000,000 was invested in Europe; $3,999,000,000 in Canada and Newfoundland; $2,982,000,000 in South America, $1,002,000,000 in Asia; $996,000,000 in Central America; $428,000,000 in Oceania, $129,000,000 Africa, and $1,209,000,000 elsewhere.

In spite of a sharp shrinkage in world trade in the last year, the United States had a net favorable balance of 114 million dollars, the department stated. For eleven months of the current fiscal year, which ends June 30, net gold exports were about 550 millions, which more than offset by foreign gold released from "earmark" in this country and by British debt payment. The released gold was largely in settlement for goods purchased by non-European countries.

HINTS STEEL INDUSTRY MAY INCREASE WAGES TO ASSIST RECOVERY

Intimations that the steel industry soon may increase wages as its contribution to national recovery are made by the Iron Age in its weekly review, issued yesterday. At the same time it is said that steel production now averages 41 per cent of capacity, compared with 38 per cent a week ago.

"The manner in which the American Iron and Steel institute reacted to the industrial recovery bill," says the journal, "makes it possible that the first move of the industry to carry out its part of the program will be a general advance in wages. A 10 per cent increase in coal miners' wages in conjunction with price stabilization negotiations in the coal industry is considered significant."

The demand for steel from the automotive industry is undiminished, the magazine says, with retails of motor cars broadening from the east to the west and south. May steel bookings were the heaviest for any month in nearly two years for many companies, and prices show growing strength.

ELEVEN GEORGIA TEXTILE MILLS INCREASE WAGES

La Grange, Ga., May 30.—(AP)—Wages of 5,000 employés in eleven Callaway textile mills had been increased 10 per cent effective with this week's work, Fuller Callaway Jr., treasurer, announced today.

Callaway said the mill workers had salary reductions in 1930 and 1931 but did not announce the amount of cuts. He said another 10 per cent increase had been granted earlier in the year.

Steadily increasing business justified the increase in pay, Callaway said. "We are happy," he said, "to be able to pass on to our employés some of the benefits of the new deal."

Dollar Sags in English, French Marts

LONDON, May 30.—(AP)—The American dollar moved within narrow limits in a sensitive market today, winding up at $3.99⅛ to the pound at the banking close, compared with an opening of $3.99 and a bank close yesterday of $3.96⅞. The rate improved at midday to $3.97¾ on light supporting orders, but reacted in the afternoon under renewed offerings.

The market was described as sensitive owing to uncertainty about the American currency position. There were rumors in the market that the British exchange equalization fund was operating to prevent wide fluctuations, but official confirmation could not be obtained.

Trading on the stock exchange was somewhat quieter today in view of the holiday in New York, which also made trans-Atlantic issues dull. Gilt edged securities held steady and oil shares spurted on favorable American advices.

Dollar Weak in Paris.

PARIS, May 30.—(AP)—The American dollar closed today at 21.31 francs, off 13 centimes from yesterday's final quotation. From an original quotation of 21.20 today the rate improved as a result, brokers said, of the holiday in Wall street, the source of recent selling orders.

Gains were maintained on the bourse today as buying continued. The closing was firm, but less uniform than yesterday, due to some liquidation.

Berlin Market Strong.

BERLIN, May 30.—(AP)—Prices on the boerse reacted favorably to Dr. Schacht's statement to creditor nations.

Canadian Stocks Rise.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, May 30.—Canadian stock markets continued today to surge upward despite the holiday in the United States, which usually establishes the trend here. Both Montreal and Toronto prices hit new 1933 highs in many instances. Toronto had the largest trading volume since 1929.

U. S. WAIVER ON GOLD MAY LOWER FOREIGN DEBTS

Borrowers Can Save by Cheap Dollar.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 30.—The 27 billion dollars in foreign debts owed the American government and private citizens may be reduced by about 3 billion dollars by adoption of the resolution wiping out the gold payment clause in existing contracts.

The resolution, which was passed by the house yesterday, has been approved by the senate banking committee and is due for prompt action in the upper house.

Large Saving Possible.

Department of commerce figures made public today show that Americans have more than 15 billion 252 million dollars invested abroad and that foreign governments still owe 11 billion 786 millions on war debts. Instead of discharging these debts in gold foreign creditors could pay them off in any kind of dollar exchange.

With dollars now selling abroad at a discount of more than 10 per cent, the debtors could make a reduction in terms of their own currencies of one-tenth, or between 2 billion 700 million and 3 billion dollars.

No Loss to Americans.

Treasury department officials when asked about the international effects of the resolution were quick to point out that although the debts would be reduced in terms of foreign currencies there would be no accompanying loss to American investors unless they wished to put their funds back into international finance.

Dollars are just as useful as gold at home to the American investor, who is repaid, the treasury explained. The only field in which gold would be more useful to him would be foreign investments, it was said.

MOST RAILWAYS REPORT FURTHER TRAFFIC GAINS

New York, May 30.—(AP)—Car loadings reported so far for the week ended May 27 mostly show gains over the previous week and the corresponding period of 1932.

Rail quarters are said to feel reasonably hopeful that the weekly figure for the country will run above last year, and thus duplicate the showing of the previous week.

Production of Crude Oil Falls 70,800 Barrels a Week

New York, May 30.—(AP)—Daily average gross crude oil production in the United States decreased 70,800 barrels in the week ended May 27, totaling 2,634,550 barrels, the American Petroleum institute's weekly summary indicates. Daily average production east of California decreased 69,600 barrels to 2,150,550 barrels.

Canada's Exports of Wheat Are Larger than Year Ago

OTTAWA, Ont., May 30.—(AP)—Export clearances of wheat for the week ending May 26 amounted to 4,671,172 bushels compared with 4,631,152 bushels for the previous week and 3,992,200 for the corresponding week in 1932, according to a report issued today by the dominion bureau of statistics.

Northern Pacific Adding 400 Men to Ballast Line

St. Paul, Minn., May 30.—(AP)—The Northern Pacific railroad announced 400 men would be given employment in laying 80 miles of washed gravel ballast on its main line between Mandan, N. D., and Laurel, Mont. The work will cost about $200,000.

Order for Tractors by U. S. Aids Allis-Chalmers Plant

The Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company announced steady work had been guaranteed 350 employés at the company's Springfield, Ill., plant by an order from the federal government for $100,000 worth of tractors.

Associated Gas and Electric Company

Offers Debenture Holders

Plan of Rearrangement of Debt Capitalization

ASSOCIATED Gas and Electric Company is submitting a plan of rearrangement of capitalization to its debenture holders. Such a plan is desirable because the prolonged business depression, accompanied by slow collections, increasing taxes, and rate reductions have reduced the margin of earnings available to pay fixed interest charges. The plan is designed to protect debenture holders should conditions become worse.

Interest on the debentures is now fully earned, but whether it will continue to be earned depends upon general conditions and upon the ability of the Company to finance future cash requirements.

Three Options Offered

The plan offers three options to holders of debentures. The amount of debentures which may be accepted under Option 1 is tentatively limited. As this option offers the most conservative security of the three, holders are urged to give immediate consideration to the plan.

U. S. MONEY ACTS SCORED IN WORLD TRADE CONGRESS

Member Calls Ending Gold Payments "Immoral."

VIENNA, May 30.—(AP)—The seventh congress of the International Chamber of Commerce was enlivened today by a denunciation of what was called the "immoral" monetary behavior of the United States and by a strong defense of the American merchant marine policy.

In the finance and industry section, Charles Boissevain of Holland, was applauded when he declared that the International Chamber of Commerce should defend not only sound business spirit but should also watch over "real business morality." He condemned the behavior of those nations which abandon the gold standard "although unquestionably in a position to maintain it." He condemned also what he described as the "repudiation" of the gold clause in contracts by the United States.

Defends U. S. Marine Policy.

In the transportation section, Ira Campbell of New York defended United States shipping against what he termed an intenational attempt to rule it off the seas. American merchant marine cannot exist without subsidy, he said, and an international agreement to abolish subsidies would mean the abolition of American ships. He denied that the United States is swamping the world with surplus tonnage.

W. L. Runciman of Great Britain objected to his argument that the American marine is needed for national defense, asserting such argument is out of place in a commercial congress.

Earlier today the congress was told settlement of the war debts must be accomplished before it will be possible to improve world economic conditions. This was set forth in a report by W. H. Coates, British delegate, on "the maladjustment of prices and its influence on international indebtedness."

Urges Settling War Debts.

The council of the international chamber, Mr. Coates said, feels that it is "voicing the almost unanimous opinion of the members" when it affirms that the world cannot be raised out of the depression until the debt problem has been settled.

It is essential, the report said, to "abandon once and for all any hope of magically raising prices through the alchemy of monetary means." Prices can be raised, the document continued, only by restoring harmony between supply and demand. In restoring the equilibrium of world economy, the sanctity of contracts must be preserved but their literal fulfillment must not be unduly stressed, Mr. Coates told the chamber. This applies particularly, he said, to the contracts of international debts.

LONDON WOOL MARKET.

LONDON, May 30.—(AP)—Offerings at the closing session of the wool auction here today amounted to 6,730 bales, of which 5,736 were sold. Merinos were quoted at 15 to 20 per cent higher than closing prices of the previous series, while crossbreds, slipes, and Cape of Good Hope and Natals advanced 10 to 15 per cent. Punta Arenas gained 7½ to 10 per cent. During the series the home trade bought 62,500 bales of wool, the Continent also 62,500, and America, 3,000. About 73,000 bales were held over.

HOTELS AND APARTMENT HOTELS.

Out-of-Towners!

Those friends and relatives of yours who will be strangers in Chicago for the World's Fair will want to know where to live comfortably, yet moderately, during their stay in Chicago.

The furnished apartments as listed below, include twenty-four hour desk and hotel service, gas, light, refrigeration, linen and maid service, and are close to the lake, parks, and excellent transportation to the fair grounds.

Make a selection for your friends and let them know that their worries for living accommodations for their "Century of Progress" visit are over.
